LEAGUE ASKS ABOUT BRITISH MONOPOLY OF PHOSPHATE BEDS

CHILEAN HEADS ASSEMBLY

DA GAMA OPENS SESSION

Replies to Critics Who Assert That League Is Dead and Scouts Idea of Super-State.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 4.—The Third Assembly of the League of Nations began its sessions here today by electing Augustin Edwards, a Chilean delegate, President, and naming various committees to consider the subjects down for discussion on the agenda.

The Council of the League voted tonight to ask the Governments of England, Australia and New Zealand to give additional information on their monopolization of the immense phosphate deposits on the Island of Nauru, Southern Pacific, formerly owned by Germany and mandated to the British. The purpose of the request is to enable the League to decide whether the mandatory powers have not violated in spirit the mandate and the provisions of the League covenant.

The action of the council tends to meet the representations Secretary of State Hughes has made to London on the subject.

Lord Balfour agreed to the motion only on condition that it be construed as a simple request for information and not as a reflection on the British Empire, or any part of it.

At the time the German islands were parceled out no one paid much attention to Nauru. Then it was discovered that the island was an almost solid bed of phosphate, it being estimated that it could supply the world's demand for 200 years. Forthwith the Governments of England, Australia and New Zealand made an arrangement assigning themselves a monopoly of the phosphate, 42 per cent. going each to Australia and New Zealand and 16 per cent. to England.

Several of the League of Nations turned their attention to this arrangement and objected, and subsequently Secretary Hughes, after learning of the phosphate, put in a claim to protect American interests.

Experts Offered Objections.

The permanent Mandate Commission of the League, composed of experts as distinguished from representatives of the Governments, frankly disapproved of this arrangement as violating the spirit of the mandate plan, although within legal bounds, perhaps.

The report of the commission speaks of anxiety over this tendency. It points out that while Australia technically governs the island, it is to be run by a phosphate commission composed of one member each from England, Australia and New Zealand. The report says the population of this island numbers only 2,000, but that its mineral wealth is considerable. This wealth consists of rich deposits of phosphates, for the exploitation of which the Governments of Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain have reserved to themselves the exclusive rights.

In accordance with the agreement among these Governments these rights are exercised by three phosphate commissioners whose powers appear to be unlimited as regards everything relating to the undertaking which they manage. It is not clear what powers the Australian Administration possesses with regard to this organization.

The commission feels it to be its duty to call the attention of the Council to the anxiety it feels as a result of this situation. It expresses the desire that in future the annual reports of the mandatory power shall contain information which will enlighten it further.

Want Status of Island Made Clear.

Marquis Imperali of Italy reported to the Council today on the report of the commission. He declared it was desirable that the status of the island be made more clear and supported the recommendations of the Mandates Commission expressing the belief that the three governments in question would comply with the request for information. He presented a recommendation to this effect.

The Earl of Balfour showed himself plainly not enthusiastic about the motion. But if he refused to vote for it he would place the British Government in the position of refusing mandate information. If he voted simply yes he would join in what was intended by the original authors as criticism of his Government.

With his usual finesse he placed upon record his construction of the motion as simply asking for information and embodying no criticism of Great Britain, and then voted for it.

The request will now be forwarded to the Governments involved.

De Gama Opens Assembly.

Five minutes after the third annual Assembly of the League of Nations opened today, the relation of the United States to the League was in the minds of all present, as the question whether the League was dead or not was being discussed by Senhor Dominicio da Gama, head of the Brazilian delegation.

As President of the Council of the League, Senhor da Gama opened the meeting. The former Ambassador to Washington, replying to those who said the League was dead, quoted from Molière's "Precieuses Ridicules" as follows: "Les gens que vous tues se portent assez bien."

"Those persons you kill are enjoying pretty good health."

"Three years' existence is not very long in the life of a Constitution such as ours," said Senhor da Gama, "but

Indian Chief Leaves 15 Squaws to Minnesota State Senator

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 4.—Fifteen Indian squaws, ten buckets of war paint, several bales of feathers and other state regalia, were willed to State Senator Patrick H. McGarry of Walker by Chief Schmoc-Ond-Mom of the Leech Lake Reservation in Northern Minnesota, who died recently, the Senator announced today.

Senator McGarry, who had befriended the chief, said today he was undecided as to what he would do with the bequests.

IGNORES BELL, DIES AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

KILL BOY, ABANDON CAR

Peter Rust, a baker, was killed and his wife was badly injured when their automobile was struck by a Long Island Railroad train at Greenport yesterday. John Green, a helper, jumped just before the collision and escaped injury.

The accident could have been avoided had not Rust believed that he knew the train schedules so well that he could disregard the warning bell he heard ringing at the Terry Lane crossing. He drove straight ahead in the belief that no train was coming, because none was due at that time at that place. But one of the special trains put into operation to take care of the Labor Day crowds was approaching. Rust saw it when he got on the tracks, but could not beat it across. The engine struck his automobile and turned it over beside the tracks, spilling loaves of bread for several yards around. Mr. and Mrs. Rust were unconscious when they were picked up. They were taken to the Greenport Hospital, where Rust died as he was being taken to the operating table. His wife was reported in a serious condition from a fracture of the skull.

Abandon Touring Car After Killing Boy.

After striking another automobile and killing a two-year-old boy at West Islip, L. I., yesterday, the occupants of a Paige touring car escaped, but left their machine behind. The boy was Arthur Lubell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lubell of Southampton. The accident occurred on a curve on the Montauk Highway. According to the police, the Paige automobile pulled out of a long line of cars on the west-bound track and swerved into the east-bound track.

On the east-boupnd track was a smaller automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Lubell, their sons Edward and Arthur, their daughter Esther and Barney Barnett and his son Nathan of 65 Lenox Avenue, Manhattan. Trying to pass the cars ahead of it on the curve, the police say, the Paige crashed head-on into the smaller car.

Everybody in the small car was thrown to the ground and the car was wrecked. The baby, Arthur, landed on his head. He was taken to Dr. George S. King's private sanitarium at Bay Shore, where he died soon after. The other occupants of the small car were attended at the sanitarium for cuts and bruises. The Paige car was only slightly damaged, but its occupants deserted it under cover of the confusion. According to the police, its license number was 1,010,000, which is of so recent a series of license numbers that it has not yet been received at New York Police Headquarters from Albany.

Two Boys Knocked Down.

While trying to cross 118th Street and Fifth Avenue last night, Herbert Weiss, 15, of 205 East 114th Street, and William Matlowsky, 16, of 1,488 Fifth Avenue, were knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Philip T. Krieger of 112 West 118th Street. Patrolman James of the West 123d Street Station, who was nearby, summoned an ambulance from Harlem Hospital. Dr. Joseph Kearney attended Weiss for lacerations of the face and Matlowsky for bodily bruises, and they left for their homes.

An auto driven by Richard Roche of 263 Tremont Avenue, the Bronx, collided yesterday with a horse and wagon driven by Dominick Massier of 2,424 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, at 188th Street and Webster Avenue. Roche was not injured, but Massier and another man on the wagon, John Sparno of 403 Cambreleng Avenue, the Bronx, received lacerations and contusions. After being attended they went home.

Mrs. Marie Allen, 33, of 234 West 114th Street, was knocked down and injured

JUSTICE CLARKE OUT OF SUPREME COURT; TO WORK FOR LEAGUE

Ohio Democrat Sends Resignation to Harding—Sutherland to Succeed Him.

WILL AID "PUBLIC CAUSES"

MAY ENTER 1924 CAMPAIGN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—President Harding today accepted the resignation of John Hessin Clarke, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and will nominate George Sutherland, former Senator from Utah, to succeed him.

Justice Clarke's resignation will take effect, according to his wishes, on Sept. 18, his sixty-fifth birthday. In his letter to the President, he expressed a desire to leave the bench to devote himself to "some public causes in ways in which I can not serve them while holding important public office." Dispatches from his home at Youngstown, Ohio, state his friends believe that Justice Clarke intends to participate actively in the movement to bring the United States into the League of Nations.

Although Justice Clarke's resignation after but six years' service caused surprise, it has long been more or less of an open secret that the President would offer the next vacancy in the Supreme Court to Mr. Sutherland, who, in addition to having been one of Mr. Harding's most trusted advisers during the Presidential campaign, is one of the country's leading lawyers and a former President of the American Bar Association. Mr. Sutherland is expected to return soon from Europe, where he represented the United States at The Hague in the arbitration of Norway's claims for certain of her ships requisitioned by the Shipping Board during the war.

Harding Announces Resignation.

The announcement of Justice Clarke's resignation was made by President Harding in the following statement in his own handwriting:

"The President today received the resignation of Justice John H. Clarke as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Bench, effective Sept. 18. Justice Clarke addressed the President from his home in Youngstown, Ohio, and explained that he reaches the age of 65 on Sept. 18, and desires to retire in order to conform to his own philosophy of life and serve his neighbors and some public causes in a way that he cannot serve them while holding important office.

"The President announced that he would accept the resignation in accordance with Justice Clarke's wishes, and will send to the Senate the nomination of George Sutherland of Utah for the vacancy made by Justice Clarke's retirement."

Politicians were interested in Justice Clarke's intention to quit the Supreme Court before he was eligible for retirement in order to engage in "some public causes" which he could not serve while on the bench. There was an unconfirmed rumor that he was resigning in order to take part in the 1924 Presidential campaign.

A Progressive Ohio Democrat.

Justice Clarke is a Democrat and was appointed by President Wilson to succeed Secretary Hughes when the latter resigned from the Supreme Court to accept the Republican nomination for President in 1916. He has been long associated politically with Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, and he has expressed disappointment to many of his friends that Mr. Baker, for whom he has high regard, was not more fully appreciated by the American people. Upon Mr. Baker's recommendation, President Wilson appointed him Federal Judge for the Cleveland district in 1914 and two years later to the Supreme Court.

Justice Clarke has been a progressive Democrat and campaigned for many liberal policies at a time when they were considered almost revolutionary. On the Supreme Bench he stood with Justice Brandeis in subscribing to the minority opinions in a number of recent important decisions.

In 1903 he was an unsuccessful candidate for United States Senator against Mark Hanna, and in that campaign he was one of the first public political advocates of the direct election of United States Senators by the people; 2-cent

Harding Holds Many Jobs As His Staff Takes Holiday

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The captain of the Nancy brig, who after a series of cannibalistic episodes considered himself everything from cook to crew of the ship, occupied few more jobs than did President Harding this morning when he sat down to his desk in the executive offices.

With the exception of the ever active Secret Service men and policemen, the remainder of the White House office personnel, stenographers and clerks, had a Labor Day holiday.

The President was his own office force. Justice Clarke's resignation from the Supreme Court lay on his desk. Acting as his own stenographer, Mr. Harding wrote a little piece for the newspapers about it and his intention to appoint former Senator George Sutherland of Utah to the vacancy.

As in the old days on the Marion Daily Star, he wrote it with a short stub pencil, using one side of the paper. He handed it personally to the newspaper correspondents and then returned to his office, where he worked until luncheon time.

HOPE MINERS LIVE AS BLAST IS HEARD

MAY BE ONLY FALLING ROCK

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 4.—The forty-six miners entombed in the Argonaut Mine since they were trapped by fire eight days ago may be alive. Waning hope revived today when a shift of their comrades who are driving a tunnel through from the adjoining Kennedy Mine came to the surface and announced that the faint rumble of signals had reached them from the depths of the Argonaut shaft.

The rescue party had fired two signal blasts, continuing their intermittent attempts to communicate with their entombed comrades as they drove their shaft nearer and nearer to their rocky prison. Then they paused, pressing their ears against the solid walls, breathless, eyes tight shut, as they concentrated on the single sense of hearing.

They had tried often, with baffling silence their only answer. They had no real hope. For hours they had been forcing weary bodies, wasting against the hard rock that stands between them and their fellows. Then, suddenly, tired muscles stiffened, lustreless eyes flashed open in the murk of the tunnel. There was a response! Five distinct, though muffled, reports reached them, the men said. They were positive they could not have been sounds made by falling rock. They agreed that they must have been signals exploded by some, at least, of the imprisoned men who had survived.

Town Wild With Excitement.

When the workers stepped out of the cage at the surface, to be relieved by fresh men, Jackson went wild. The whole mine community, clustered at the mouth of the shaft, heard and believed. All, that is, but V. S. Garbarini, Superintendent of the Argonaut, who did not dare to credit the news lest in the end it should mean only greater anguish for those who waited, and Fred L. Howell of the Engineers' Directing Committee, who believes the noise may have been made by falling rock.

Though hoping devoutly that the good news may be true, Garbarini shook his head doubtfully.

"I fear it is a mistake," he said. "I do not think that it can be so."

Garbarini, Lowell and others charged with some degree of official responsibility are chary of giving credence to any hope that may prove false, but to the men working against time to reach their fellows 4,000 feet below ground in one of the richest gold mines in the world, and to those who can only watch and wait, the report of the signals has given new heart.

The tunnel drivers, in the Kennedy mine, stripped to the waist, sweating like fighters in the ring, working like demons, believe that the next twenty-four hours will tell the story.

Air Drills in Action.

The air drills are in action. The rescue workers were able to use them for the first time Saturday against the face of hard greenstone of the cross cut on the 3,000-foot level of the Kennedy mine. This formation is the hardest miners have to contend with, but the men have made marvelous progress in boring through it. There was fifty feet of this stone to penetrate. More than half of this footage has been conquered. Last night when the men forced their way through twenty feet of it.

When the stone wall is conquered there will be 300 feet of old drift to battle against, but this, it is believed, is in good condition and will not seriously delay the advance of the rescuers. The drift is through hard formation and should, the miners say, still be in good condition.

In the 3,700-foot level of the Kennedy Mine, where rescuers also are working, signal blasts are being set off every four hours. If the men in the Argonaut Mine are alive and hear these or the others that are being set off in the Kennedy levels, it is hoped that it will put new heart in them to combat their awful predicament.

So anxious are the men to hasten the work of rescue that several miners were slightly gassed in the Kennedy

MAY CHOOSE NEITHER HEARST NOR SMITH; LATEST POLITICAL TIP

EXPECT FIGHT AT SYRACUSE

JUDGE WAGNER CONSIDERED

Ex-Lieutenant Governor a Possible Choice of Murphy to Head State Ticket.

With the Democratic State Convention only three weeks off, there is a growing conviction among Democrats both in this city and up-State that the party nomination for Governor will go to a compromise candidate.

The principal contestants for the place at the head of the Democratic State ticket at present are William R. Hearst, who has made a strong bid for it with the active backing of his political protegé, Mayor Hylan, and ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith, who entered the contest recently to head off the editor-politician.

In voicing this opinion, the Democratic politicians are pointing to the bitter hostility which has existed for the last two or three years between Mr. Hearst and ex-Governor Smith as likely to precipitate a struggle between the Hearst forces and the supporters of Smith in the convention which will render necessary the elimination of both in the interest of harmony.

Both Still in the Field.

All this, of course, is predicated on a presumption that Mr. Hearst will stay in the uneven fight and permit his name to go before the convention. As yet there is no indication that he will withdraw. Only yesterday, in fact, William F. Cleaners of Buffalo, manager of the Hearst pre-convention campaign, asserted that Mr. Hearst would surely be placed in nomination at the Syracuse convention and added that in his opinion the name of the publisher would be the only one to go before the convention.

Of that, however, there is not the slightest probability. Regardless of what other aspirants for the Gubernatorial nomination may do, ex-Governor Smith is certain to remain in the field as long as does his sworn political enemy, the former Independence League leader.

Mr. Smith has told his friends that he expects to go to Syracuse to lead in person a finish fight on Mr. Hearst, even if this should make it necessary for him to take a nomination which he does not want. Moreover, it is known that to attain his purpose he will go to the convention prepared to excoriate the editor with very much the same outspokenness and vehemence that, while Governor, he applied in an onslaught at Carnegie Hall.

Friends of Mr. Smith say that, with Hearst eliminated, he would be only too glad to retire himself and give way to some compromise candidate on whom both factions could agree. It is understood that he has told Tammany Leader Murphy and some of the leaders up-State that "this is his attitude. Mr. Smith realises that under no circumstances would he be in a position to enlist the support of the Hearst newspapers in this city and up-State, where, in addition to his Rochester organ, which this week is to be converted from a weekly into a daily newspaper, Mr. Hearst expects to have one, possibly two daily newspapers before the campaign gets under way.

Justice Wagner a Possibility.

Charles Murphy is expected back in town either today or Wednesday, when it is expected a general survey of the field will be made at conferences with up-State leaders to select the compromise candidate for Governor, as well as candidates for other places on the State ticket. So far Mr. Murphy has given no inkling of whom he has in mind to fill the place after Hearst and Smith are out of the way. Among Tammany politicians there were surmises that Murphy might pick Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner who, as member of the Assembly and the Senate, as Democratic leader and President pro tem. of the latter body, and finally as Lieutenant Governor, had every opportunity, during more than a dozen years at Albany, to familiarize himself with the State Government. It is not believed that Mr. Hearst would have any ground for withholding from Justice Wagner the support of his newspapers, which the Tammany chieftain and other Democratic leaders regard as essential to party success in the State campaign.

GOMPERS DECLARES INJUNCTION ILLEGAL; LABOR FUND STARTED HERE TO FIGHT IT; ONLY NORMAL DELAY ON BIG TRAVEL DAY

Roads Plan to Rush Hard Coal Supplies; Plenty of Cars Are Available, Says Loree

There need be no fear of an anthracite coal shortage because of failure of the railroads to carry all that the mines offer, L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson and of the Conference of Eastern Railroad Presidents, declared yesterday.

A conference of representatives of the seven Eastern anthracite-carrying roads, the Erie, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, Pennsylvania, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna and Lehigh Valley, will be held today to discuss the coal-carrying situation. Mr. Loree said these roads would be able to carry all the coal offered for shipment.

The Delaware & Hudson had 7,000 idle coal cars, he said, and the other railroads had sufficient idle rolling stock to meet the demand for cars caused by the reopening of the mines. He said that, despite reports to the contrary, the mines were in excellent condition, as the maintenance men, carpenters and pumpers remained at work during the strike, so that few mines had been flooded, and that the shoring had been kept in good repair.

It was learned that the State Fuel Administrator, announcement of whose appointment by Governor Miller is expected today, is likely to cancel the requisition for 100,000 tons of bituminous coal placed with the Federal Fuel Distributor by the Governor's Coal Commission. The Federal official has sent a number of orders under this requisition to different mines, but so far the producers in each case have insisted on a price in excess of the Hoover fair price of $3.50 a ton at the mines for Pocahontas and $4.50 a ton for New River coal on Aug. 16, when the requisition was made.

The Governor's commission, which will be succeeded today by the State Fuel Administrator, has refused to accept coal at an advanced price.

ROADS UNHAMPERED BY LABOR DAY RUSH

SOME THROUGH TRAINS LATE

Homecoming and Outgoing Travelers Put at 500,000—Stations Are Jammed.

Despite the shopmen's strike, railroads entering New York yesterday handled with but comparatively little delay what road officials declared to be the heaviest Labor Day traffic on record.

The only serious inconvenience to holiday excursionists came late yesterday, when some trains were from one-half to two hours late, due to the heavy traffic jam. Railroad executives declared that these delays had no connection with the strike, but were due to the moving of long, heavily-loaded trains, extra trains and added sections.

Apparently delayed in their start for home by the rain, thousands of persons packed the railroad terminals in the city last night as out-of-towners starting for home mingled with the incoming holiday travelers. The crowds, augmented by hundreds waiting in the stations for friends and relatives, created what station attendants said was one of the worst jams in history.

Extra cars and equipment were being utilized by all roads in handling the incoming and outgoing traffic, and it was estimated by railroad officials that more than 500,000 persons were being taken care of. Extra police and station attendants were on duty at both the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations to handle the crowds.

Showing Pleases Officials.

Typical of the statements issued by the railroads was the one made public by the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which had some delays, due to heavy traffic. This statement said:

"We have not been inconvenienced by the strike. Practically all trains have suffered some delay, but nothing unusual. The only delays are those caused by the unusually heavy traffic. We are well satisfied with the splendid showing in handling this traffic, for it is but further proof that the roads have not been crippled by the shopmen's strike."

While traffic was heavy throughout the day, the big rush did not come until late yesterday afternoon, after the rain had stopped. Starting at 4 o'clock, the Pennsylvania Station, Grand Central Terminal and the New York Central station at 125th Street became the objectives of thousands of holiday travelers leaving and returning to the city, who filled the stations in swiftly increasing masses. Within a few hours the stations were packed so densely that progress through the waiting rooms and at

DEMAND VOTE HERE ON GENERAL STRIKE

Labor Council Resolution Will Be Acted Upon at a Meeting Tonight.

AROUSED BY INJUNCTION

Plasterers Are First to Pledge $45,000 of $100,000 to Be Raised in Fortnight.

Organized labor in this district, which appears to be greatly aroused over the injunction against the striking shopmen obtained by Attorney General Daugherty, held many Labor Day meetings, at which the matter was discussed, and financial and moral support was voted the shopmen.

The first organization to announce an immediate, sizable fund for the strikers was the International Plasterers' Union, whose officials said that $45,000 would be subscribed at once through assessments. Other local union representatives said that they intended to raise funds, and it was predicted that at least $100,000 would be raised within two weeks for the shopmen in the New York district.

A demand is in preparation here that the American Federation of Labor hold a special convention in this city at once to call a general strike throughout the country in protest against Attorney General Daugherty's injunction move. Union leaders said that a resolution had been drafted and would be presented tonight at the special meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Council, which has been called to consider the strike situation. Plans also have been nearly completed, it was said, to nullify the effect of the injunction by having volunteers from unions outside the shop crafts take over the direction of the strike, conduct meetings and handle the relief work.

Writ Servers Arrive.

While the union leaders were in secret conference with the heads of the striking shopmen in this district yesterday, a half dozen Federal process servers arrived in the city from Chicago armed with writs. So far as could be learned not one of the strike leaders in the district was found, although the union heads expect these writs to be served before the week ends.

The sudden uprising here came as a surprise to leaders of the striking shopmen, who, while knowing they would receive financial support, did not anticipate any such aggressive action as the demand for a general strike, it was learned. They were first apprised of the proposed program for tonight's meeting when they were called into secret conference with the heads of outside labor unions yesterday.

Behind closed doors in a downtown office building the resolution calling upon Samuel Gompers to call a special convention was drafted. This resolution, it was learned, reviewed the shopmen's cause and attacked the Administration for resorting to the injunction to "break" the strike and declares that the time is opportune to take concerted action. The resolution, it was predicted, would be adopted unanimously by representatives of the 800,000 organized workers in the Central Trades and Labor Council.

Since Saturday, it was reported yesterday, strike leaders and representatives of the Central Trades and Labor Council had been conferring on plans to combat the effects of the Attorney General's injunction. Under these plans, strike leaders, it was said, would be in position to "twirl their thumbs, put their feet on their desks and idly observe to the letter the terms of the injunction, while other volunteer workers recruited from the ranks of organized labor will indirectly direct the strike."

To offset this direction, union leaders said, the Attorney General would have to get out injunctions against so many labor men that to accomplish that per-

APPEALS TO CLAYTON ACT

Gompers, in Philadelphia Speech, Says Injunction Violates it.

HE DENOUNCES DAUGHERTY

Says Attorney General's Action Is a Confession That Shopmen Are Near Victory.

SILENT ON GENERAL STRIKE

"Better Ask Burns, the Detective," He Replies to Questioner on That Subject.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in a Labor Day address here today, said that the injunction issued against the railroad shopmen last week was a violation of the Constitution and laws of the land. He characterized the action of Attorney General Daugherty as "exercising a power never dreamed of in the history of the Republic."

The injunction, he said, was wrong in principle and in fact, and was a confession that the shopmen had nearly won their strike. He urged that the unions furnish money to support the women and children of the strikers.

"The men must fight and take care of themselves," he declared.

Both President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty, Mr. Gompers contended, had advocated legislation to bring about "Compulsory Labor." The party of Lincoln which freed the slaves, he said, was now trying to force compulsory labor on whites and blacks.

Exhorts Unions to Stand Firm.

Mr. Gompers spoke under the auspices of the Central Labor Union of Philadelphia at Point Breeze Park. Frequent heavy showers broke up the afternoon program of the union's outing and it was late in the day when he began his speech, which was interrupted by more showers and several times by questioners in the closely packed pavilion where he spoke.

In introducing the Federation President, John A. Voll, International President of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Union, said that, according to Washington dispatches, labor leaders had been admonished to speak carefully or "the Gobline would get them." He declared that the open shop was dead, "despite the efforts of the Administration to rescue it from oblivion."

Telling his hearers that he came to Philadelphia to deliver a message of hope and encouragement to men and women who believed in freedom, justice and democracy, Mr. Gompers said that the present was a time when organized labor must resolve more firmly to stand for the Declaration of Independence and the constitutional guarantees of the Republic.

"In view of existing conditions and circumstances," he said, "now is the time that tries men's souls to overcome tyranny and injustice, and to maintain the fundamental principles of America."

War on Company Unions.

Mr. Gompers compared the labor movement of years ago with the movement at present said that a company union was "a union dictated by the company and not a workers' union."

"We are not going to have any such unions, if we can help it," he declared, "and we can help it."

The labor President said that after the war a drive was made by hostile forces among employers to reduce wages, but that labor refused "to consent to bend the knee to any industrial autocracy."

The drive is also on for the non-union shop under the cloak of the open shop, he added, and some men were so treacherous as to call the open shop the "New American Plan" for the purpose of reducing wages and the standard of living.

Taking up the cause of the shopmen, he said that the spirit of real America was exemplified by these workers. He brought cheers from the crowd when he declared that the "tide of lower wages has stopped and we are on the road to a better day."

He mentioned the fact that there have been disturbances and that strikers had been accused. "They are not interfering with the operation of the roads," he said. "Let the railroad employers operate them."

Attacks Harding and Daugherty.

Mr. Gompers said that Mr. Harding, as Senator and President, and Attorney General Daugherty had advocated legislation that meant "compulsory labor." Despite the President's appeal to Congress on Aug. 18 to put "teeth" into the railroad labor law, he said, Congress had so far refused to do so, and Mr. Daugherty resorted to the injunction, more far-reaching than any legislation.

Mr. Gompers referred to reports that he must speak carefully and not violate the injunction. He said that was the way to frighten timid people and children.

"I wonder who is to do the frightening business," he remarked, and mentioned William J. Burns, Director of the Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice.

"I hold that the issuance of the injunction at the behest of the Administration is wrong, not only in principle

Theodore A. Bell Killed in Auto Smash; Twice Candidate for Governor of California

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Sept. 4.—Theodore A. Bell, San Francisco, attorney, former Congressman from California, twice candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket and widely known as a leader of opposition to enactment of prohibition acts, was killed in an automobile accident here tonight.

Theodore Arlington Bell of San Francisco had been high in the councils of the Democratic Party in his State and in the nation for many years. He was a Californian by birth, though his ancestors on both sides were pioneers of New England. He was born in Vallejo on July 28, 1872, and educated in a country school. He taught school for two years.

After that he turned to law, being admitted to the bar on his twenty-first birthday. He practiced throughout his life, having been particularly active in the past few years as counsel for the California Grape Growers' Protective League, which fought hard to stay the coming of prohibition.

Though his native State honored Mr. Bell by sending him to Congress in 1902, it refused him a second term in that office and twice turned down his aspirations for the Governorship. He was the unanimous choice of his party's convention in 1906, but was defeated at the polls. In 1910 he ran for that office again and suffered a second defeat. Before he went to Congress he had served as District Attorney of Napa County for eight years.

Bell presided as temporary chairman over the Democratic National Convention of 1908 in Denver as the personal choice of William J. Bryan, who became the party's national standard bearer. Twelve years later Bell and Bryan clashed at another Democratic convention, that in San Francisco in 1920, when Bryan appeared before the Resolutions Committee to advocate a dry plank in the national platform and Bell spoke for a wet one. It was Bell who drew from Mr. Bryan an admission that he had received from the Anti-Saloon League pay for some speeches he had delivered.

Householders to Have Priority in Hard Coal; Hoover for Distribution and Price Control

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Emergency control of distribution and prices of anthracite coal will be taken soon by Secretary Hoover at a conference in Philadelphia with operators and miners engaged in the industry, it was said today at the Commerce Department. An emergency organization along the same lines as was used for handling bituminous coal is expected, with as much priority as possible for householders in order to insure them a supply of winter fuel.

The Philadelphia conference will be convened as soon as arrangements already started can be completed, officials here holding that the long cessation of hard coal production necessitates immediate steps to accelerate distribution if citizen consumers' supply is to be assured.

Decision as to distribution plans, however, officials indicated, might await the ratification of the anthracite agreement by the Mine Workers' Tri-District Convention, to meet in Wilkes-Barre this week.

The possibility was foreseen that fuel legislation, now pending before Congress, might become a law in time to enable anthracite distribution on a large scale to come under the control of the Federal program, as the output of hard coal was not expected to reach anything like a normal figure in less than thirty days.

Meanwhile, officials declared, plans for anthracite distribution would follow the lines adopted by Federal Fuel Distributer Spencer and the Interstate Commerce Commission through the distribution of coal, under priorities to consumers classified according to their importance. In the distribution of anthracite officials asserted, household consumers probably would have the right of way as much as possible in order that homes might be supplied with fuel next Winter.

but in fact," he declared, "it is a confession that the railroad shopmen have nearly won their strike. If they had about lost it, I doubt if the Administration would have used all its power to get the injunction and frightened the life out of the men. The injunction does not sit well on the minds of men in Congress who refused to enact legislation wanted by the Administration."

Says Clayton Act Is Violated.

Mr. Gompers said that railroad employes were free men and had the right to strike if they wanted to do so. He had his secretary read the sixth and seventeenth sections of the Clayton Act and resuming his speech, declared that the injunction was a violation of both sections.

"Men wonder at impatience, unrest and resentment," Mr. Gompers said. "The combination of finance and big business is making more radicalism; indeed, it is a manufacturing plant of radicalism in this country."

When Mr. Gompers closed a man in the crowd who spoke with a foreign accent and said he was a member of the Carpenters' Union, asked whether he thought there should be a general strike.

"Better ask Burns, the detective," Mr. Gompers replied.

"Do you or Mr. Burns run the federation?" the man persisted.

"If that is a conundrum, I give it up," said the labor leader.

SAYS FEDERATION WILL BACK STRIKERS

Woll Declares Labor Will Array Itself Against Personal Government.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, which opens a conference here on Wednesday, will consider the demand for a general strike to aid the railroad shopmen. Attorney General Daugherty's recent statements will be taken up, and the sessions promise to be the most important in the history of organized labor. A statement issued by Matthew Woll, Vice President of the Federation, who has taken a prominent part in the Federation's fight on injunctions and its efforts to obtain remedial legislation, sets forth the attitude of the Federation.

"While the Executive Council of the Federation has not the authority to call a general strike," he said, "in my opinion the labor movement of America will stand shoulder to shoulder with the striking railroad workers; that it will encourage, support, furnish sustenance and provide intelligent and fearless leadership if the Government succeeds in silencing present leaders.

"I am sure the American Labor movement will array itself on the side of Constitutional Government and against Personal Government and dictorship, and that it will champion the people's rights against usurpation either by the Judiciary or the Executive Department of the Government. It is no longer a question of protecting vested interests under the cloak of protecting public convenience and necessity. It is now a question of protecting the people's rights and liberties against encroachment from judicial proclamation and executive despotism. An attempt will be made to keep the deliberations of the committee secret. Although it has been stated by President Samuel Gompers that the conference would begin on Saturday, it was learned today that reservations for the labor leaders had been made for Wednesday. An ocean front suite has been reserved for Mr. Gompers, and it is understood that the council will discuss the railroad and coal strikes there.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—An attempt to interview Samuel Gompers late tonight concerning a report that organized labor leaders throughout the country were taking a secret ballot on the advisability of calling a general strike as a retaliatory measure against the recent Federal injunction enjoining the striking railway shopmen resulted in the labor chief's refusal either to deny or affirm the report, or make any statement whatsoever concerning it.

It is believed that Mr. Gompers, who is registered at a local hotel, will leave for Atlantic City tomorrow to be on hand to meet the heads of organized labor, who, according to advices from the shore resort, will meet there Wednesday instead of next Saturday.

MEMPHIS EDITOR HELD; INJUNCTION VIOLATOR

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Charged with contempt of the Federal Court in publishing a vituperative article denouncing strikebreakers, Jacob Cohen, editor and publisher of The Labor Review, was arrested following the filing of a criminal information against him by United States Attorney S. Eugene Murray.

The publisher is charged specifically with violating the letter and spirit of the injunctions granted to the Frisco, Illinois Central and Yazoo & Mississippi Valley Railroads several weeks ago. The offending editorial was a scathing denunciation of non-union men who are working for the railroads as substitutes for the union shopmen who have been on strike since July 1. A portion of the editorial is copied in the bill and attention of the Court is called especially to the free use of the words "snake," "traitor," "dirty scabs" and "industrial scavengers" in referring to the strikebreakers.

One sentence which the District Attorney included in his bill as an offensive utterance and as violative of the injunction was:

"But if a scab had the gold-producing touch of a Midas or the wealth of Croesus he would never be able to buy back the respect of his fellow-workers that he lost when he disgraced himself and his family by becoming an industrial scavenger."

The heading of the editorial, "Dirty Scabs," is also copied in the bill filed by Mr. Murray.

The District Attorney filed his bill this morning and Judge Ross immediately issued an instanter attachment for Cohen's arrest. Deputy Marshal C. L. McWaters served the process in the afternoon at Edgewood Park, where Cohen was found participating in the Labor Day celebration. He accepted arrest calmly and with a smile, read the bill and the court's order, but said nothing.

He got into an ambulance with the deputy and two or three prominent labor leaders and drove to the home of Commissioner George H. Poole, who, after a brief conference with the District Attorney, released the prisoner on his own recognizance until tomorrow, when he will offer a bond in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance before Judge Ross on Sept. 18.

LAYS STRIKES TO OPEN SHOP

Kentucky Miners' Official Attacks Rockefeller Industrial Plan.

SOUTH FORK, Pa., Sept. 4.—Sole responsibility for industrial unrest and all the strikes of 1922 rests with the "open-shop" policy, Samuel Pascoe, President of District 50 (Kentucky) of the United Mine Workers, declared in a Labor Day speech here today.

"The Rockefeller industrial plan is beyond any question a monumental blunder," he asserted. "The open-shop policy of Judge Gary and the co-called American open-shop plan of the Manufacturers' Association and the National Chamber of Commerce are the real causes of unrest among the wage workers of today, and they are solely responsible for all strikes of 1922.

"In my opinion the so-called open-shop plans are real incubators for I. W. W.ism, Bolshevism and all other kinds of un-American organizations that have started up in our country."

DAVIS HAILS LABOR, SCORES DISORDERS

"No Gibbet Is Too High on Which to Hang Train Wreckers," Labor Secretary Asserts.

HE FAVORS A SAVING WAGE

And Believes That Unions Will Retain Most of the High Wages Won in War.

MOOSEHEART, Ill., Sept. 4.—American labor has made great strides in the past year, Secretary Davis, of the Labor Department, declared today in a Labor Day address. In spite of unemployment, he said, it has fought off all attempts to decrease wages levels set up during the war, and safely passed a war crisis. Workingmen "grown accustomed to comforts in life not tasted before," he added, "will now find them preserved throughout the future."

Secretary Davis deplored instances of violence in connection with strikes, declaring that "no gibbet can be built too high for those who execute such dastardly deeds as the "deliberate" wrecking of a train recently at Gary, Ind.

"All the power of law and order in America must be extended to the utmost to exterminate the class of men who hark back to the Dark Ages in their disregard of property and human life," the Secretary declared. "They can have no part in our America of today."

Those who plan or countenance "such horrors" he said, "were equally guilty" with the actual perpetrators. Referring specifically to the recent "slaughter" of workingmen in the State of Illinois, Mr. Davis described it as a "revolting spectacle" which "advanced not a jot the cause in which the men fell."

"Despite the pressure of a tremendous mass of unemployed, despite the efforts of a few reactionary employers who selfishly sought to take advantage of the distress of labor and the nation, we have kept the general level of wages up," he declared. "I am safe in saying the average compensation of the man who toils today is within a few per cent. of what it was a year ago, and some have received an increase.

"Today we have some men in industry who protest with noisy virtue that they favor high wages, and that they pay high wages. A little inquiry into these deceptive averages, however, soon reveals that the high wages are paid to specialized workers, so-called experts who work with plat and map. This appeals to me not at all, because they as a class are able to take care of themselves. I am for a saving wage for the man who works with his hands—the man who, in the words of the Scripture, 'earns his bread in the sweat of his face,' the man who swings a hammer or a pick."

Says High Wages Mean Prosperity.

Continuation of high wage levels, Mr. Davis predicted, would bring prosperity in the United States because it would increase the nation's consuming power. There have been industrial conflicts, he said, referring to the mines, rail, and textile strikes, which have meant "incalculable loss," and loss that "will reach every man, woman, and child in America."

"One great prerequisite there is to continued progress on the path of prosperity," he continued, "that is industrial peace. Employer and worker must join forces if the campaign is to be completely successful. Surely American genius can find a way to put its own house in order, to bring to an end the destructions industrial warfare, that saps the very lifeblood of progress and prosperity.

"These strikes give deplorable opportunity to the passions of unscrupulous men on both sides of each controversy. They open the way to the cruel and calculating, the blood-thirsty and irresponsible.

After condemning instances of violence in the rail and mine strikes, he said:

"We must and will find a way to end this fratricidal strike in industry. We must and will find means to settle these industrial disputes without recourse to the futile arbitrament of force. American industry must find a method that will avert these industrial disturbances and will give to the American workman an adequate wage, a saving wage. This must be to the end that the worker is guarded against the loss of wages, the employer against the loss of profits and the public against the loss of service which comes through these suspensions of work. We must put an end to the suffering and privation, the bitterness and hatred, which these conflicts engender and which tend to poison our whole industrial system.

"I venture to say that not one industrial dispute out of a thousand has ever been permanently settled except in one way—by the negotiations of reasonable men, in a reasonable frame of mind, who sat down to discuss the issues in a spirit of fairness and co-operation. We must ultimately come to the state of negotiation for settlement. . . . Why cannot we put the peace conference before the struggle? Why cannot we make the appeal to reason and fairness before we make the drastic and misconceived appeal to force?

"I am a firm believer in the ultimate fairness and justice of mankind. I believe that no differences between employer and employes are so great that they cannot be adjusted, no gulf so wide that it cannot be bridged, if both sides will gather around the council table in a spirit of earnest co-operation. Experience backs this belief."

CANADIAN RAIL CUTS UPHELD

Conciliation Board Approves Reductions in Shopmen's Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—A victory for the Canadian railways is the result of the majority report of the Board of Conciliation on the protests of railway shopmen against a cut in wages. The award confirms in substance the reduction which was put into effect on July 16 last, on the same lines as the reduction ordered by the United States Railway Labor Board.

A minority report is also issued by the representative of the shopmen on the board, James Simpson of Toronto. The majority report is signed by Isaac Pitblado, K. C., of Winnipeg, representing the companies, and Alex Smith, K. C., of Ottawa, the Chairman.

Mr. Simpson's minority report asserts that the Conciliation Board should have definitely decided the wage scale, whereas the railways and the majority report maintain that this was not the dispute a issue, and that it was only for the board to confirm or otherwise the cut put into effect by the roads.

Figures have been issued officially by the Department of Labor at Ottawa, but copies are in the hands of the parties at Montreal.

Previous to the convening of the board a strike vote of the shopmen was taken. Ninety per cent. of the men voting for a strike.

What action the shopmen will now take cannot be definitely learned, but there is a possibility of a strike being called. There is nothing in the Conciliation Act to compel the railways, on which the board sat, to force one or other of the parties to accept a board's finding.

Floats Showing Strikers' Tent Colonies Feature Uniontown March.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4.—Ten thousand or more men and women, many of them striking miners and their families from the Fayette coke district, marched through the streets of Uniontown in the Labor Day parade. A squad of mounted State policemen and numbers of others on foot were scattered through the town.

Floats in the parade showed tent colonies of striking miners, one of them carrying a cottage, organ at which a young woman sat, playing "Home, Sweet Home," as the procession moved along. They marched to the baseball park, where a mass meeting was to be held this afternoon.

The same course will be followed, labor leaders said, as to relief work among the families of the strikers. This work would be directed by outside agencies in the labor cause, and not a cent would pass through the shopcrafts unions treasuries to be tied up by the injunction.

These plans are expected to be formally presented at tonight's meeting of the council, which will be held at Beethoven Hall, East Fifth Street, and which it is expected, will be attended by delegates from every labor union in the city. Regardless of the injunction, leaders of the striking shopmen have asserted that they expected to address the meeting.

Union leaders last night appeared hopeful that the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its meeting in Atlantic City would give the resolution calling for a convention favorable attention, in event it was adopted. They said that, in any case, a mammoth mass meeting in protest against the injunction would be held within a few days at Madison Square Garden.

Should a general strike fell through, union leaders said, the "Attorney General will find his answer from organized labor when the ballots are counted in the Fall elections."

Asked regarding the plans of the Central Labor Council, John Sullivan, President of the council, said:

"We are going to devise ways and means of aiding the striking shopmen and further their cause. I was greatly surprised at the injunction move on the part of the Government. I think this will aid the strikers greatly by arousing the sympathy of all liberty-loving people.

"Aside from this, the action of the Government will cement the Industrial Workers of the World and other outlaw elements so that authorized leaders will have greater difficulty in maintaining their position as guardians of American principles involved in the present situation."

Several largely attended union meetings were held yesterday in the Labor Temple, East Eighty-fourth Street, at which resolutions were adopted pledging financial and moral support to the shopmen.

Peter G. Cook, Vice President of the International Plasterers' Union, said that an assessment of $1 a member had been voted, and that at least $45,000 would be available at once.

"My organization," said Mr. Cook, "will leave no stone unturned to see that the striking shopmen receive everything due them within the law, which is no more than their just due.

"Injunction or no injunction, we are not going to permit the families of the strikers to suffer. Thousands of dollars will soon be forthcoming for their aid in this district. Organized labor is aroused."

Further Aid Pledged.

Following an outing attended by 10,000 members of the District Council of America, of the Building and Common Laborers' Union at Whitestone, L. I., yesterday, Paul Vaccarelli, President of the organization, announced that the meeting had gone on record to support the shopmen's strike, pledging $1 per man as an initial contribution and adopting a resolution declaring that additional support without limit would be forthcoming. He estimated that $15,000 would be immediately available.

Reports of additional pledges of financial aid continued to roll into the offices of the union leaders in the Labor Temple last night, where a temporary headquarters was established.

Local Federal authorities would make no statement regarding the process servers with the injunction writ who appeared at the strike headquarters in the Continental Hotel and made inquiries regarding the whereabouts of the strike leaders. While John J. Dowd, Chairman of the strike committee, whose home is in Bayonne, N. J., was in the city the greater part of the day, his whereabouts was kept secret. David Williams, Secretary of the committee, did not return from his home at Allentown, Pa.

Union headquarters at the Continental Hotel remained open until a late hour last night. A stream of reports were received showing that a near tie-up on Labor Day union meetings in this district there was an overwhelming sentiment for a general strike and support of the shopmen's cause.

According to the union leaders, the railroad heads have been put on the defensive and will be forced either to admit the truth of Mr. Daugherty's "gloomy picture of the condition of railroad equipment and transportation results," or come out into the open in a direct clash with the administration. Either move on the part of the railway executives, leaders said, would be to the shopmen's advantage.

Comment in railroad circles yesterday was limited to practically a repetition of their views published on Sunday. In the absence of Chairman J. Dewitt Cuyler of the American Railway Executives, who is completing his vacation at Bar Harbor, Me., and his assistant, Robert S. Binkerd, who went to the Adirondacks over the holidays, no collective attempt had been made by the executives to make public their position, as a result of the injunction development.

Because yesterday was a holiday, the regular weekly meeting of the Eastern Presidents' Conference was not held. On Friday, President Alex J. Cassatt of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, Chairman of the conference, said he did not intend to call the railroad heads together this week, but it was thought in railroad circles yesterday that, in view of the difficulty now to the strike situation as a result of the injunction, Mr. Loree would call a meeting for either Wednesday or Thursday. Until after this meeting the Eastern executives will withhold comment on the injunction, although it is well known that they are not too pleased with the Government's move.

BOSTON PARADE AIDS FUNDS

Shop Strikers March Despite Rain, and Receive Coins in Flag.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—While a steady downpour drenched the marchers in the annual Labor Day parade here today, a large American flag carried by a dozen members of the striking railroad shopcrafts' union gathered a considerable amount of coins thrown by spectators along the route and the detail bearing the flag was changed several times. Several thousand men of various labor crafts and a few women, chiefly telephone operators, were in line.

There had been speculation as to whether the shopmen would participate in the procession, in view of the Federal temporary injunction granted last week, but it was decided that inasmuch as none of the local shopcraft leaders had been served with restraining orders up to date no violation would be involved in parading.

Some of the signs carried by the shopmen read: "Why Don't They Cut the Salary of the Executives?" "Tenth Week and Going Strong." "Think It Over on Election Day." Our Motto—No Surrender." "We Fought for Democracy and Got 25 Cents an Hour."

More than once the procession was disbanded when the downpour became too strenuous for the marchers. At one time it seemed that the demonstration would be carried no further, until suddenly the members of the Roofers' Union came swinging down the street behind a band, singing in unison. This put new enthusiasm into the others and soon all those who had taken shelter in doorways and under awnings fell into line again.

MORE ARRESTS MADE IN RAIL INJUNCTION

ENGINE EXPLODES, 2 DEAD

Many Locomotives Reported Disabled—Pennsylvania Sheriff Shot Making Arrests.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Labor Day, the sixty-sixth day of the railway shopmen's strike, brought additional arrests by United States Deputy Marshals posted in shop districts to watch for possible outbursts.

Two deputies were walking toward the Illinois Central shops at Burnside when they saw a man throwing stones through a window into the residence of a working shopman.

"What's the idea?" one deputy asked him.

"This louse is working and keeping good men out of jobs," said the stone thrower.

The deputies arrested him and took him to the Federal Building. He said he was Stephen Gora of 9,339 Woodlawn Avenue.

Another squad of deputies found John Kloboski, who lives at Fordam's Camp, near Burnside, picketing at the gate of the Illinois Central shops.

"In the name of the United States Government I order you to move on," one deputy said to Kloboski.

"D—— the Government," said Kloboski, according to the deputies. "The Government can't keep me from doing what I want to." He also was arrested.

Hugh Noonan, a former Illinois Central Railway shopman, who was arrested on Sunday for alleged violation of the Daugherty injunction, was released today. According to federal authorities he was under the influence of liquor at the time he was said to have jeered at shopmen on their way to work.

The police today received a call from Forty-eighth Street and the Illinois Central Railway tracks, where it was found a heavy steel bar had been placed across the rails.

That the attempt at train wrecking was a misconceived prank of young boys was concluded from a statement of Norman H. Ayres, 4752 Lake Park Avenue, who sent in the police call. He said he had seen boys, ranging in age from six to ten years, place the obstruction. Several trains, including the "golf special" bound for Flossmoor, thundered by shortly after the track had been cleared.

Two Killed in Boiler Explosion.

SAYRE, Pa., Sept. 4.—Two men, Clyde Phenix and Columbus Fuller, both white, of Noxen, Pa., employed at the Lehigh Valley Railroad roundhouse, are dead as the result of the explosion of the boiler on a slow freight locomotive No. 808 early today.

Phenix, employed as a machinist helper, was instantly killed. Fuller, a machinist, died from a fractured skull five hours later.

Two others, Archie Goodwin of Meshoppen Creek, N. Y., and Philip Johnson of Philadelphia, were badly scalded, but will probably recover. Lack of water in the boiler of the locomotive is given as the cause of the explosion. It became dry and cold water was turned into it.

Dr. A. B. Lyons, Coroner of Bradford County, will conduct an investigation.

Many Locomotives Disabled.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Stoning of a rain from Cleveland in the mountains near this Erie divisional point and an epidemic of disorders among locomotives was reported today by road officials.

Yardmaster Wallace said that since midnight every big engine had suddenly developed trouble and had to be taken back into the yard for repairs before it could start its journey. In most cases, he said, it had been found that the airbrakes would not work, oil cups had been broken, or fires would not draw properly. About five-thousand men normally are employed in the shops where the strike is in progress.

The Cleveland train arrived with three windows broken. The crew reported that a volley of stones had pattered against the cars early this morning.

A change of engines always is made here. The Cleveland train was delayed an hour because three locomotives had to be brought out before one could be found which could pull it. Last night's train for Chicago became stalled near Middletown and had to be sent from here.

Sheriff Shot, 10 Arrested.

SMOCK, Pa., Sept. 4.—Deputy Sheriff William Fairchild was shot early this morning.

Fairchild had arrested two men for carrying concealed weapons and was taking them to Uniontown when he said, he was fired upon from a hillside. A bullet passed through his lungs.

Ten men escaped, but eight other men were arrested in connection with the shooting.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 4.—A group of men in a closely curtained automobile fired a bullet into a building in the Big Four Railroad's coach yards here today and several railroad guards, who occupied the building, narrowly escaped being struck.

The guards returned the fire, and are of the opinion that one of the autoists was hit, for as the machine was driven rapidly away a scream of pain was heard. The guards pursued the automobile for some distance, but lost the trail.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 4.—The arrest of L. A. Taliaferro, a barber of Clifton Forge, has been ordered by the United States District Court on a charge of counseling with striking employes of the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

It is alleged that Taliaferro posted a sign in his shop announcing that "scabs" would not be served.

POSTOFFICE TO OPPOSE RADICALISM, WORK SAYS

It Will Guard Loyal Employes From Agitators, He Tells National Association.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The present postal administration "has no thought of advertising reforms or instituting radicalism, or of performing impossible things," Postmaster General Work declared in a Labor Day address here today before the annual convention of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks.

"It conceives its duty to be that of an administrator of statute laws," said Dr. Work, and "to compel an honest day's work for a legally stipulated wage."

"It intends," he added, "to protect its loyal workers from any whose theory is that 'the Government owes them a living,' from those who are willing to steal from their employers through sabotage of time—whose motto is 'shorter hours, less work and more wages'—and to protect them from those who would rob the Treasury of the people by padding the payroll with unnecessary employes.

"But we do want to advance rapidly the compensation of those who are diligent," he declared; "to improve working environments, diminish night hours, protect the virtuous against contact with the vicious, to avoid unfruitful service, to relinquish to postal employes for their own use fragmentary time that the service, although paying for it, cannot use."

Salaries paid to postal employes compare favorably with those in other industries, Dr. Work declared, adding that he would look with no favor on any suggestion to lower them.

"But I know," he said, "and you must realize, that high-priced labor must be more efficiently employed than cheap labor."

DENVER, Col., Sept. 4.—The National Association of Supervisory Postoffice Employes, in session here, received the Postal Administration's "continued appreciation of your labors," particularly in the railroad strike situation, in a Labor Day address today by W. Irving Glover, Third Assistant Postmaster General.

"In the trouble which has been existing recently between the railroads and certain of their employes," he said, "the Post Office Department has been caused considerable annoyance, but, with the able administration of the functions of its many thousand supervisory officials, little difficulty or delay has resulted in the handling of the mails. Not only has the first class mail been promptly handled, but down to the last parcel post package."

Mr. Glover attributed the decrease in postal savings to industrial conditions, the comparatively low rate of interest, investments in Treasury savings and the "apathy of postmasters."

On June 30, 1921, he said, "we had on deposit in postal savings a trifle less than $152,000,000, that amount being held by more than 400,000 depositors. Today we have on deposit $147,000,000, with about 420,000 depositors—a loss in the year of almost $15,000,000 and 50,000 depositors. Since then, this loss has increased. The peak of postal savings deposits was reached in March, 1919, just after the close of the war activities, when the deposits passed the $170,000,000 mark. Since that time the system has suffered a gradual and steady decrease. Although during 1919 and 1920 the amounts deposited were steadily increasing, the net result of our activities showed a loss due to the tremendously heavy withdrawals which were being made."

the entrances and exists and to and from the tracks became a matter of patient pushing and squirming.

At the Pennsylvania Station it was announced that six to eight extra sections were added to each train carrying passengers from out-of-town resorts to New York. Each of the arriving sections was filled to capacity. Apparently the rain had delayed the start of thousands of persons, who would have returned on earlier trains. These travelers had to find room among those who traveled at the peak of the homeward-bound rush. The extra sections of the trains and the time lost in taking on passengers resulted in trains making slower progress than ordinarily.

Labor Day marks the end of the camping season, and the incoming swarms of campers increased the burden of the traffic. This also was responsible for an unusual baggage service. Outside the stations hundreds of taxi-cabs scurried back and forth, bringing other thousands and carrying away the arriving holiday travelers.

The Long Island railroad announced that the calling off of the championship tennis matches at Forest Hills released fifteen extra trains which were immediately pressed into service to aid in carrying the holiday crowds.

Investigation of train arrival records at the station master's office at the Pennsylvania station last night disclosed that most of the important through trains arrived about on time, although some of them from distant points were from one to three and a half hours late. These trains did not run in sections, but many of the local expresses did, notably one from Long Branch, which began to arrive after 10:15 o'clock, when it was due, and came in seven sections.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

St. Louisian, due 1:32 P. M., arrived 2:14 P. M., 42 minutes late.

Pennsylvania Limited, due 5:30 P. M., arrived 6:44 P. M., 14 minutes late.

St. Louis and Chicago Express, due 5:50 P. M., arrived 7:16 P. M., 1 hour and 26 minutes late.

Pittsburgh Limited Express, due 7:50 P. M., arrived 7:55 P. M., 5 minutes late.

LEHIGH VALLEY.

Black Diamond Express, due 9:47 P. M., arrived 10:07 P. M., 1 hour and 20 minutes late.

NEW YORK, NEW HAVEN & HARTFORD.

Pittsburgh Express, due 4:15 P. M., arrived 9:25 P. M., 1 hour and 10 minutes late.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Birmingham Special, due 6:10 P. M., arrived 9:00 P. M., 2 hours and 40 minutes late.

Some of the Long Island trains were also late, one from Greenport arriving 45 minutes behind time.

Forty-five thousand persons arrived at the Grand Central Terminal on forty-two special trains over the New York Central and the New Haven systems between 3 o'clock in the afternoon and midnight. With the exception of one section of the Twentieth Century Limited the majority of the through trains on the New York Central yesterday morning arrived about on time, with a few running on an average of thirty minutes late.

Officials in charge of the station master's office at the Grand Central terminal said last night that there had been some delays to afternoon trains, due to the extraordinary volume of traffic, but nothing unusual under holiday conditions.

G. H. Wilson, Superintendent of the terminal, said that the passengers were handled without incident. In the afternoon he explained there was a delay of upward of an hour for three or four trains on the Harlem River Division, because of the heavy rainfall. He said the delay occurred at Fordham, where the sewers backed up and flooded the rails. The water rose fifteen inches, he added, and it was decided not to send the trains through because it was feared it would reach the motors of the electric power cars. The water receded in about fifty minutes, and service was resumed up to midnight on that line without interruption.

CHICAGO TRAVEL NORMAL.

Roads Report No Difficulty in Handling Holiday Crowds.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Labor Day travel in and out of Chicago created no undue strain on the railroads centring here. All railroads reported normal conditions.

There is no great movement here on Labor Day as in New York, although today's boxing matches at Michigan City, Ind., resulted in some 3,000 Chicagoans traveling there and back without undue difficulty. The railroads report a normal volume of travel for this season of the year, but that it in no way taxed their facilities.

SEARCH FIRE RUINS FOR MORE VICTIMS

Authorities Are Still Unable to Account for One Worker in Pittsburgh Shops.

INVESTIGATIONS STARTED

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4.—With seven bodies recovered, workmen are today still searching the ruins of the commissary, storage and bunk house of the Pennsylvania Railroad, destroyed by fire yesterday. At least one man remains to be accounted for and ten of the more than fifty men who had narrow escapes from the burning building in which they were trapped while sleeping in their bunks are seriously injured and burned.

Investigation of the origin of the fire is in progress by Federal, State, county and city authorities and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Before 9 o'clock this morning Safety Director McCandless had fifteen or twenty of the men of the bunk house at his office for examination. With the Director were Superintendent of Police J. C. Calhoun and Captain of Detectives Leff. While the men were assembled at the entrance of the Director's room they offered various opinions on the origin of the fire. Some declared they heard an explosion, while others said they heard none. Practically all were sleeping at the time the fire started.

The loss sustained by the railroad was divided as follows by R. F. Ferries, Division Engineer: The building, $50,000; supplies, $150,000, and damage to an oil house, tracks and cars, $10,000.

When the wrecking crews of the railroad and city firemen and police began their work of tearing away the still burning timbers of the commissary this morning in their search for the victims, the barking of a dog directed their efforts toward a pile of charred timbers in the eastern end of the building. The dog's bark was stilled before the timbers were removed and it was revealed the bodies of four men close together. Clasped in the arms of one of the dead workmen was the body of a fox terrier.

From the position of the man's body it appeared that in his last moments he tried to shield his pet with his body, thereby permitting the dog to live long enough to sound the call for help after the men had died.

Deputy Coroner Black was removing the dog's body to the morgue assistance believing it to be the body of a child, when Policeman Pinkle called his attention to the error.

Gerald Harper, aged 24 years, one of the victims, was a 1923 graduate and an honor student of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He had been working as a machinist for the railroad company since Aug. 2, seeking to earn extra money to continue his studies. Harper's home was in Blacksville, W. Va., a mountain town in Pendleton County. His body with the other victims remains unclaimed at the county morgue.

According to Dr. T. S. Baker, Acting President of Carnegie Institute, Harper was one of the most brilliant students to be graduated from that school. Following the school term he did several odd jobs about the city and then obtained employment with the railroad, taking the place of the striking shopmen.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Thirteen officials and employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad were questioned this afternoon at a general meeting of city, county and Federal representatives who are investigating the fire which destroyed a Pennsylvania Railroad bunkhouse yesterday.

The only announcement authorized after the conference was that the railroad men had admitted the building was a tinder box as it had been used for many months as a storehouse for grease, oil and waste, and the floors and walls had become saturated, they declared.

Another conference will be held tomorrow.

Several persons who were picked up by the police in the fire area last night, have been released. The Coroner's investigation was being continued tonight and it is expected that the inquest will be held the latter part of this week.

The initial route of the investigation seemingly corroborated statements of survivors that the fire started in a mass of greasy waste inside the building and that it could not have been caused by sparks from locomotives passing on tracks nearby.

DEPUTIES REFUSE TO GO.

Marshals Remain on the Southern to Enforce Injunction.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 4.—United States Marshal Brownlow Jackson announced tonight that Deputy United States Marshals who have been on duty in the local yards of the Southern Railway since the strike of shopmen began would remain on the property and go to any point in the yards where they are needed to carry out the terms of Present Harding's recent proclamation calling for the observance of law and order by all persons in connection with the strike.

Switchmen and firemen walked out on Saturday in protest against the presence of the deputies, and then when the guards were withdrawn by the railway management the newly organized force of shopmen walked out because of the removal of this protection.

Today a "rearrangement" of the guards was effected by an unnamed official of the road with apparent satisfaction to both sides in the controversy. The details of the arrangement were not made public, but an end of the paralysis of transportation through the yards was accomplished.

United States Deputy Marshals, Mr. Jackson said, are not on duty as guards for the property other than to see that interstate commerce and the United States mails are not delayed through interference with equipment or molesting of employes, and "this they will do, acting under authority of the United States Government."

B. & O. TO PAY SHOP BONUS.

One Dollar a Day Added Owing to Abnormal Working Conditions.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 4.—A bonus of $1 a day will be paid to all skilled mechanics on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad System beginning Sept. 1, it was announced by officials of the road here today. This bonus is being added to the rate of the shopmen as compensation for the abnormal conditions under which they are working, it was said.

Announcement was also made of the company's decision to erect barracks for shop employes at Brunswick and Cumberland, Md., and at Benwood, W. Va. The barracks will be located on railroad property and will provide sleeping quarters and food for the men during the strike.

Confirmation of the report that the Baltimore & Ohio had bought the Wilkes-Barre & Hazleton Railroad, which is used for the same purpose was made today.

The working force at the Mount Clare shops is becoming more normal every day, officials stated. About forty old employes reported for duty this morning, and reports from over the system indicate that many other strikers are returning to the company.

COLLISION ON BURLINGTON.

Head-On Crash in Nebraska Slightly Injures Four Passengers.

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb., Sept. 4.—Westbound passenger train No. 23 on the Burlington, Omaha to Casper, Wyoming, collided head-on with an eastbound freight train late today, slightly injuring four passengers.

The two engines telescoped, the engine crews escaping by jumping.

ONE BARRIER TO PASS FOR HARD COAL PEACE

Miners Are Expected to Ratify Agreement, Though Some Opposition Is Developing.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—One more barrier remains to be surmounted before the miners in the hard coal fields go back to work. A convention of the three anthracite districts, set to meet in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., at 2 P. M., on Wednesday, must ratify the agreement reached between the subcommittee of the anthracite miners' Scale Committee and the operators' Policies Committee.

The full Scale Committee, after a meeting which lasted nearly all night, finally approved the action of the subcommittee in entering the agreement. Despite the unexpected opposition, the vote was declared to have been overwhelmingly in favor of the approval.

The opponents of the plan held out for a wage contract at the rates obtaining when the suspension began on April 1, to last until April 1, 1924. The compromise data agreed upon was Aug. 31, 1923.

Sentiment from the anthracite fields, as nearly as can be judged, indicates that the proposals will be ratified.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover is expected here tomorrow or the next day to confer with the miners, operators and Strike Fund Committee in ready plans for efficient distribution and price control of the supply of anthracite, which, according to forecasts, will begin moving from the mines within a week.

John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers, and Philip J. Murray, Vice President of the organization, announced their intention of leaving here tomorrow for Wilkes-Barre.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 4.—Sentiment was divided today among miners here as to the prospects of ratification of the Pepper-Reed agreement by the Tri-District Convention, to be convened in Wilkes-Barre on Wednesday.

The more conservative miners, who are said to constitute a majority, greeted the news of tentative settlement with joy having been especially pleased with the one-year phase of the proposal of the operators.

On the other hand, the more radical members of the miners' organization declare they will demand a two-year agreement, dating from Sept. 1. Several statements have been issued by them inferring that the men would not return to work unless all of their nineteen demands, which included the check off, are granted by the operators.

BIG PARADES IN CANADA.

Labor Organizations Turn Out in Force Throughout Dominion.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—Parades of labor organizations, with industrial and other floats and displays, featured the general celebration of Labor Day in most of the cities of the Dominion today. As a rule the demonstrations were quiet, although there were attempts on the part of the more radical elements, notably in Toronto, to stage counter celebrations.

In Toronto the official celebrations converged on the Canadian National Exhibition, which had one of its busiest days. Labor leaders were guests at the Directors' luncheon.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—Nearly 30,000 men, representing every organized trade in Montreal, turned out to day in the biggest Labor Day parade this city has seen. Eighty-five organizations participated.

RIOT AT MOSLEM FEAST.

One Dead, 15 Hurt in Disorders at Town Near Calcutta.

CALCUTTA, Sept. 4.—The Muharram festival, celebrating the first month of the Mohammedan year, passed quietly here. At Telinipera, however, a town about twenty miles from Calcutta, serious rioting and clashes between Hindus and Mohammedans took place in the course of a Mohammedan procession, when Hindus looted the bazaar.

Armed police restored order after one person had been killed and fifteen wounded, and then when the A curfew period has been entered between 9 o'clock at night and 4 o'clock in the morning. The holding of meetings or processions and the carrying of weapons of any kind have been prohibited.

POWERS DISCUSS MEDIATION

Greeks Said to Be Willing to Evacuate Asia Minor, but Turks Demand Thrace.

VENICE CONFERENCE NEAR

Its Work Complicated by the Turks' Military Successes, Which Mean Increased Demands.

ATHENS, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—The report of the capture by the Turkish Nationalists of Ushak, an important position on the Greco-Turkish front in Asia Minor, was confirmed here today. Dispatches to newspapers indicate that Brusa may soon fall into the hands of the Kemalists.

A military communiqué issued Saturday says that withdrawal along the whole front continues under pressure of the enemy.

Semi-official reports today declare that the situation has considerably improved, and that the army's morale is excellent.

General Tricoupis, in command of the forces in the field, has been replaced by General Hadjanestis, Commander in Chief in Asia Minor, and General Dousmanis has been appointed Chief of the General Staff. Other important changes in the Greek commands are announced.

SMYRNA, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Two British battleships, the dreadnought Iron Duke and the King George V., have arrived here for the purpose of protecting British interests.

The Turkish advance continues, the entire line of Greeks withdrawing without fighting. Towns and villages in the path of the retreat are being burned, and thousands of Christian refugees are approaching Smyrna, where the churches and schools are already filled. Many are arriving in a starving condition, the women and children especially showing marked signs of suffering.

The American Consulate here is being besieged by Greeks who wish to embark for the United States.

The continued reverses to the Greek Army have caused profound depression among the populace. Kutaia, which is next in importance to Eski-Shehr and Afium Karahissar, has been completely invested by the fast-moving Turkish Nationalists, whose army is in a high state of enthusiasm and jubilation. The fall of Ushak, and even of Brusa, is not unexpected.

The present Greek line runs from Ineguel, south of Brusa, to a point west of Ushak. Since the Turkish offensive began the Greeks have retreated nearly 200 miles. The Greek casualties are said to have been relatively inconsiderable, but the suddenness and the intensity of the Turkish drive, have caused the Greeks to disperse precipitately, and the commanding officers are having difficulty in regrouping their scattered legions.

Grave fears are expressed for the safety of Smyrna. If the Turks capture Ushak they will be on the main railway line to Smyrna, which is about 150 miles westward.

Anxiety is felt for the large Christian population in the war area. It is feared the Turks may take reprisals against them for the action of the Greek army in burning scores of Turkish villages on its advance toward Angora.

The nonresistance and apparent apathy of the Athens Government toward the invasion of the Turks is bringing forth great resentment among the residents of Smyrna, a considerable portion of whom are British, American, French and Italian. They say that the folly of King Constantine in diverting 50,000 of the best troops of Greece to Thrace in a vain endeavor to realize his Constantinople enterprise may cost Greece the whole of Smyrna.

Powers Discuss Mediation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Great Britain, France and Italy are consulting with a view to mediation between the Greeks and the Turkish Nationalists. It is hoped to reach Angora through the Turkish Government in Constantinople. The basis of mediation will probably be the evacuation of Asia Minor by the Greeks, and one of the most serious problems will be that of protecting the Greek and other Christian minorities who will then be left to the mercy of the Turks.

It is realized here that the task of mediation involves considerable difficulties. It has been suggested that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, flushed with his success, may demand the restoration to Turkish rule not only of Asia Minor, but also of Thrace. That would be to raise an impossible demand, as it would mean the upsetting of the only part of the Balkan settlement which seems effective. But it is hoped that, whatever demands Angora may put forward in the first instance, it will in the end listen to reason. As long as the British fleet is in being a Nationalist army, cannot cross the Dardanelles, and it must know that its real military power is limited.

Indeed, in well-informed circles here there is still a disposition to take the accounts of sweeping Turkish successes with a grain of salt. The element of distance seems to experts to have been forgotten, as well as the short time left for effective campaigning in the bleak Anatolian highlands.

With so little authentic information before them, the British experts are not inclined to dogmatize; but they would not be surprised if in a few days the Nationalist offensive proves to have spent its forces. So it is reckoned that the Turks may see before long the wisdom of accepting the main object of their campaign, the Greek evacuation of Asia Minor, without insisting upon impossible terms.

The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent writes:

"It was, I believe, on Friday that the Greek Cabinet, after a protracted and lively sitting, decided that the retention of any part of Asia Minor by the Greek army had become impracticable. Accordingly, it was further decided to communicate this decision to the British Government and to request the latter to intervene with the other Allied Powers and Angora for the purpose of concluding, if possible, with the Kemalists an armistice on the basis of the military evacuation of the Smyrna enclave by Greece. At the same time the Athens Cabinet intimated that it could no longer guarantee the safety of either local Christians or allied nationals at Smyrna.

"The idea of civilian as well as military evacuation by Greek and other Christian elements was put forward subsequently. The decision and request of the Athens Cabinet were made known to the British Foreign Office by the Greek Chargé d'Affaires here on Saturday."

Turks Will Demand Return of Thrace.

ROME, Sept. 4.—As a prelude to the Venice conference for the solution of Near Eastern problems, cannon are roaring in Asia Minor. Preparations in Venice, however, are being energetically pushed on, despite the fact that both the date and scope of the meeting are still very much in the air.

The recent victorious Turkish offensive has completely upset plans for the conference. It was proopsed and accepted by all the parties concerned at a time when the Greeks had advanced far into Asia Minor and the military situation was comparatively stationary. It did not then matter particularly whether the conference was held immediately or in a few months. Now that the Turks are advancing, they wish to have the conference held as soon as possible, in order to have the advantage of might on their side and to be able to point out to the powers that unless the Greeks voluntarily evacuate Asia Minor they will be forced to do so at the point of the bayonet.

The Greeks, on the other hand, knowing that the approaching Winter will soon render military operations impossible, are all for delay, hoping that the snow-blocked mountain passes, which rise to a height of 3,000 feet, may halt the Turkish advance before the beginning of the conference.

The Greeks believe that France is backing the Turks, not because she has any particular animosity against the Greeks or any particular love for the Turks, but merely because she sees in this policy a useful weapon for checking England's colonial expansion in the East.

Fethy Bey, Minister of the Interior of the Angora Government and delegate to the conference, who arrived in Rome this morning, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the Turks would accept nothing less than the withdrawal of the Greeks not only from Asia Minor, but also from Thrace.

The Greek Minister to Rome, who will probably be one of the Greek representatives at the conference, is in Athens receiving instructions. It is understood, however, that the Greeks are ready to evacuate Asia Minor, but insist that substantial guarantees shall be given for the safety of their nationals there, and also that they are willing to discuss restoring Thrace to the Turks.

The Greeks are making frantic efforts to enlist the support of the European powers, declaring that they are in Asia Minor fighting the battle of all Europe, because the Angora Government is the creature of the Bolshevist Government. "A victory for the Turks is a victory for the Bolsheviki; our defeat is a defeat for all constitutional European Governments," they say.

England and France, which are respectively backing Greece and Turkey, are taking a hand in the diplomatic battle raging over the date of the Venice conference, England wishing to have it postponed, and France insisting that it be held immediately. An exchange of notes between Paris and London seems to have had a harmonizing influence, the end of September being tentatively fixed as the date.

The scope of the conference is so far undefined, but it is believed that it will be strictly limited to a settlement of the Greco-Turkish controversy, and it is on that assumption that the two powers are preparing for the struggle in Venice.

Greeks Say Soviets Aided Turks.

The Greeks say they have proof that large shipments of gold have been sent from Russia to Angora; that Turks have been armed and supported in every way by the Bolsheviki. They assert even that many German airplanes are being used in Asia Minor, which reached there via Russia and the Caucasian republics.

It is known that Moscow and Angora on March 16, 1921, concluded a far-reaching commercial agreement, with secret political clauses. Section 2 of this agreement is said to bind each country not to ratify any treaties with a third power to which the other country objects. It was for this reason that the Angora Government failed to ratify the commercial treaties with Italy and France, Russia not having approved them.

ADANA, Asia Minor, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Three Greek army corps in the Eski-Shehr sector of the Greco-Turkish front have been dispersed and almost annihilated by the Turkish Nationalists, according to dispatches received here today from Angora, the seat of the Kemalist Government. The Greeks are retreating in disorder and the Turks have advanced in the Ismid sector to within twelve miles of Erusa, the dispatches say.

CODING GRECO-TURKISH NEWS.

Chicago Tribune Agent's Cryptic Message From Constantinople.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Chicago Tribune's agent in Constantinople sent the following cryptic message today, owing to the strict censorship there, to describe the tense political situation:

"Unload everything." "Domestic troubles and difficulty may bring divorce. George and Raymond sending tubs Pixville. Warren may follow. Scattered family made reunion impossible."

The Tribune coding bureau in Paris interpreted "Unload everything" to mean that the story was worth a big display; "Domestic troubles and difficulty may bring divorce" may mean a fight between France and England over the Near East; "George and Raymond sending tubs Pixville" that Premiers Lloyd George and Poincaré are sending warships to Smyrna; "Warren may follow" that America may also send ships, and "Scattered family made reunion impossible" that it is impossible to reunite the Greek Army.

MORGENTHAU CALLS FOR CHECK ON TURKS

TO HOLD CONSTANTINOPLE

Duty of Allies to Keep It Out of Turkish Control, He Says—Sees It as Future Balkan Capital.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Henry Morgenthau, former American Ambassador at Constantinople, interviewed by the Daily Telegraph on the Near East crisis, expressed himself as deeply concerned with the tragic plight and peril of the Christian minorities in Asia Minor.

"I wonder," stated the former Ambassador, "if 400,000,000 Christians in full control of all the Governments of Europe and America are again going to condone these offenses by the Turkish Government. Will they, like Germany, take the bloody hand of the Turk, forgive him and decorate him as Kaiser Wilhelm has done with the highest orders?

"Will outrageous terrorizing, cruel torturing, driving of women into harems, debauchery of innocent girls, the sale of many of them at 80 cents each, the murdering of hundreds of thousands and the deportation to and starvation in the desert of other hundreds of thousands, the destruction of hundreds of villages and many cities, the willful execution of this whole devilish scheme to annihilate the Armenian, Greek and Syrian Christians of Turkey—will all this go unpunished?

Will the Turks be permitted, aye, even encouraged, by our cowardice in not striking back, to continue to treat all Christians in their power as unbelieving dogs, or will definite steps be promptly taken to rescue permanently the remnants of these old civilized Christian peoples from the fangs of the Turk?"

Mr. Morgenthau said the powers should help to remove the refugees from Anatolia to Thrace and should also be absolutely adamant in refusing to allow the Kemalists to cross the Straits.

"There is no question," he declared, "that the Turks have got the upper hand in Asia Minor, and unless Britain asserts herself by showing that she—and somebody else—has an interest in protecting these Christians the Turks will be as merciless as they were with the Armenians."

"If Britain and France and Italy want to use Constantinople as their storehouse and distributing point for their trade in the East," Mr. Morgenthau proceeded, "they must combine and perhaps take us Americans in and see tha tthe city is properly policed, properly managed and civilised. You know what the Germans did with Hamburg and what a great city they made of it. Constantinople can be made the same. It seems to be the greatest technical error in the development of world commerce to allow this city to lapse back into Turkish control.

"As the population in Constantinople is by a large majority non-Turkish," said Mr. Morgenthau, "Constantinople should be taken under the protection of the League of Nations and under the Allies who have defeated Turkey.

"I want to refer to one of my hobbies, that of putting the Turkish wall back into Asia, of putting the Turks back where they belong. Why should we miss the opportunity that occurs?

"If we miss it, it will be by reason of this narrow-minded, petty competition as to temporary advantages to be gained by concessions from the Turks. We Americans want no concessions. We have been there to help educate, to give, not to receive. We knew that these concessions which others are quarreling about are worth less than one-third under a Turkish government in Constantinople what they would be under a proper government.

"If the European countries have control of Constantinople they can eventually influence the Turks and keep them in check, because the possession or nonpossession of Constantinople determines the status of Turkey. If she obtains Constantinople she becomes a world power again. What sensible person wants Turkey to be a world power again, with increased powers for the making of international mischief?

No matter how other countries may differ on other matters, they must unite and agree on this, to keep Constantinople out of the hands of the Turks. There is only one dream I have, and it is this: For the future safety of the entire world there should be a Balkan federation, and the only possible way to have it is to have a Washington, controlled by none of the separate States, but by a Federal Government, and that future Washington of the Balkan federation is Constantinople. It may take twenty years, but it will be accelerated and will come about if Constantinople now remains under international control."

The Daily Telegraph in an editorial says:

"It is but a few weeks ago that the British Government was pressing the Allied Governments to appoint a commission to investigate the only too well authenticated massacres on the shores of the Black Sea. There is no more urgent question than this, and we hope it may attract the instant attention of the United States Government.

"Americans are familiar with the methods of the Turks from reports of their own devoted Red Cross workers in Asia Minor, and no one speaks with greater authority on this head than Mr. Morgenthau. He emphasizes with earnestness, and even with passion the plain duty of the civilized world towards the Turk, and he speaks out the more solidly because, if other counsels had prevailed the great nation to which he belongs would now have been in charge as a mandatary power of the League of Nations of some of these Christian minorities, and the formidable issues which now threaten to arise would have been avoided. The world never had more reason to regret than now complete dissociation of the United States from the affairs of Turkey and Asia Minor."

JEWEL THIEVES TAKE GOOD LIQUOR ALONG

Rum, Once Neglected, Now Is a Regular Part of the Loot—Some Cellars Like Bank Vaults.

The burglar today steals whisky and wine, as a side line. To carry away spirits in bulk would be too risky, so he makes such peculations merely supplemental to his regular thievings.

"House burglars have the same tastes and inclinations as honest folks—some drink, others do not," said a detective. "In pre-Volstead days burglars of the drinking kind used to regale themselves with the hard stuff they found in a house. If they spied a decanter of whisky on a sideboard they sampled it if they felt like having a drink. But in those days, when good liquor was plentiful, they seldom bothered to carry any away. They knew they could get all they wanted at the corner saloon, and they regarded it as poor business to waste precious time in 'liquoring up.' Today, on the contrary, it is not uncommon for family liquor to disappear simultaneously with the family jewels, and when thieves find spirits to their liking in a house they often take away as much as they conveniently can. They doubtless take the stuff for their own consumption and that of their friends."

In suburban districts in which the wealthy live thieves have broken into country houses with the sole intention of robbing wine cellars. They learn by some underground channel that Mr. So-and-So has a stock of rare wines and liquors in his country home, that he is absent, and that the place is none too well guarded. In several cases burglars have been repulsed with disastrous results in attempting raids on wine cellars in private houses and in others they have been shot or captured.

Before the prohibition law went into effect owners of country homes on Long Island and elsewhere had their wine cellars rebuilt and enlarged. They stocked them with great stores of wines and spirits. Many such cellars are so well stocked that there is little danger of them running dry for a long time to come. Some are veritable bank vaults and it would be difficult for the most expert cracksman to penetrate them.

RALEIGH, N. LEAGUE ASKS ABOUT BRITISH MONOPOLY

the enthusiastic devotion of those who have served it allow us to affirm here and now that the League of Nations has incorporated itself, and in a final way, in the political system of the world as an organ necessary to its normal life.

"It is true certain opponents of the League go so far as to deny its existence and to say that it is dead. To such scornful statements a reply can easily be made by citing the report of the Secretary General which sums up the useful and practical results of its labors."

Super-State Idea Scouted.

"You are living, gentlemen, and must strive to live well. Do not feel dismayed at the scruples of those who are afraid of seeing our institution become a sort of super-state infringing on the sovereignty of individual nations. Criticism of that kind can easily be met by comparing the League of Nations with other international institutions which, although in a lesser degree, are emanations of the States represented in them while the soverignty of those States has in no way been impaired."

This was generally taken as a reference to the Pan-American Union. Concluding, the speaker said:

"This collective work of ours to which is attached the hopes of all men of good-will, of all thinking men of all races, is a labor of love, faith and perseverance. We cannot fail to succeed and must surmount the inherent and inevitable difficulties which we must encounter. We must maintain and develop our work in that disinterested and impartial spirit which is the chief essential of international life."

It had been planned to elect a President at the opening session this morning, but a message from the Government of Peru, saying its delegation would not attend if Augustin Edwards of Chile were elected President, crystallized a certain opposition to the brilliant South American, and the election was postponed until the session at 4 o'clock on the technical excuse that it was necessary to verify the credentials of the delegates.

Meanwhile there was a general review of the situation by the Assembly leaders and when the meeting was resumed the opposition to Senator Edwards died down. The Credentials Committee announced that Peru would not be represented and reported no credentials from Argentina, Bolivia, Honduras, Luxemburg, Nicaragua and Salvador.

Edwards Elected President.

The balloting then took place, Edwards receiving 42 votes, Blanco of Uruguay 1 and Motta of Switzerland 1 of the 44 votes cast.

The rift between Chile and Peru is a reflection of the Tacna-Arica dispute recently aired in Washington and which was the subject of bitter controversy at the last Assembly of the League.

In beginning his task Senhor Edwards made the work of the translators easy for after speaking in French he gave a translation in perfect English. The presiding officer made a very good impression in his difficult task of arranging the committees.

On assuming office Senhor Edwards thanked the Assembly in the name of Latin America and his country for the honor, and paid a tribute to his predecessors, Hymans of Belgium, at the first Assembly and Harneebeek of Holland at the second Assembly.

"On the eve of coming together at Santiago in one of the periodical conferences that were the forerunners of the movement toward international cooperation," he said, "on the eve of confirming the solidarity of an entire continent whose political peculiarities have been recognized by the covenant itself, the American nations cannot but feel the deepest satisfaction upon receiving from the Assembly proof that they are regarded as an essential element for the maintenance of peace and international justice."

As last year, six committees were decided on. A departure was made in assigning the chairmanships to representatives generally of the smaller nations in order to avoid friction of nations in the conduct of the debates.

Committee 1, on the Constitution, is headed by Vittorio Scialoja, Italy; 2, Technical Organization, by Witfeld Chodzko, Poland; 3, Armament Limitation, by Dr. de la Torriente, Cuba; 4, Budget, by Herluf Zahle, Denmark; 5, Social, by W. S. Fielding, Canada, and 6, Politic, by Jonkheer J. Laudon of Holland.

The Assembly hall was crowded to the limit, and many prominent Americans were noted. On the floor were familiar figures of other sessions—Balfour, Cecil, Branting, Imperiali, Hymans, Hyashi, Ishii, Bent, Bourgeois, Hanataux and de Leon. Van Karnebeek was absent, and the aged Lafontaine of Belgium was this time in the press gallery.

Six Vice Presidents of the Assembly will be elected tomorrow.

GENEVA, Sept. 4.—English and French delegates to the Assembly of the League of Nations are in accord to push the project for placing in Austria an international police force under the League as part of a plan to attract capital for that needy nation.

Chancellor Seipel of Austria arrived here today and will appear before the League Council on Wednesday and make his plea for his country, the recent London conference of Premiers having referred the Austrian problem back to the League. It is presumed the British and French will obtain his opinion on their plan. His reply may depend on what assurances he sets regarding the 450,000,000 credit he intends to ask.

GENEVA, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—With the arrival here this morning of Dr. Ignaz Seipel, the Austrian Chancellor, the effort will be renewed to obtain credits for Austria. The Chancellor and the Austrian financiers in Geneva have evolved a plan which they assert, with the help of their political neighbors, will result in industrial freedom.

Chancellor Seipel this afternoon saw M. Motta, Chief of the Swiss delegation to the Assembly, and asked his aid as a Swiss and also as a member of the Assembly to induce that body to report favorably on credits.

"I am visiting all our neighbors in an endeavor to present our case and put some common sense into the handling of the Austrian problem," he said. "Fortunately, we have no enemies, which is making the task simpler. If there is so much money for wars, surely there is some for peace. All that is needed is $60,000,000."

The Vienna banker, M. Braune, one of the financiers accompanying the Chancellor, said:

"For the formation of the Austrian bank of issue the sum of 60,000,000 Swiss francs is being underwritten by two banks. One of these is the Anglo-Austrian and the other is the Bank of the Countries of Central Europe. They represent Anglo-French and Swiss capital. We expect to obtain a total of 100,000,000 Swiss francs.

"The report that Americans are not investing in Austria because of fear of German collapse is unfounded. A German collapse would not directly affect Austria."

EDWARDS'S ELECTION PLEASES WASHINGTON

May, It Is Thought, Sway Argentina and Bolivia to the League.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—News of the election of Agustin Edwards, Chilean Minister in England, as President of the Assembly of the League of Nations, was received with great interest in Latin American diplomatic circles here, satisfaction being generally expressed.

The rise of a South American representative to the highest post of the League, was interpreted as a desire on the part of leading members of that body to insure participation of the Latin-American countries in the affairs of the League.

The Central American countries and Argentina joined, apparently, by Bolivia, are missing from the present meeting, but it is thought that Edwards's election may conceivably bring a change of policies on the part of Argentina and Bolivia. Although the Irigoyen administration of Argentina does not end until October, when the new President Alvear will take the oath, the possibility is discussed in Latin-American circles that the latter, who is known as a strong advocate of the League, may attempt to influence the present Government to change its policy to that which, most probably, he would effect as soon as he enters Casa Rosada.

Furthermore it was said that there would be an actual interest for Argentina to be present at the League, with Chile having reached such a prominent position through Edwards's apointment. This consideration might also move Bolivia to attend, diplomats said.

The fact that the program of the present assembly contains several points of special Latin-American interest, was also pointed out as showing the keen desire of the leaders of the League, to "have Latin-America for the League." Among the matters to be discussed at Geneva is a resolution commending the Chilean plan of disarmament and the Cecil plan of continental or regional conventions. Both are proposals submitted to the fifth Pan-American conference to be held at Santiago next March, the first by Chile and the second by Uruguay, which proposes a Pan-American league of nations. The purpose of avoiding any possibility of the Latin-American countries changing their status as members of the League was seen by the diplomats in the latest election.

What will be the attitude and feeling of the American Government in face of this policy of the League was a matter of conjecture. In the absence of Secretary Hughes no official of the State Department would comment, beyond expressing gratification at the honor bestowed on Chile.

FORESEES AMERICA AS LEAGUE ASSOCIATE

Col. House Predicts Our Entrance In a Role Like That in the World War.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Colonel E. M. House, in an interview published in The London Times on the eve of his return home, declares that the European situation is critical. He wishes to see France provided with adequate guarantees against Germany and suggests that Germany's conditional admission to the League of Nations might provide these.

"Europe," he says, "should remember that there is no likelihood of America becoming a member of the League at present."

He predicts that when America does enter the League it will not be as an ally, but as an associated power, as in the World War, taking part in the proceedings without binding herself to the covenant.

The London Times, commenting editorially on Colonel House's suggestion respecting the League's guarantees toward France, says:

"That, it may be thought, is putting upon the shoulders of the League a burden far too heavy for them to carry."

JUSTICE CLARKE OUT, TO WORK FOR LEAGUE

fares for railroads; independence for the Philippines; publicity of campaign expenditures, and home rule for cities. In 1914 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator but withdrew. He was a stanch supporter of Woodrow Wilson, and recently, addressing a meeting at Cleveland, he advocated cancellation of the allied debt to this country.

Justice's Letters to President.

In his letter tendering his resignation to the President, Justice Clarke wrote:

"I shall be 65 years old on the 18th day of this month. For a long time I have promised what I think is my better self that at that age I would free myself as much as possible from imperative duties to the end that I may have time to read many books which I have not had time to read in a busy life; to travel and to serve my neighbors and some public cause in ways in which I cannot serve them while holding important public office.

"As a beginning of what I hope may at least be a partial realization of this philosophy of my later life, I hereby resign, as of September 18, 1922, the office of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, which I have held during the past six years. With grateful appreciation, my dear Mr. President, of the many courtesies you have shown me through many years, I am

"Sincerely yours,
"JOHN H. CLARKE."

Justice Clarke's departure and Mr. Sutherland's appointment will give the Supreme Court two Democratic and seven Republican members. The two remaining Democrats are Justices Brandies and McReynolds.

Sutherland Adviser to Harding.

Many of President Harding's friends believe that Mr. Sutherland would have been Secretary of State but for the fact that he was born in England, and therefore is ineligible for the Presidency should that office have devolved upon the first member of the Cabinet through the death or disability of both the President and the Vice President. He has had a distinguished career as a lawyer and a Senator.

Mr. Sutherland was born in Buckinghamshire in 1862, received his law degree from the University of Michigan, and was admitted to the bar of Utah a few days after his twenty-first birthday. He served one term in the House and the next year returned to Washington as Senator from Utah. In the Senate he served two terms and was defeated for re-election in 1916 by Senator King.

While in the upper House Mr. Sutherland was regarded as one of the leading lawyers in that body. He was a member of the Judiciary and Foreign Affairs Committees, and his advice and influence was sought as to the constitutionality of many important bills. He had a hand in framing a workmen's compensation act that failed of passage when the Senate's political make-up was changed.

The year following his departure from the Senate Mr. Sutherland was elected President of the American Bar Association. He is the author of "Constitutionality and World Affairs," a book that appeared in 1919.

During Mr. Harding's front-porch campaign for the Presidency in 1920 Mr. Sutherland was at Marion as an adviser to the nominee upon foreign and legal policies that became issues during the campaign. After the election he divided his legal practice between Salt Lake City and Washington. President Harding selected him as Chairman of the Advisory Committee to the American delegation at the Conference on Limitation of Armament. He is credited with having played an important part in formulating the details of the five-power naval agreement.

Clarke Staunch League Advocate.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Desire to further American participation in the League of Nations ranks first among the "public causes" mentioned in Justice Clarke's letter to President Harding giving the reasons for his resignation, according to friends of the Justice here. Mr. Clarke is President of the Vindicator Printing Company, which publishes a daily paper in Youngstown.

Justice Clarke went to Atlantic City Friday evening, after spending a large part of the Summer in Youngstown. Before leaving he said to a friend that his plans for the future were as yet indefinite, but that he hoped to be able to make a voyage around the world, leaving New York in January or February next. He also said that he had accepted several invitations to deliver addresses about Christmas time, the most important of which will be on the League of Nations.

It is well known to the friends of the Justice who have been much of him in recent years that he is profoundly convinced that the future political and business welfare of this country are dependent to a very great degree upon the American Government joining the League of Nations on some terms at an early day. It is believed by many of them that one of the chief reasons for his resigning his high office was the desire to render in a non-political way more service to what he called "that great cause" than he thought it possible for him to render while a member of the Supreme Court.

Justice Clarke intends to return and spend a part of the Autumn in Youngstown, but will probably re-establish his permanent home in Cleveland or New York. He does not intend to resume the practice of law.

BANK MAY ENDORSE GERMANY'S NOTES

Belgium Will Require This Security by American, British or Dutch Institution.

ASKS NO GOLD DEPOSIT

Will, It Is Said, Be Satisfied With Assurance Reichsbank Reserve Will Not Be Touched.

PARIS, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—The possibility of an American bank being asked to guarantee the payment of the six months' treasury notes which Germany is to give to Belgium instead of cash under the recent reparations decision was foreseen tonight, coincident with the departure of the Belgian delegation for Berlin, where negotiations are to begin Wednesday.

M. Delacroix, former Belgium Premier, and M. Bemelmans, left Brussels this evening for Germany, and the other members of the party left Paris. There is no doubt in Belgian circles that the necessary guarantees will be forthcoming, and it is believed that the negotiations will be completed by Saturday.

It is reliably reported that adequate guarantees were promised by Herr Schroeder, head of the German delegation, in Paris, the day the decision was taken by the Reparation Commission, and it only remains to work out the details.

Requirements by Belgium.

Belgium will not ask that 270,000,000 gold marks be transferred from the reserve of the Reichsbank to some foreign bank as security, but will be content with the assurance by Germany that the Reichstank reserve will not be touched during the six months' period. In addition Belgium will require that either a British, Dutch, or American bank guarantee shall be furnished by Germany, so that Belgium could realize any part, or all, of the 270,000,000 during the six months.

The decision of Belgium not to press for the transfer of the Reichsbank gold reserve is due to British efforts. Sir John Bradbury, British member of the commission, has stated to the other members that it would be unfortunate in the interest of German credit, and the ultimate interests of reparations, if any large percentage of the guarantee had to be provided by this gold reserve. In a formal statement tonight on the reparations situation, he declared that, in view of the collapse of the mark since the sittings of the bankers' committee were suspended, any progress in the direction of a loan in the near future could scarcely be hoped for.

The most pressing necessity of the moment, he continued, was to proceed energetically with the reform of German internal finance, with a view to securing budget equilibrium and the stoppage of inflation. Reparation payments, both cash and merchandise, were for the moment limited to an amount for which provision could be made within the budget.

He declared that without the writing down of the reparations total German credit could not be restored, and that unless such restoration took place the German financial structure would collapse and all hope of ever getting any indemnity from Germany must be given up.

Belgium May Call Conference.

Invitations to the proposed conference for discussion of interallied debts and the German indemnity, to which Premier Poincaré referred in his recent reply to the note of the Earl of Balfour, probably will be issued by the Belgian Government instead of by the French, it was said today.

Both Governments are awaiting consent of Great Britain, which is expected within the next few days in the form of an answer to the French Premier's communication. The conference is expected to include not only representatives of the allied powers, but also, if France's intentions are carried out, all the smaller countries which owe France or are otherwise interested in a settlement of German reparations and war debts.

It is now certain that the United States will be formally and impressively asked to attend the meeting, which will be held in Brussels. Although the French Government fully realizes that there has been no change in the attitude of the American Government regarding the remission of debts and participation in European affairs, the view is expressed that the United States will no doubt want to be represented at least in a passive manner at the conference, which is to discuss and, if possible, settle the eventual size of the German indemnity, and will discuss the cancellation, wholly or partially, of the war obligations of the various nations.

The middle of November is now mentioned as the probable date of the meeting, and it is hoped that by that time America will have decided to participate actively.

UNTERMYER PROPOSES INTERNATIONAL MONEY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Three suggestions for amelioration of European conditions were made tonight by Samuel Untermyer, of New York, at a dinner given in his honor at Lansdowne House by H. Gordon Selfridge, proprietor of the great department store here. Among the guests were some of the best known men in the political and journalistic worlds, including C. Macreedy, one of the Coalition Liberal whips; Lord Blyth, Lord Burnham, Walter Runciman, Pomeroy Burton, Sir George Younger and Ralph D. Blumenfeld.

Mr. Untermyer proposed in the first place that the Federal Department of Commerce should organize a system by which industries of the distressed countries of Europe might obtain from America the raw materials they need in return for the manufactured goods they could produce, so long as those did not compete with any American manufactures.

Secondly, he suggested that international currency should be established for those countries in need of currency readjustment, which should be based on their net resources at the outbreak of the war. This new currency would be issued on condition that it be held by each Government in its Treasury, and should not be issued, and that old depreciated paper money should be retired. Then the new currency would be put into circulation by each, based upon the international currency in its Treasury, and each country would be free to decide the quantity of new paper money it would issue.

Mr. Untermyer contended that this would show that since hoarded international currency would have a stable value, new currencies in circulation would also have a fairly stable value, and it would be easy for each Government to check undue fluctuation by the regulation of the amount permitted to be in circulation.

His third point was that after Great Britain had funded her debts to the United States these two countries should cancel the debts owing to them by the other Allies and credit the amount thus canceled against the sums due to them as reparations.

COMMUNISTS OPPOSE ALL STRIKE VIOLENCE

FAVOR MASS ACTION ALONE

See Rail Strike Becoming More General, Opposing Whole "Capitalist State Power."

The Communist Party of America yesterday, in its annual Labor Day manifesto, disapproved of train-wrecking and dynamiting in connection with strikes. The manifesto also declared that the Communist Party of America was "not a secret band of plotters" and did not encourage campaigns of bomb-throwing and sabotage.

"We Communists are in principle opposed to all such individual actions, not because we want to save the capitalists, but because we know that all such terroristic acts are ineffective and would serve to confuse the working masses, poison public opinion against the workers' cause and afford the capitalist Government an excuse to proceed against the workers," the manifesto read in part.

"We do not look upon such methods as methods of the revolution. We are revolutionists and not bomb-throwers. We want to destroy the whole building of capitalist society and not the building of some railway station. The road to the workers' revolution does not lie in train wrecks and petty dynamiting feats, but in bread, huge mass actions—that is, through the organized mass movement of the organized workers.

"It is a base and senseless slander to brand the Communists as a small, sinister band in ambush. We openly declare that we have neither arms nor an armed organization."

The manifesto also admitted that the Communist Party of America is "an underground party," but explained that it is an "underground party" because the "capitalist State powers compel us to be."

It then continued: "The railroad strike is becoming more and more general. Even the strike of the shopmen alone obstructed traffic. The organized workers of the Big Four are out on strike by the tens of thousands. The amalgamation of the craft unions into industrial unions is becoming an even larger factor in the minds of the workers. What has never manifested itself in the history of the American labor movement has already appeared: the idea and the possibility of conducting a general strike throughout the United States. Coal and railroads, fuel and traffic are in danger.

"The extensive strike movement of the workers, which up to the present has been on the defensive, has reached the point at which it now faces the whole capitalist State power. It is quite evident that Harding and his accomplices have determined to destroy the entire strike movement. Attorney General Daugherty has said quite openly that if the workers do not surrender to the bosses 'the Government will destroy the unions.'"

An appeal is made in the manifesto to all workingmen to join the Communists in the formation of a political party to represent "the interests of the whole working class."

DENIES SUPPORT OF REDS.

Iowa Senatorial Candidate Contradicts "Anarchy Meeting" Report.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 4.—Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, Republican nominee for United States Senator from Iowa, in a Labor Day address here answered for the first time the charges of Clyde L. Herring, Democratic nominee, that he was present at a meeting in Chicago last Spring at which the foremost radical leaders of the country were present.

"That I sat as a delegate at this meeting and as a reward I received the assistance of a number of anarchistic leaders who were sent into the State to campaign for me before the primary, I denounce as absolutely false," Colonel Brookhart said.

Colonel Brookhart said there was a conference in Chicago, but nothing of the kind his opponent described. W. H. Johnson of the Machinists' Union and H. E. Wills, Assistant Grand Chief of the Engineers' Brotherhood, informed him of the conference and said its purpose was to "head off some radicals and Socialists in the labor movement in an open conference where the radicals would be many times outnumbered," according to Brookhart. "They said it was their purpose," he continued, "to lead the great solid and reliable part of labor unions to a sound American platform in the old parties and in co-operation with the farmers.

"I was invited to this conference, but it adjourned almost as soon as I got there. I saw there L. E. Sheppard of Cedar Rapids, chief of the conductors; E. J. Manion of the telegraphers, and D. M. Jewell, head of the American Federation's Railway Employes.

"Five engineers, one machinist and one telegrapher came into the State for me during the last two weeks of the campaign. They had no money; they paid their own expenses."

Colonel Brookhart declared that his latch string would always be out to the union men and their leaders and "I don't care how many lawful and open conferences you have in Chicago."

ALFONSO GREETS DENTISTS.

MADRID, Sept. 4.—King Alfonso today opened the sessions of the Odontological Congress at Retiro Park. The delegates number more than 400, representing nineteen nations. Among the delegates are Drs. T. W. Brophy of Chicago and Edward C. Kirk, representing the United States, and Dr. Rojo of Mexico.

The King in the course of his speech thanked the assembly for choosing the capital of Spain for the congress and promised to push forward the project for the creation of a Faculty for the odontological university in Madrid. He alluded to the progress of dental surgery, making special reference to military dentistry, which he considered not solely an act of charity, but an economic function, because man held first place in the value of a nation.

Dr. Brophy also spoke, enumerating the immense strides in dentistry in recent years.

PANAMA DEPUTIES RIOTOUS.

Minority Members Quit Assembly After 30 Minutes of Uproar.

PANAMA, Sept. 4.—The Assembly again adjourned in an uproar today, the session lasting only thirty minutes. On calling the roll the Secretary omitted the names of Deputies Arias and Alvarado, who are under charges, the President explaining that they could no longer be Deputies, having been suspended by the Supreme Court and the National Assembly.

RECORD CROWD AT BEACH.

More Than 250,000 Labor Day Visitors Throng Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—Records for Labor Day attendance at this resort were shattered today when 250,000 visitors came to the beach. Officials of the Reading Railroad reported a 20 per cent. increase in passenger travel for the week-end over last year and the Pennsylvania 15 per cent.

Balmy Summer weather featured the day until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when a heavy rain fell. It was clear again by 8 o'clock in the evening.

Phyllis Cathleen Hosking, arrived late yesterday a first cabin passenger on the Royal Mail Steam Packet Orbita from Southampton to visit her father, James Henry Hosking of 163 Edgeberg Avenue, New Brighton, S. I., whom she had not seen for three years. To her astonishment the immigration officials told her that because she had been born in South Africa she could not land, as the September quota for that country had been exhausted. Mr. Hosking was on the pier, but could not see his daughter, as it was against the immigration laws, the officials said. He waited outside the barrier for two hours and then went home.

Miss Hosking said that she had left South Africa when she was 8 years old and had lived in England ever since. Her father, she said, had come to America three years ago to start a home for her mother and herself. The rest of the family, including two older sisters, were coming over later, Miss Hosking said. She was detained on the ship and will go to Ellis Island this morning. Her father will be allowed to see her there.

Another cabin passenger on the Orbita was Nils Peter Hagemaw, 24, who had been 33 days coming from Natal, South Africa, a good 10,500 miles from New York, only to be stopped at the eleventh hour by the immigration officials because of the quota. Mr. Hagemaw said that he was coming here to attend Moody's Bible Institute in Chicago. It was thought probable by the immigration police officials that the young man might be permitted to enter on the ground that he came as a student.

Two young women from Reading, Pa., wearing knickerbockers and with their hair bobbed, arrived yesterday from Germany on the Orbita after a six weeks' walk tarough Central Europe. They were Laura A. Deen and Emma Fleck and were accompanied by the Rev. L. Griswold Williams, who went about bareheaded and wore a knickerbocker suit, and Mrs. M. B. Nelson, delegate to the Birth Control Conference in London, who acted as chaperon, all from Reading.

The party did a great deal of walking through the Black Forest and other parts of Germany and the Tyrol, where they said the people had taken up the Fourth Movement—living out in the open and communing with nature. Besides being healthy, this form of enjoyment costs nothing, the Rev. Mr. Williams said. They saw the Passion Play at Oberammergau and said that Alois Lang, who is 22 years old, will play the part of Christus eight years hence. He is not related to Anton Lang, who is over 50 years old and who has played the part for many years.

Mr. Williams said that he was a minister of the Universalist Church of Our Father at Reading and director of the Community Players, who produced plays at the Little Theatre. Miss Deem and Miss Fleck were also members of the company, he said. Mrs. Nelson said that the International Conference on Birth Control held last month in London was the most important the organization had ever held. The Malthusian Association in England had joined the Birth Control League and a clinic had been opened in the East End of London.

BLAME FOR EGYPT DISASTER

British Board of Trade Suspends Captain and Censures P. & O. Co.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—A scathing indictment of the methods of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company is contained in the findings today by the Board of Trade acting as a court of inquiry into the loss of the steamship Egypt on May 30 in a collision with the French steamer Seine off the Island of Ushant, when the Egypt was sunk and 100 lives were lost.

Captain Andrew Collyer was found guilty of failure to exercise good order and discipline, and his certificate was suspended for six months. Chief Officer C. W. Wartwright was found guilty of failure to use proper methods to save lives. The owners were censured as guilty of negligence in not taking effective measures to insure compliance with regulations and good discipline.

The court also blamed the officers of the Seine for slowness in coming to the rescue of the sinking vessel. The Egypt's crew consisted of eighty-six Europeans, 208 lascars and other Indians, and the court found that the panic among them was not properly controlled by the European officers, most of whom were unable to speak the Indian dialect. In summing up the court said:

"A great company like the Peninsular and Oriental Line would do well to take a lesson from this unhappy disaster and set for themselves a higher standard of care and efficiency in the future."

RESENTS JEERS; IS STABBED

Shoemaker Gets Two Wounds in Fight With Four Men.

While returning to his home last night after spending his holiday with friends, Frank Giaccio, 37 years old, a shoemaker, of 2,466 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, got into an altercation with four young men while passing the northeast corner of 187th Street and Hughes Avenue and was stabbed twice in the back.

Giaccio, who was accompanied by his friend, Ettore Mezzanetti, 25, of Washington, D. C., resented cat-calls and remarks which they thought were aimed at them by the four men on the corner. During the heated argument that followed several blows were struck and one of the four unidentified men drew a knife and stabbed Giaccio.

Mezzanetti wrested the knife from his assailant and threw it into the street. Upon reaching his home Giaccio fainted. An ambulance was summoned and the wounded man taken to Fordham Hospital. His wounds are not serious. Detectives are searching for Giaccio's assailants.

DECOYED BY HOLD-UP MEN.

Victim Accompanies Thieves on Trolley Ride and Is Beaten and Robbed.

William Barton, 22 years old, who said he lived at 196 Oak Street, Patchogue, L. I., reported to the Jersey City police last night that two robbers had decoyed him to a lonely spot near the Erie Railroad tracks at Fifteenth and Cole Streets, struck him on the head with what he believed was a blackjack and robbed him of $60 and a diamond ring worth $125. He had a deep cut on the left side of the head.

He said he met the men in a saloon in Hoboken, and that they asked him to take a ride on the trolley car with them.

SIMPLE LIFE AT DOORN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—Count von Moltke, nephew of the chief of the Great General Staff of the German Field Army in the first stage of the World War and personal adjutant of the ex-Kaiser at Doorn, at the Sedan Day celebration in Halle gave details of the life of the imperial exile.

"The Kaiser," he said, "is living the simple life in Doorn. His house is no palace, but a modest building, with only fourteen rooms, in a big garden. A small chicken coop is in the back of the orangerie [the German technical term for an Italian garden, as at Potsdam]. When Pomeranian peasant women recently tried to send the Kaiser a few dozen chickens the permission for exportation was refused by the Government.

"The Kaiser has aged a good deal, but he has complete mental youth. The yarns about his woodchopping are nonsense, and just as silly is the report spread in many circles that when once the Kaiser returns to Germany heads will go flying right and left."

Count von Moltke told his hearers that American automobilists had once tried to kidnap the ex-Kaiser, but failed. He also said:

"An attempt was once made to assassinate the Kaiser. A Belgian lurked behind a tree and aimed a revolver at the Kaiser, but threw it away when the Kaiser chanced to look sharply in his direction."

The Count said that the ex-Kaiser received more than 9,000 letters and 1,200 telegrams on his last birthday. He closed his remarks with the expression of the wish that "the Kaiser, as well as his eldest son, might be permitted to end his life in Germany."

The purpose of the news organ is to establish closer co-operation between the various organizations and membership in the federation.

Officers elected were: President, Haskell H. Marks, Rochester, chosen for the fourth consecutive year; Secretary-Treasurer, Joseph B. Silverstein, Rochester; Chairman of Eastern District Division, Joseph Hormats, Troy; Chairman of Western District Division, Samuel Reichler, Utica; Secretary of Woman's Work, Mrs. Henrietta Beeler, Rochester; Secretary of Junior Work, Miss Mildred Winer, Buffalo; Secretary of Athletic Work, Leon Brounstein, Syracuse; Secretary of Publicity, Abram Ginsburg, Elmira; Secretary of Educational Work, Tobias Roth, Rochester.

Zionist work was endorsed in a resolution and co-operation was pledged to the Jewish Welfare Board.

BOY FALLS FOUR STORIES.

Was Playing on Fire-Escape; Narrowly Misses Striking Man on Street

While playing on the fire escape of the fifth floor of his home last night Lawrence Leone, 9, of 153 West 100th Street, fell to the rear courtyard and received serious injuries. He was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital, where physicians said his condition was serious.

In his fall the boy narrowly missed striking James Morrough, who lives on the first floor of the house. He picked up the boy and ran to the West 100th Street Police Station where an ambulance call brought Dr. Merriweather, who found Leone had a fractured skull and possible internal injuries.

The boy's mother fainted when told of her son's injury. She had been in another part of the apartment, she said, when the youngster climbed out on the fire escape in disobedience to her warning.

HONOR GLOBE NAVIGATOR.

Nations Send Warships to Spain for Del Cano's 400th Anniversary.

MADRID, Sept. 4.—The Minister of the Interior reports the arrival at San Sebastian of American, French and Japanese warships to participate in the 400th anniversary of the return to Spain of the Spanish navigator, Juan Sebastian del Cano, after his voyage which marked him as the first circumnavigator of the globe.

King Alfonso is leaving tonight for San Sebastian to take part in the celebration.

Del Cano was the captain of one of Magellan's five ships in the famous trip around the world. After Magellan's death he became the commander of the expedition, and returned to Spain with one ship in 1522.

HOPE MINERS LIVE AS BLAST IS HEARD

3,600-foot level through returning to the face of the drift too soon after blasts were fired. They were all revived. The incident merely shows how they are putting heart and soul into the work of rescue.

Rescuers are tackling the 3,900-foot level of the Kennedy mine also, in the hope of drilling through into the 4,000-foot level of the Argonaut mine. After clearing 250 feet of old tunnel, they will have to drill through 141 feet of quartz. It is generally believed, however, that the rescue crew from the 3,600-foot level will reach the entombed men in the Argonaut drifts first. The rescue crews on the 3,600-foot Kennedy mine level are from the Argonaut staff. They are working seven-hour shifts, with twenty minutes of grueling labor and a brief rest between.

Picked Rescuers at Hand.

There is in Jackson awaiting word that the levels of the Argonaut mine below the fire line are tapped, a picked crew of rescue men. They are all experts in this kind of work—men who know how to combat gas and who are fully equipped with all the latest devices with which to combat it. These rescue men came from all over the United States. They are ready to enter the Argonaut lower levels the moment a passageway is opened, and will go in regardless of gas conditions, and if any men are left alive these men can be trusted to get them out.

The list of missing men is given today as 46. It was discovered this morning that one of those supposedly underground in the Argonaut had quit not long before the explosion and had gone to work in the Kennedy mine. His name had not been taken from the payroll and it was assumed that he was still with the Argonaut forces.

Thursday, say the rescue officials, will be the earliest date on which the imprisoned men can be reached, but this is believed to be too conservative a statement in Jackson. It is thought here that the fate of the men will be known before that time.

Jim Davis, one of the rescue workers in the Kennedy mine, who is one of those who claims to have heard five explosions coming from the Argonaut, which he construed to be signals, believes that the entombed miners might have been able to save their candles and giant powder and to be using the powder for signaling. Davis is positive that the explosions he heard were signals.

If the men or any number of them are brought out alive from the Argonaut drifts they will receive more tender care than they ever imagined could be given to me. A first aid station is to be established under ground in the Kennedy Mine to work on survivors as they undergo the change from underground air to the fresh air of the outside, while another station will be established at the top of the Kennedy shaft to give the men every needed first aid treatment, including food. The Amador County Hospital has secured a big corps of nurses and physicians, and these will be at their stations long before the first man is brought out.

If it could be assured those who wait on the surface that the air in the drift in which the men are has been reasonably pure, there would be great hope in Jackson today. Men can live more than twelve days without food if they have an abundance of water and good air, but there can be no assurances of anything deep down in the Argonaut drifts, and no man dares to promise aught concerning the condition of the unfortunates, who for nine days have been buried, nearly a mile beneath the surface of the earth.

POLICE CONFERENCE DELEGATES ARRIVE

Liners Bring Representatives of Copenhagen and Buenos Aires Departments.

WOMEN DO FINGERPRINTING

The first delegates to attend the International Police Conference here on Sept. 11 arrived yesterday morning on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII. from Copenhagen. The party consisted of Hakon Jorgensen, Deputy Police Commissioner of Copenhagen, Erik Schaffer, a military judge, who is interested in the fingerprint system of identifying criminals, and Miss Ingeborg Heliner-Nielson, one of the best fingerprint experts in Denmark.

She is one of sixteen young women employed in the fingerprint section of the Copenhagen Police Department. Commissioner Jorgensen, who was met at Quarantine by Inspector William T. Davis, representing Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, and M. Henningsen, the Danish Vice Consul, said experience had showed that women do the minute detail work of fingerprinting much better than men, who are inclined to think the job below them, despite the important results achieved.

Commissioner Jorgensen explained to the reporters that the Danish police system permits of describing fingerprint characteristics by numbers, thus simplifying the problem of distributing information. The Commissioner, who invented the system, said it is being taken up by Switzerland, Holland, Germany, Belgium and other countries.

Another delegation arrived later in the day on the Southern Cross of the Munson Line from Buenos Aires. It included Chief of Police Francisco Laguarda, Commissioner of Identification Cesar E. Echeverry and G. Solgado, secretary. They were met by Deputy Police Commissioner Douglas I. McKay, Inspector William T. David and four police lieutenants. The visitors were escorted by motorcycle police from Pier 1, Hoboken, via the Twenty-third Street ferry to the Biltmore Hotel.

REGRETS CONSULATE AFFAIR

Liverpool Post Thinks the British Government Acted Hastily.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Commenting upon the closing of the American Consulate at Newcastle, the Liverpool Post today says:

"It would be extremely regrettable if any trouble, however slight, arose over the action of our Government with regard to the American Consulate at Newcastle. The United States Government is clearly not satisfied that the case against the Consul and Vice-Consul has been made out, and in view of the possibilities of controversy it would perhaps have been better if our Government had delayed its action a week or two.

"From statements that have just been published one can hardly doubt that the American officials were serving their country with some excess of zeal, and our Government was fully justified in what it did; but for the sake of good international relations it is vital that in such cases the Government officials whose conduct is challenged should be convinced that whatever action is taken is fully merited. One would have thought that in any matter involving America in particular this consideration would not have been ignored. * * *

"The incident in itself is, of course, really unimportant, yet it suggests some interesting consideration. The American Government takes the view that Consuls should help American trade. * * * The Newcastle case raises the question of where the line is to be drawn between help that is legitimate and that is illegitimate.

"No doubt it is clear that a Consul must not interest himself in any particular firm or act as agent for any particular commodity, or if he does it must not clash with his duty as an international official. But the awkward thing, so far as America is concerned, is that its shipping is virtually nationalized and, therefore, it might be argued that in working for it Consuls are not forwarding any sectional interest or firm, but are doing general national service."

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Yorkshire Post apologized today for an article published last week purporting to quote a friend of Consul Fred C. Slater as saying Slater had had some trouble in his Consular duties before the revocation by the British Government of his Consular exequatur at Newcastle and the subsequent closure of the Consulate by the American Government. In explaining publication of the article, The Post says it was a case of mistaken identity, and that the experiences related happened, not to Mr. Slater, but to another American.

ACCUSED OF PASSING COUNTERFEIT $10 NOTE

A seaman was arrested last night and taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, charged with passing a counterfeit ten-dollar note after a clerk in Schulte's cigar store at Fiftieth Street and Broadway alleged he had warned him the bill was a counterfeit.

The seaman, who said he was José Pellicer, employed on the steamship Tivivor of the United Fruit Company, at Pier 91 North River, declared he had received the bill in change and did not know it was counterfeit. Aaron Rothe, clerk in the cigar store, said Pellicer had offered the bill to him in payment for a package of cigarettes, and when informed it was worthless left the store. Later, Rothe said, he saw Pellicer enter a motion-picture theatre across the street.

Rothe, according to the police, left his store and met George Bartlett, a clerk in the United Cigar Store at Forty-ninth Street and Broadway. He told him of the counterfeit bill and Bartlett recalled he had taken in two $10 bills within a short time. He examined them, and one of them, it was alleged, was the one which Rothe had refused to accept. Rothe and Bartlett waited until Pellicer left the theatre and pointed him out to Patrolmen Bostic, who arrested him. He was held for the Federal authorities.

"OFF ON 2,200-MILE FLIGHT.

Lieutenant Doolittle Leaves Jacksonville for San Diego.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 4.—Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, army aviator, hopped off from the beach at Neptune at 10:09 o'clock tonight for a flight of more than 2,200 miles by airplane to San Diego, Cal., which he hopes to reach in time for dinner tomorrow night. He planned only one stop, at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, for fuel.

The airplane was the one in which the aviator flew Saturday from Kelly Field, San Antonio, to Jacksonville, a distance of 1,000 miles without a stop or a "mile" by the motor.

Lieutenant Doolittle waited for low tide when the beach for miles was between 400 and 500 feet in width, as hard as concrete and as smooth as a table. When he attempted to start early last month it was only a short time after the tide began to ebb and in running over the comparatively narrow beach the machine struck soft sand, swerved and was wrecked in the surf.

The Lieutenant is making the flight alone and at his own expense to demonstrate the feasibility of moving aircraft long distances quickly in emergencies.

LIVE OAK, Fla., Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant Doolittle passed over here soon after 11 o'clock tonight on his trans-continental airplane flight. Previously he had been reported over Lake City, 60 miles from the starting point, and with a brisk southeast wind quartering on his tail he covered the twenty-three miles from Lake City to Live Oak in twelve minutes, or at a speed of nearly two miles a minute.

CAIRO, Sept. 4.—The British authorities here announce that the Egyptian Nationalist leader Zaghloul has been transferred from the Seychelles Islands to Gibraltar, where he is due to arrive today. His wife will be allowed to join him if she wishes to do so, but other visitors will not be allowed.

The transfer is made because the climate of the Seychelles has impaired Zaghloul's health.

Woman Stabs Husband's Opponent.

Going to the aid of her husband, James, who was quarreling last night at Roosevelt and Cherry Streets with Charles Colabella, 19, of 246 Water Street, Mrs. Mary Clemanti of 24 James Street stabbed Colabella in the back with a knife, according to the police. Colabella was attended at Beekman Street Hospital and went home, refusing to make a complaint.

TWO DEATHS FOLLOW DAY OF DRINKING

Police Try to Learn Where Brooklyn Dock Workers Obtained Their Liquor.

WILL PERFORM AUTOPSIES

Federal Agents Make Seven Raids After Shooting Craps to Win Confidence of Crowd.

The Brooklyn police and District Attorney are investigating the death of two men yesterday in the Red Hook section of the borough, who are believed to have been victims of wood alcohol poisoning. Both died before medical aid could be summoned. The men were Edward Burke, 33 years old, a dock laborer of 142 Pioneer Street, and William Strelics, 24, a longshoreman, of 167 Conover Street. The two men, who were comrades, became ill during the night following an afternoon which their relatives said had been spent in drinking.

Burke went to his home, where he lived with his mother, about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, retiring immediately to his room. During the night he complained of feeling ill and in the morning his mother sought a physician. Several she called were out of town over the holiday, and finally she got Dr. Thomas F. Patterson of 190 Eighth Avenue. Dr. Patterson, who reached the house at 11 o'clock, found Burke dead.

Both Burke and Strelics had wound up the day's activities at the home of William Johnson at 20 Centre Street. Burke went home unattended, but Strelics required aid, Johnson late Saturday night went with his friend to the latter's home. Yesterday morning Gustav Strelics heard his son moaning and found him seriously ill. He called in Patrolman Francis Hiesles of the Hamilton Avenue Station, who summoned an ambulance from the Long Island College Hospital. Dr. McCaffrey, the ambulance surgeon, reported that the man had died several minutes before his arrival.

Assistant Medical Examiner Martins ordered the bodies sent to the morgue pending an autopsy this morning. Obtaining from relatives of the dead men a list of the places they frequented in the neighborhood, Detectives James McKenna and Joseph Pucciano set out to find the source of the supposed poison liquor.

Arrest Six in Restaurant.

At a restaurant conducted by Mrs. Jennie Johnson at 199 Conover Street, according to the detectives, they found four men and a woman sitting around a table with glasses containing what was believed to be liquor in front of them. The five gave evidences of being intoxicated, the police said. The liquid in the glasses and a bottle of alleged whisky were seized. Mrs. Johnson was arrested on a charge of violating the Mullan-Gage act. The five were held on charges of disorderly conduct.

The prisoners were Mrs. Selma Welbron, 566 First Street, Hoboken; William Johansen, 165 Dikeman Street; Frank Gorman, 182 Cossey Street; Olaf Danielson, 360 Forty-eighth Street, and David Sennel, 167 Dikeman Street, all Brooklyn. They were later bailed out. The seized liquor was sent to the city chemist to be analyzed.

Federal Agents Reager, Guttman and Drescher, posing as longshoremen, yesterday raided seven river front resorts in Manhattan. The agents adopted amusing expedients, such as participating in a craps game, to gain the confidence of those they were seeking to entrap.

The first place visited was a saloon at 260 South Street, where the agents said they bought whiskey at 25 cents a drink—"awful stuff," according to Reager. While Reager was making out summonses for William Purrman, bartender, and Mrs. Katherine Lancey, owner, Drescher went to 270 South Street, where he "tipped off" Dennis Gula, the owner and bartender.

"The revenue men just got your friend up the block," he confided.

"Is that so?" said Gula. "Which way did they go?"

Drescher said the agents had gone down a side street and Gula offered to sell him a drink. Reager and Guttman wandered in and after they had been served Drescher served a summons on the proprietor.

Joined in Crap Game.

Reager noticed a crap game in progress in front of 317 Front Street. He joined in and lost $2. Suggesting that he needed a drink to change his luck, he mentioned that the nearest place to get a drink was several blocks away.

"No, it isn't," broke in one of the players. "Go right in 317."

Borrowing 50 cents from Drescher and Guttman, who sauntered by, he invited them to go with them. Summonses were left for Jack Ross, bartender, and Cornelius Cahle, proprietor; Gus Berman, bartender, and Fred Nolden, owner, at 2 Front Street, were the next to learn that the "longshoremen" were Federal agents. Other places where it was alleged liquor was purchased were a restaurant at 21 Coenties Slip, a backroom place at 16 Greenwich Street and Slevin's Hotel, 201 East Fourteenth Street.

Posing as "Dr. Max Schwartz" and "Louis Schoenfeld," Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith Saturday purchased what they said was liquor from three German oilers on the steamship Hansa, berthed at Pier 46, North River. While sitting in the Seamen's Restaurant at Chambers and West Street Saturday morning, Smith and Einstein overheard three Germans conversing about their ability to supply as much liquor as any dealer needed. Einstein, attired in a soft hat, frock coat, gray trousers, spats and tortoise shell glasses, decided to worm into the conversation. Welcoming the Germans in their native tongue, he told them how difficult it was becoming to get the "real stuff" in dry America.

Said Deal Was Made.

The agents said that they finally concluded a deal to purchase fifty bottles of whisky and brandy at $6 a bottle. The seamen explained that $1 of the amount represented a tax to be paid to the customs men on guard at the pier "for closing their eyes," according to Einstein. William Kurt, the spokesman, it was alleged, told Einstein to drive to Pier 86 on Sunday night and await the arrival of himself and his two friends who would deliver the liquor.

Einstein said he and Moe went to the pier at the appointed hour, but to their disappointment, learned that the regular customs men were off duty. Kurt explained, according to Einstein, that a party attended by a city magistrate was in progress aboard the Hansa and it would be impossible to carry out the deal that night. As proof of his good faith, Kurt invited Einstein and Smith aboard the steamer and let them sample the liquor he was to furnish them.

Einstein said they returned last night, Smith in one automobile and he in another. After the liquor had been delivered to Einstein, Kurt and Charles Hans and Wilhelm Steinbach, alleged confederates of Kurt, were arrested.

The arrest attracted a large crowd, and a woman began yelling "stick up." Smith convinced the crowd they were not hold-up men.

Agents Klein, Kufferman and Steffabo yesterday arrested Solomon Weinstein of 69 Norfolk Street and Jacob Goas, 16 years old, of 227 Clinton Street, on charges of transporting two gallons of whisky without a permit. The boy was sent to the Children's Society and Weinstein to the Clinton Street Station.

RUNAWAY BOYS 'DO' CONEY.

One Goes on Mother's Bread Dime, the Other Has $32.

An alluring story of Coney Island told him by his sister so inflamed the imagination of 8-year-old Nelson Terry, 129 East 125th Street, that he set out on Sunday morning to see the resort himself with 10 cents given him by his mother to buy a loaf of bread. This all came to light yesterday morning, when he and a friend he made at the beach were returned to their parents by the police.

Nelson was so restive to be on his way to Coney that he did not delay Sunday morning to put on shoes and stockings. Coney Island more than fulfilled his expectations, but he found himself financially embarrassed. He overcame this difficulty by making the acquaintance of Michael McNamara, 11, 419 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, who, as it turned out later, had left home in a manner similar to Nelson's. Michael had $32.

The boys saw everything at Coney and sampled most of the edibles for sale. At midnight they concluded the day would end most satisfactorily in a comfortable sleep at home. So they set out. They did not find it so easy to reach home as it had been to reach Coney. They traveled in subways for five hours without coming upon a station that looked familiar to either. Finally a guard took them in charge at the Grand Central and turned them over to the police of the East Fifty-first Street Station. Nelson's comment on reaching home was that his sister's description had failed in accuracy chiefly by its conservatism.

Sleeps on Pier; Wakes Up in River.

To avoid the heat of his bedroom, Frank Yonkosky, 40, of 235 Monroe Street, went to sleep early yesterday on a pier at the foot of East Third Street. About dawn he awoke in the East River and cried for help.

Peter Scheir, of 178 Cherry Street, went to the aid of the man and held him up while another man threw a rope to the two and helped them ashore. Yonkosky was taken to Bellevue Hospital suffering from submersion.

Man's Body Found in East River.

The police of the Marine Division last night recovered the body of an unidentified man, about 60 years old, in the East River off Thirty-second Street. The man wore a dark suit an outing shirts. He was 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 150 pounds. He was bald and had a stubby grey mustache. A key and a gold ring were found on him.

at Ninety-fourth Street and Columbus Avenue last night by a motorcycle owned and operated by William Lutzen of 103 West 101st Street.

Patrolman James T. Walsh summoned an automobile and Mrs. Allen was taken to Reconstruction Hospital, where she was attended for abrasions. Mrs. Allen then went to the West 100th Street Police Station and made complaint against Lutzen. While Patrolman Walsh was placing Lutzen under arrest on her charge of assault, Mrs. Allen said she was in great pain and an ambulance was summoned. Dr. Merriweather took her to Knickerbocker Hospital where he said she had possible internal injuries.

Anthony Curley, of 438 Ninth Avenue, was struck and knocked down by an automobile at Broadway and 261st Street last night. He was taken in the car that had hit him, to St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers, where it was found that he had a fracture of the skull, and a broken leg. Christopher G. Lister, of 150 Browning Street, Yonkers, the driver, was arrested on a technical charge of assault pending the result of Curley's injuries.

Young Girl Killed and Uncle Hurt When Car Overturns.

PUTNAM, Conn., Sept. 4.—Ethel M. Lyne, 13 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lyne of Carlstadt, N. J., was crushed to death early today, and her uncle, William Flalding of Fall River, Mass., was seriously injured when their automobile overturned on the main road here. The slipperiness of the road due to the rain is believed to have caused the accident.

Mrs. Flalding and her two children, who were in the car, escaped with minor injuries. The parents of the dead girl were in a car ahead. The party was on its way to a family reunion in Willimantic.

AUTO LOOPS THE LOOP.

Turns Over Twice in Plunge—Passengers Escape With Lives.

BATH, Me., Sept. 4.—The occupants of an automobile that left the State highway near a bridge over the Maine Central tracks near here today turned over twice in the air, and landed nose down on the railroad tracks twenty feet below, escaped without serious injury.

Joseph August of Cambridge, who was driving the car, was unable to make a sharp turn near the bridge, and the machine plunged into the deep cut.

CHAUFFEURS HURT IN CRASH

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 4.—Louis Lagrassa was fatally injured and John Hauslein lost an eye when an automobile owned by Mrs. Charles H. Canda of Brooklyn struck another owned by H. B. Kline of Utica, N. Y., on a road near Great Barrington today.

Both of the injured men are chauffeurs of New York. Lagrassa's skull was fractured, and physicians attending him did not expect him to survive.

The two were in the Canda machine, which was driven by Norman Bouse, Mrs. Canda's chauffeur. Bouse was uninjured.

Motorcyclist Is Killed.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 4.—Joseph Reson Jr., 29 years old, son of a retired farmer of Collingswood, died before reaching Cooper's Hospital here today as a result of a fractured skull received in motorcycle races at Sea Isle City. In an effort to save his life he was brought to this city in a special train.

Auto Victim Was Brooklyn Youth.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Positive identification was made today of Abraham Sinna, aged 20, of 236 Pulaski Street, Brooklyn, as the fourth dead in an automobile accident at Bridgeville, near here, Saturday night. The bodies of Martin Berger, 366 East Eighth Street, New York; Philip Minchenberg, 37 Avenue D, and John Bales, 1,626 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, have been sent to New York for burial.

Train Hits Auto; Three Are Killed.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 4.—Three persons were killed and one injured seriously when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train, near Claymont station, early today. The dead are Miss Daisy Ellen Wright, of Philadelphia; Miss Hazel Slaughter and Ernest Stebbings, of Wilmington.

The New Modes in

Millinery

Milady of sophisticated fashion demands of her autumn hat one supreme requisite—

that it bear a personal touch in line, in tinting, in delicate adornment, that will reveal the changing lights in her eyes and the delicate contour of her face. It is this quality that Stewart & Co. have sought to fill, and perhaps more signally than ever have approached this goal in this presentation of autumn millinery. Selected with an unerring eye for harmony, distinctive personality and absolute correctness. Large and small affairs in the newest materials, variously trimmed, with Monkey Fur predominating.

LOOT LOFT OF $5,000, LEAVE MORE BEHIND

CUT CEILING, AVOID ALARMS

Break Open Desks and Pile Up Expensive Garments in Night Life District.

Detectives from the West Forty-seventh Street Station were investigating an unusual loft burglary last night, in which the robbers were reported to have stolen about $5,000 worth of silk lingerie from a second floor at Forty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, in an all-night restaurant block, where police and other persons are numerous at all hours. Several thousand dollars worth of lingerie was left behind.

The burglary was reported to the police by George Toner, an artist employed by the Unique Slide Company at 717 Seventh Avenue, a company occupying a third-floor loft in the building where the Nasser Silk Undergarment Company has its rooms.

Toner told the police that he thought he had frightened the burglars away and that he thought he had seen a man peering at him from the darkness of a hallway. He had gone to the building to do some work on the holiday, and said that when he reached the door he discovered that he had left his keys at home. He went to the Martin Art Shops on the fourth floor and got permission to climb down the fire-escape to the rear of his office.

On his way down the fire-escape he said he noticed signs indicating that burglars had broken into the lingerie loft on the second floor. He went on down to investigate and found that desks had been broken open and silks packed up ready for removal.

All the doors and windows of the lingerie loft were wired with burglar alarms, and the detectives found a hole in the ceiling, indicating that the thieves had smashed their way through from the floor overhead. The hole was large enough to pass bundles through. Toner said he thought he had surprised the burglars at work and that he thought he had seen coats and hats hanging in the hallway of the building.

Nathan Nasser was notified of the robbery at his home at 2,662 Twenty-second Avenue, Brooklyn, and he had employes begin a check of the goods left behind. At the office it was said that the loss probably would be about $5,000.

MAN SHOT IN BOTH LEGS.

Police Make an Arrest—See Motive In Quarrel at Picnic.

Henry McColgan of 20 Vine Street, Brooklyn, was shot in both legs at Fulton and Vine Streets early yesterday morning, and his friend, Owen Sievert of 82 Fulton Street, was arrested charged with the shooting. Sievert protested that he was innocent, but he was held in $1,500 bail by Magistrate Dooley in the Adams Street Court for examination on Friday.

Detectives of the Poplar Street station learned that both McColgan and Sievert quarreled at a picnic at Ulmer Park several weeks ago and they believe the shooting was the result of the quarrel. Sievert denies that he was anywhere near the scene of the shooting. McColgan is in the Long Island College Hospital. His condition is not serious.

HOLD 2 IN STICKPIN THEFT.

Electrician and Chauffeur Fought Policeman on Elevated Stairs.

Arrested in a fight on the stairs of the 125th Street station of the Third Avenue elevated line late Sunday night after, it was alleged, they stole a $15 stickpin from Antonio Farlino of 2357 Cortona Avenue, the Bronx, Emil Dolder, eighteen years old, an electrician, of 153 East 124th Street, and Thomas Yager, twenty, a chauffeur, of 430 East 122d Street, were arraigned yesterday in Harlem Court. They were held in $10,000 bail each by Magistrate Charles E. Simms for the Grand Jury.

Farlino shouted for help when his pin was taken and Policeman Thomas Elliott of the East 126th Street station had a lively time with the defendants until other patrolmen arrived.

WIFE IS GONE; SO IS NEIGHBOR'S HUSBAND

Helpmeets Are Left Behind With Three Children Apiece to Provide For.

WOMAN IS NOT PERTURBED

She Operates Missing Spouse's Bus Line and Makes as Much Money as He Did.

Out at South Ozone Park a 29-year-old woman, with three children, the oldest a boy of 6 years, is demonstrating that a little business experience helps in an emergency, particularly when that emergency is brought about by the sudden disappearance of one's husband. At Richmond Hill Circle, less than half a mile away, a man is trying to solve the embarrassment created by the sudden departure of his wife, leaving him to care for three small children. The woman who was left behind is Mrs. Martha Carey, wife of Daniel Carey, one of the owners of the bus line that runs between Richmond Hill and South Ozone Park, and the man is Stephen Hanrahan, a prosperous contractor and husband of Mrs. Anna Hanrahan. They have counseled more or less together over their problems since their helpmates vanished a week ago.

Carey left his home early Saturday morning, Aug. 26, taking a grip. He had his chauffeur, Frank Gardner, drive him to the Manhattan end of the Manhattan bridge, where he dismissed him, telling him to say to any who inquired that he had been left at the Hudson tubes. Mrs. Hanrahan left on the same morning, riding out of Richmond Hill Circle aboard one of Carey's buses and carrying a grip. Just where she left the bus the driver does not know. Nothing has been seen or heard of Carey or Mrs. Hanrahan since.

After her husband's departure Mrs. Carey talked matters over with her brother, August Hook, who is a partner in the bus business with Carey, and with her attorney, William J. O'Connor of Brooklyn. She then took up the management of the bus line where her husband dropped it and is having as much success in the operation as her husband. She also admits that she has placed her affairs in the hands of her attorney and says that some kind of a legal action is contemplated. Mr. Hanrahan has refused to comment upon the situation. All that Mrs. Carey would say was:

"It is of no consequence to either Mr. Hanrahan where his wife has gone or to me where my husband has gone. I don't know where my husband has gone, and I have not tried to find him. He has set his course and now he must follow it."

3 DEAD MEN IDENTIFIED.

Two Accident Victims and One Who Collapsed Recognized.

The man who was struck and fatally injured by a trolley car at Hester Street and the Bowery last Friday was yesterday identified in the Morgue as Michael Francis Shaugnessy, 36 years old, of 257 West Twenty-fifth Street. Identification was made by Shaughnessy's mother, Mrs. Mary Shaughnessy of 66 Bolton Street, South Boston, Mass. The body was sent to Boston for burial.

The man who collapsed and died in Grand Central Station on Friday last was identified as Asarias Hjorth, 39 years old, a painter, address not known. Identification was made by his employer, Millio Hedman, of 2056 Fifth Avenue.

The body of a man who slipped and fell into the East River as he was getting off the excursion steamer Grand Republic at the foot of East Sixty-second Street last Thursday was recovered yesterday off Sixty-seventh Street. The body was identified as that of Bernie Sloans, 27 years old, an oiler, of 220 East Seventy-sixth Street. He had been in the country but four months.

NAVY WANTS 96,000 MEN FOR NEXT YEAR

Will Ask Congress to Add 10,000 to Its Present Enlisted Strength.

REQUIRED FOR NEW SHIPS

Department Officials Cut to the Bone Their Estimates for Upkeep and Operations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Congress will be asked this Fall to appropriate for a navy of 96,000 men, an increase over the present enlisted strength of 10,000 men, for the next fiscal year. This increase, naval experts figure out, is made necessary primarily by the new ships that will be added to the fleet during next year, and secondarily by the fact that a practical test this year has demonstrated that the present number is inadequate.

The additional ships next year, all of which are included in the navy provided for by the armament conference, are the two new battleships, the Colorado and the West Virginia, part or all of the ten light cruisers under construction, the score or more submarines ready to be commissioned, which will replace the obsolete types being relegated to the scrap pile, and the two new airplane carriers.

Realizing the necessity for continuing the rigid economy under which the navy is now operating, departmental officials say the estimates for upkeep and operations for next year have been cut to the bone to keep them within the figures appropriated for this year's maintenance.

Minimum Construction Plans.

The same restrictions, they say, apply to the amounts asked for new construction. With the exception of aviation and submarines, the only funds sought will be for speeding up the completion of two airplane carriers and the ten scout cruisers, construction of which has been long drawn out as a result of inadequate funds being appropriated.

No attempt will be made at this time to secure authorization for the larger and more powerful cruisers and other auxiliaries recommended by the General Board, and which must be built eventually if the navy is to retain the treaty ratio with the British and Japanese Navies.

With the exception of the North Dakota and the Delaware, which are to be replaced by the Colorado and the West Virginia when completed, all of the battleships doomed by the naval treaty have been placed out of commission, the Connecticut being the last to go. Several of the older ones have been junked or placed on sale in spite of the fact that the treaty has not yet been ratified by France and Italy. These ships, however, were the older ones that would have been scrapped regardless of the arms conference.

With the navy standing today at or under treaty strength, under-manned and with the enlistments of 88,000 men expiring this year, meaning a great influx of green men, naval experts claim it will be impossible to run the navy properly next year, with the new ships coming into commission, without increasing the enlisted personnel.

Even in the estimates for construction of planes and submarines what the experts consider the minimum will be asked for. Ambitious plans for the development of naval aviation have been drawn up, but the actual outlay for next year will be held down. One to three planes for each surface ship of the fleet is provided in the recommendations, as well as the catapults and landing gear to make them effective fighting weapons, which means something like 300 new planes. As many more will be needed for the two giant carriers when they are finally completed, but work on these planes need not start until the work of converting the battle cruisers gets well under way.

Appropriations for construction of two types of submarines, of which the American Navy has none, are included in the estimates. These are the mine-layers and the scout submarines. It is understood that, as is the naval custom in building new types, three of each will be asked for.

FALLS 5 FLOORS; CAN TALK.

Youth Plunges Down Airshaft, but Tells Name—Breaks Ribs.

After falling five floors to the cement floor of an airshaft of a tenement house at 438 West Forty-fifth Street early yesterday morning, Thomas Downey, 17 years old, of 424 West Forty-fifth Street, was conscious when found a few minutes later and able to give his name and address to Policeman Frank Peters of the West Forty-seventh Street station.

How the youth reached the roof or what caused him to fall he refused to tell the patrolman or the physicians at Bellevue Hospital, where he was taken.

Persons living in the building heard several clotheslines snap and the pulleys fall to the cement floor, followed by the thump of a heavier object. They summoned the policeman, who found young Downey sitting up rubbing his head. Dr. Cohen of Flower Hospital took Downey to Bellevue Hospital, where it was found he had several fractured ribs and internal injuries.

BABY'S MOTHER ARRESTED.

Newspaper Picture Causes Seizure on Abandonment Charge.

Mrs. Rose Fulton, 19 years old, of 381 Palmetto Street, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday by Detective George Kauffman on a charge of abandoning her baby, Joseph, 15 months old. It was alleged that on Sept. 1 she put the child in the Ridgewood Day Nursery, operated by the Salvation Army, and failed to call for it.

After waiting several days, Captain May Brown complained to the police and newspapers carried stories about the child. A woman who saw a newspaper picture gave information to the police which resulted in Mrs. Fulton's arrest and identification, according to the authorities. In the Gates Avenue Court Magistrate Brown held Mrs. Fulton in $500 bail for examination today.

DRYS APPEAL TO HAYS.

Ask Him to Cut Out Films Ridiculing Prohibition.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 4.—A resolution asking Will Hays, head of the motion picture industry, to eliminate all films which ridicule the 18th amendment was passed today in the closing session of the 27th annual M. E. convention of the Eastern Scandinavian Grand Lodge, International Order of Good Templars.

Hjalmar Nordgren, of Worcester, was elected Grand Chief Templar. The next convention will be held in Quincy, Mass.

'MOTHER' JONES TOO ILL TO AID RAIL STRIKERS

Aged Labor Leader, in Critical Condition, Doesn't Know of Shopmen's Walkout.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—"Mother" Jones, unofficial labor leader, especially in times of industrial strife, is critically ill at the home of friends here. The frailties of her ninety-two years, many of which were spent in strenuous activities of men and women engaged in strikes, were augmented recently as a result of labor work in Colorado, according to attending physicians.

Inquiries instituted by those who missed mention in reports of the railroad shopmen's strike of "Mother" Jones's activities in her usual capacity brought information of her condition and the statement that she was not aware of the transportation walkout. It is the first strike "Mother" Jones's friends declare, in which she has not had an active part since she began taking interest in labor troubles as a school teacher in Chicago many years ago.

TO DISCUSS FAITH HEALING.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 4.—Lay delegates to the forty-seventh Triennial Convention of the Episcopal Church began arriving here today for the opening of the sessions next Wednesday. The House of Bishops resumed sessions following an over-Sunday adjournment.

Faith-healing practices, as followed by the Rev. James Moore Hickson and others of the Episcopal clergy, are due to come in for a lively discussion at the convention, according to members of the commission to consider the matter recognition of the ministry of healing, which is to present a report on the subject. This report, according to Bishop Manning of New York and other members of the commission, will give approval of the Rev. Mr. Hickson's methods. It was pointed out, however, that division over the subject exists among the Church membership and laity, as evidenced by a recent editorial in The Churchman, an Episcopal publication which declared it would be an almost irreparable calamity if the Episcopal Church should be stampeded into endorsing, without reservation, work like that of the Rev. Mr. Hickson merely to prevent defections to Christian Science."

HELD FOR GUARDIAN'S DEATH

Woman Arrested Had Kept House for Rich Seattle Man Found Dead.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 4.—Mrs. Clara E. Sharin Winborn, aged 28, was held today on a request from Seattle, where she is wanted in connection with the death of Ferdinand Hochbrun, wealthy retired real estate dealer. Hochbrun's body was found in his locked apartment on Dec. 21, last year. Mrs. Winborn declined to discuss the affair. She was a ward in Hochbrun's home from the time she was 12 years old until his death. He was 72.

Hochbrun, with a bullet wound in the back of his head, was found dead in a small alcove off the bedroom of his ward, who also was his housekeeper. The coroner believed Hochbrun had been dead two months.

Mrs. Winborn was known to have visited the Hochbrun apartments two or three times a week over a period of five weeks prior to the last time Hochbrun was known to have been seen.

Soon after Hochbrun's disappearance, letters to Edward Von Tobel, his attorney, had directed him to send rental moneys to Hochbrun at addresses in several other cities.

"JOY FLIGHT" MAY BE FATAL.

Aviator and $10 Passenger Crash at Burmeister Flying Field.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Ben Buscher, 24 years old, of Niles Centre, paid Price Hollingworth, an aviator at Burmeister flying field, Evanston, $10 this afternoon to take him for an "air joy ride." The $10 flight will probably prove fatal to both. A nose dive which Hollingworth could not "straighten out" crashed the plane and both men were buried under the wreckage.

At St. Francis Hospital late tonight they were still unconscious.

It was the first serious accident Hollingworth had ever had, according to field officials. He is said to be the second filer in America as to total flying time. He was flying a passenger machine today in the closing day of a two-day air meet at the field.

LIGHTNING KILLS BOATMAN.

Bolt Knocks Him From Motor Craft Into Lake Nagog.

BROOKFIELD, Mass., Sept. 4.—Harve J. Houle of Worcester was knocked from a motor boat on Lake Nagog here today by a bolt of lightning. He was taken from the water by a rescue party that put out in another boat, but died an hour later.

In the boat with Houle were his father, Dr. Joseph Houle of Spencer, and his sister, Faviola. A heavy squall had come up, and Houle was knocked down unconscious. The girl also suffered slightly from shock.

CARS HURL MAN TO SAFETY.

Train Dispatcher Merely Bruised When His Shed Is Smashed.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4.—Thomas Kelly, train dispatcher of the Pennsylvania railroad at the Trenton cutoff, near Norristown, escaped with bruises when twelve freight cars jumped the track today and demolished the shed in which he was working.

Kelly was hurled from his desk to the embankment as the cars, telescoping and piling up on each other, reduced the shed to kindling wood.

TELEPHONE SAVES WOMAN.

Son in Rochester Notifies Chicago Police of Plan to Commit Suicide.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—A telephone message from Rochester, N. Y., saved the life of Mrs. Lillian Seaman early today. The police found her unconscious from the effects of gas. Several days ago Mrs. Seaman wrote her son Ralph, in Rochester, informing him that by the time he received the letter she would be dead. He called the Chicago police.

At the hospital where she was taken Mrs. Seaman refused to explain.

COL. PADILLA ON TRIAL.

Mexican Court-Martial Sifts His Record in the Bielaski Case.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—Colonel Enrique Geldbaum Padilla of the Mexican Army, who was arrested for exceeding his authority in hindering the arrest of the alleged kidnappers of A. Bruce Bielaski, was brought before a Court Martial here today. He had been held in Cuernavaca since his arrest in July.

Padilla at the time efforts were being made to secure the release of Bielaski, is said to have posed as the personal representative of President Obregon. It is alleged also that he called off the pursuit of the bandits at the moment when their capture appeared to be imminent.

The New Paris Hats

Tell the Full Story of the Winter Mode

As to LINE—Simplicity is the rule. Wide sweeping brims. Or tricornes, many of these in Venetian spirit. Turbans, too.

As to COLOR—Brown in every subtle variation from tobacco to biscuit. Almond green and dahlia tones for contrast. Black here and there.

As to INFLUENCE—The Oriental. Then the Russian. And a touch of the Venetian, Colonialized!

Fourth Floor

All wearing apparel and accessories for infants, girls, boys and juniors has been concentrated on one floor in a beautifully arranged series of shops.

Silks Dominate Fashion

The insistent demands for soft and clinging draperies have established the vogue of satin Canton. An excellent quality, in all the new colors, as well as black and white, at $3.95 yard. 40 inches wide.

Satin charmeuse that drapes readily into softest folds comes in all new shades. 40 inches wide. Reasonable at $1.95 yard.

GROUND FLOOR

New Crushed Satin Blouses

It was a real innovation when Bianchini created the vogue for satin gauffré. Now this lovely crushed satin is being made into blouses at very moderate prices. This is a jacquette model with a double clasp at the wide hip band, $15.

This style dominates our new blouse collection, developed also in crepe de Chine with the quaint all-over pictorial embroidery, and the very much favored matelasse and cloky. $12.50 to $29.50

THIRD FLOOR

Rich Variety in New Coats

Smart fall coats are not only of such recent materials as matelasse, marcova and tarquina, and the well-known, well-liked, duvetyn, marvella and gerona, but also of beautiful variations of velvets. Some models are lavishly trimmed with squirrel, mole, kit fox and beaver; others have no fur at all. The marvella coat sketched is lined throughout with mole. Reverse it and behold!—an entire fur coat. Prices $89.50 to $595. A specially tailored coat of lustrosa for immediate wear, $69.50

THIRD FLOOR

Suits in Paris Collections

"Straight narrow lines, varied by circular movements is the costume suit silhouette," writes our Paris correspondent of the openings and illustrates it with an exquisite jacquette model with monkey fur at hip line, cuffs and collar. A very deep and ample side godet furnishes the circular movement, $295. But "a narrow skirt clearing the floor by seven inches is a rule for tailormades." Such a model as this (left), excellently tailored, $98.50

THIRD FLOOR

Straightline Daytime Frocks

The long tight sleeve with the gauntlet cuff is the intriguing new sleeve that appears on the smartest new daytime frocks. Some are beltless in straight coat style, smartly developed of cloky; smooth silk top and skirt of cloky; fine crepe matelasse, and exquisite picquetine favoring the Paisley trimming. A gem is this very clever little dinner dress made of lace in the favored Grecian lines with a twisted girdle in two tones to mark the waistline, $45

Kipling Blasts America As Soulless After War

"America has got the gold of the world, but WE have saved our souls! Do you think that any one of us who have fought the war—who have lost children in the war—would change with one of them, for all their happiness and prosperity?"

So said Rudyard Kipling in a talk with Clare Sheridan, special European staff correspondent of THE WORLD, who is doing a brilliant series on the humanities of Europe in war's aftermath. The Kipling interview will appear on Sunday, Sept. 10, in the first article of Mrs. Sheridan's forthcoming series. The other striking articles will be printed daily thereafter.

VETERANS' GROUP DEFENDS SAWYER

Inspection By Commander Cook and Others, It Is Declared, Showed Good Progress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Announcement that it will "support to the limit" Administration officials who are charged with the duty of restoring injured veterans of the World War to a self-reliant and self-sustaining basis was made today by the National Rehabilitation Committee of the Disabled American Veterans' Association.

A statement issued by the committee said that Colonel Charles R. Forbes, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, Chairman of the Federal Hospitalization Board, were doing everything humanly possible to provide adequate hospital and curative facilities for the injured men, and that disabled American veterans would "fight out this issue so that misdirected criticism" would not retard the progress being made.

This position was taken by the association, the statement added, after its national Commander, C. Hamilton Cook, and other officials of the organization had completed a thorough investigation of the plans and work of the Government and were "fully satisfied" with the results of the investigation."

"The $17,000,000 appropriated in the last Langley bill," the statement continued, "already has been allocated. Speedy construction of eight hospitals is thus provided for. These institutions * * * will make available 2,500 beds for neuropsychiatric cases, and in addition tuberculosis hospitals are to be erected * * * though it would be better for all concerned if no more good money were thrown away after that which has already been wasted at Excelsior Springs, Mo. Still, the provision of the act in relation to Excelsior Springs is mandatory, and the officials who administer it are allowed no discretion.

"In the last year remarkable advances have been made in clinic and out-patient treatment. Facilities have been improved everywhere so that now there are 110 dispensaries—in reality well-equipped emergency hospitals—and the program ultimately calls for one in every one of the 140 districts and subdistricts of the Veterans' Bureau.

"Seventy-five per cent. of the out-patients receive attention and treatment from the Government now, compared with 18 per cent. a year ago. We are assured that in the coming months every effort will be made to place the remainder of these cases under governmental attention."

The statement also asserted that the "Veterans' Bureau, as now organized, is doing excellent work for the disabled men. It has not attained perfection, but we believe that understanding and wise counsel will lead to more constructive work than unjust criticism.

"The Hospitalization Board, of which General Sawyer is chairman, is performing a very useful function. It is the wish of the President of the United States that it continue to operate so that its suggestions may be available to the Veterans' Bureau. Sound policy requires hearty concurrence in this plan."

HURT IN FALL DOWN SHAFT.

Nathan Weinstein, 36, a drygoods merchant having offices on the sixth floor of the building at 103 Fifth Avenue and living at 554 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, was taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday suffering from a fractured right arm and possible fracture of the skull as the result of stepping through a partly opened elevator door on the ground floor of the Fifth Avenue address and falling to the basement.

With his wife, Weinstein went to the building to go to his office. He meant to run the elevator to the sixth floor. Seeing the elevator door partly open, he said, he thought the elevator was on the ground floor and stepped forward into the empty shaft.

McADOO ON RAFTING TRIP.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Sept. 4.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, is on his way to Rigby, Idaho, to join a rafting and fishing expedition down the south fork of the Snake River.

The journey down the river is expected to take ten days and will be one of thrills. The stream is about 300 feet wide in places and very deep. There are rough rapids to be negotiated by the raft, which will be 15 feet wide and 100 feet long.

Another member of the rafting party will be James M. Moyle of Salt Lake City, who was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Mr. McAdoo.

He Will Today Resume His Interrupted Flight to Rio de Janeiro.

KEY WEST, Fla., Sept. 4.—The seaplane Sampaio Correia II., en route to Rio de Janeiro, arrived here at 12:35 o'clock this afternoon from St. Petersburg on its way to Guantanamo Bay, where it will pick up the charted route abandoned recently when the Sampaio Correia I. was wrecked off the southern coast of Cuba.

Walter Hinton, in command of the seaplane, said the craft would remain here until tomorrow, because of uncertain weather conditions.

Matanzas, Cuba, will be the first scheduled stop after the fliers leave Key West.

THREW HOT SOUP OVER WIFE

In Retaliation She Accuses Him of Being Man Sought for Shooting.

Cross words over a late dinner led Frank Danano, a 31-year-old dock worker, to throw a pot of hot soup over Rosy, his wife, in the kitchen of their home, on the second floor of 190 Orchard Street, on Sunday evening. Detective Mitchell arrested Danono yesterday, and he was locked up at Police Headquarters.

Mrs. Danono is 17 years old. She had just put her 6-month-old baby down when the soup was thrown. It caught her in the back, and she was painfully burned. Yesterday she accused her husband of being the man who on April 22 last shot Frank Camerino in a fight in Brooklyn. Camerino is still in the hospital, and the police have been looking for his assailant.

Louis Barrese, Boxer, Drops Dead.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 4.—Five minutes after he knocked down Elmer Cross, his sparring partner in a training bout today, Louis Barrese, 16, a boxer, dropped dead. Overexertion was given as the cause of his death, but Cross was held by the police pending a Coroner's verdict.

PRICE OF TWO WIVES IS LABOR DAY IN JAIL

No. 1 Meets Long Missing Stewart in the Street and Calls a Policeman.

Edward Stewart of 18 Fifth Street, Brooklyn, spent Labor Day in the Raymond Street Jail because he was twice married and his first wife found it out. He was arraigned yesterday morning before Magistrate Dooley in the Adams Street Court charged with bigamy and held in $1,500 bail.

The couple were married on July 19, 1914, and separated soon after. Mrs. Stewart says that her husband left her. Recently she heard that he had married again and she found, she says, that Stewart had married Mary Maloney at Borough Hall, Brooklyn, on July 10, 1920. Mrs. Stewart No. 1 had not seen her husband for several years and undertook a diligent search for him when she heard he had married again. She met him on Sunday night at Atlantic Avenue and Smith Street.

"Hello, Ed, where have you been all these years?" was her greeting.

"I thought you were dead," he replied.

He admitted that he had married again and was living with No. 2 in Fifth Street.

"Well, you just wait here until I call a policeman," said No. 1. He obeyed and she called the Poplar Street Station. Detective Kelly responded and arrested Stewart.

WIVES TO SHARE FORTUNE.

Second One Plans Division With Woman Husband Divorced.

DRESSER JUNCTION, Wis., Sept. 4.—Mrs. Charlotte Boch awaited today further word from Mrs. Eleanor Boch, of Chicago, as to when the latter intends to come here to meet her to discuss plans for sharing in the fortune of John Boch of Chicago, who divorced the first woman to marry the second after he had made a "strike" in the Klondike.

Mrs. Charlotte Boch was to meet the other Mrs. Boch yesterday, but the latter missed her train. Further arrangements for a meeting between the two must be made by the Chicago woman, Mrs. Charlotte Boch said.

The local woman was married 20 years ago to John Boch, who left her a short time later to seek wealth in Alaska. Fortune smiled on him and when he returned from the Far North he obtained a divorce without the knowledge of his wife and married the present Mrs. Eleanor Boch. The latter, when she learned of the circumstances of the divorce, began a search for her husband's former wife to give her a share in Boch's wealth.

DECREE IN AID OF PEONS.

Designed to Protect Mexicans Emigrating to This Country.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—Copies of a decree designed to protect Mexicans working as laborers in the United States and signed on Aug. 31 by President Obregon have been forwarded to all Mexican emigration officers. The decree is admittedly strictly for the purpose of discouraging emigration of laborers.

It provides that laborers leaving Mexico for the United States must receive formal contracts from their employers, who are to deposit sufficient funds with the emigration officers to pay for their transportation back to Mexico, plus 50 per cent. for sustenance. No salary may be fixed in the contract, the Mexicans to have the same wage and working conditions as laborers of other nationalities.

No contract may be signed for more than 180 days, and contractors will deposit with the emigration officials one peso per man per day for the term of the contract, to cover all emergencies incidental to their repatriation. Specific provision is made that children of laborers accompanying their parents receive regular school instruction.

The decree is the result of numerous complaints received during the past year from groups of Mexicans who emigrated to the United States, and who, because of the business depression there, were left destitute. Repatriation of these unfortunates has cost the Mexican Government large sums.

GIRL TRIES TO DIE BY POISON

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—Margaret Gorman, 15, of Kensington, Pa., is recovering in the Atlantic City Hospital, surgeons say, from the effects of swallowing a dose of iodine. According to the police, the poison was taken with suicidal intent.

The girl came alone to Atlantic City last Monday and engaged a room at 111 Beach Villa Terrace. According to the police, she seemed well supplied with clothes and money. Today other roomers heard moans coming from her room, the police say, and investigated. They found the girl writhing in pain on the bed and had her removed to the hospital.

"Let me alone! I want to die!" she begged the surgeons working to save her, but would say no information as to the cause of her despondency. Police say they believe she had separated from a girl companion and regretted the break.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The conference report on the Bonus bill will be made to both Houses of Congress in advance of the agreement of the Tariff bill, which is now being considered by the same conferees.

Announcement was made today by Senator McCumber, Chairman of the Finance Committee, that the Bonus bill report would be agreed to by the last of this week, perhaps by Thursday. If so, it is believed that the report will be speedily accepted and that the bill will be sent to the President by the middle of next week.

This course has been decided upon so that the final action upon the bill and the expected veto will be out of the way by the time the conference report on the Tariff bill is presented to Congress about Sept. 16.

President Harding is certain, his advisers say, to veto the Bonus bill, and recent canvasses show that it cannot be passed in the Senate over his veto. The House is expected to override the veto.

REPORT CROWN PRINCE DEAD

Berlin Discredited Rumor—He Has Lacked Royalist Support.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—A report spread through Nationalist circles late tonight that former Crown Prince Wilhelm had died in Holland.

The report was discredited, but it was made plain that if it were true, there would be genuine sorrow only among the radical monarchists and that among practical reactionaries generally there would be a great feeling of relief that the problem of a possible future monarchy in Germany had been simplified, since few monarchists consider either the former Kaiser or the former Crown Prince as a possible candidate for the throne of a new empire.

SAYS NURSE'S STORY UPHOLDS ORDERLIES

CITES WAR RECORD OF ONE

Attendant at No. 81 Wounded in Action, He Asserts—Early Hearing is Asked.

The line of defense for Timothy J. Luccie and Harry J. Morgan, ward attendants accused of assaulting Nicholas B. Samson, an insane war veteran, in United States Veterans Hospital 81, the Bronx, was indicated yesterday in a statement from their lawyer, Samuel Goldstein of 910 Fox Street.

"There is a total absence of motive for the alleged attack by these men," said Mr. Goldstein to a TIMES reporter. "We have evidence that Samson assaulted them viciously, and that he did the same thing to a person named Wilson in the hospital on a previous occasion. The only eye-witness to this alleged attack upon Samson, a nurse, is all for us. She declares that Samson got his injuries by falling against the radiator in his room. There is nothing against the character of the accused attendants; Morgan had a splendid war record and was wounded and gassed in action."

Morgan was released from the Bronx County Jail yesterday morning on bail furnished by a surety company, but Luccie remained there. The men are to be arraigned in the West Farms Court tomorrow morning, but the Federal prosecutor, Chief Investigator M. P. McInerney, will see United States District Attorney William Hayward this morning in an attempt to obtain a hearing for them in the Federal Court today.

A previous complaint against Hospital 81 by Mrs. Teresa Martin of 401 East 130th Street, who told American Legion officials that her son, John B. Martin, had been brutally assaulted by attendants there prior to his removal to a Greenwich (Conn.) sanitarium, was investigated by Mr. McInerney yesterday. He said last night that a statement, in his opinion, exonerating the hospital authorities had been made to him by Miss Mima M. Valentine, a former nurse there. She said that Martin was brought back to the ward one evening in a battered condition by a number of policemen, but denied previous statements attributed to her that she had seen Martin beaten with wet towels by ward attendants.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 4.—Governor Edward I. Edwards in a statement today on the coal situation criticised United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen for his alleged failure to co-operate in the Governor's effort to relieve the New Jersey coal shortage, praised United States Senator Walter E. Edge for his aid and commended the New Jersey State Fuel Commission. The Governor said that some time ago he received a telegram from Governor Miller of New York asking him to urge the New Jersey Senators and Representatives in Congress to use their good offices to forestall the movement of most or all of the coal then in sight to the lake regions.

"I was promptly assured by Senator Edge and the Congressmen of their earnest support. Senator Frelinghuysen, without promising co-operation at that time, made public my telegram to him, which was confidential in its character, because of my being obliged to refer to Governor Miller's request, and contented myself with saying there was no doubt of New Jersey getting all the coal we wanted if we asked for it.

"As a matter of fact, our requests were in. The Chairman of our committee had made frequent trips to Washington and elsewhere, and we had the satisfaction of knowing that New Jersey was the first in the field so far as actual operation was concerned.

"I am informed by the Fuel Commission, which has been in operation a month, that every public utility, manufacturer and dealer applying for coal has been promptly taken care of, and that orders have been forwarded to Washington. Whenever the quality of coal they applied for was available, the order was filled. The result was only made possible by the earnest co-operation of everybody appealed to, with a few exceptions. With the latter I have neither time nor inclination to discuss the proposition, more particularly where they attempt to suggest that politics have been injected."

Y. M. H. A. ELECTS OFFICERS.

Jersey Federation's Convention Closes With a Reception.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 4.—Officers were elected at the final session of the two day conference of the State Federation of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Associations at Y. M. H. A. hall on West Front Street her today.

Felix Fuld of Newark was elected president. Three vice presidents chosen were Philip Bruskin of New Brunswick, Harry S. Medinits of Perth Amboy, and Frieda Hirschberg of West New York. Miss Rae Biron of Paterson was chosen corresponding secretary, Miss Minnie Feinstein of Jersey City financial secretary, and Jerome H. Schneidermann of Bayonne treasurer.

Makes 12 Miles on First Afternoon of His Buffalo-New York Walk.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Edward Payson Weston, the 84-year-old pedestrian, arrived at Bowmansville, twelve miles east of this city, tonight on the first stretch of his 440-mile walk from Buffalo to New York. Weston was thirty-five minutes ahead of his schedule. He expects to reach Batavia, twenty-four miles from Bowmansville, tomorrow night.

Leaving the City Hall at noon today, Weston was accompanied by Mayor Frank X. Schwab and several other walkers as far as the city limits.

MAN HALED TO COURT FOR NEARLY DROWNING

Guard Whose Orders He Ignored Makes a Charge of Disorderly Conduct.

BELMAR, N. J., Sept. 4.—A man who elects to preserve his incognito has been summoned to appear in the Magistrate's Court here tomorrow to answer a charge of disorderly conduct, inasmuch as he ignored the order of a lifeguard, went beyond his depth and was nearly drowned.

The friends of the unknown, seeing his plight, offered the life guards a reward of $50 to make the rescue and, it is said, while two of them were making arrangements to earn the money, the swimmer's friends took the lifeboat, pulled him out of the water and brought him ashore. After being revived by Dr. F. V. A. Thompson, a life guard preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against the man and turned him over to Policeman Bradley, who told him to appear in court before Mayor Bamford tomorrow morning.

The swim was undertaken by the man on a wager of $50 with his two friends that he could reach the fish pond off shore. According to one of the life guards, the swimmer, accompanied by his two friends, returned to the beach tonight looking for the life guard who did not go to rescue him. They couldn't find him and, after a wrangle, says the life guard who tells the story, he beat up all three.

TIERNAN AND WIFE TO PART.

Charge to Protect Sanctity of Family He Says He Presses Paternity

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 4.—John T. Tiernan of the Law Department of the University of Notre Dame continued his plans today for pressing his charge that Harry Poulin, campus representative of a local clothing store, is the father of a child born to Mrs. Tiernan last November. Poulin, who was arrested on a paternity charge, will be arraigned in a Justice of the Peace Court tomorrow. He is at liberty under bond of $3,000.

Professor Tiernan and his wife, it was learned today, have reached an agreement of separation by which he gets custody of their two daughters, 5 and 3 years old. They will be sent to Chicago to reside with relatives until the case against Poulin is concluded. Mrs. Tiernan will remain here until after the trial, when she plans to go to the home of her mother in a small Michigan town.

Professor Tiernan issued another statement today outlining his attitude. "My fight is for the integrity and morality of the home," he declared. "In my mind the sanctity of the family is the very basis of our life. I have no desire for vengeance, and I hate to make five persons, four innocent little children, two of them my daughters and two of them Poulin's sons, suffer the disgrace that falls heavily on them, but the question involved in this case reaches into the very vitals of our whole system of life."

Poulin reiterates that Professor Tiernan's charges are the aftermath of a blackmail plot. The Professor declares that an affidavit signed by his wife, in which she sets forth the details of an intimacy with Poulin, will be presented in court.

He was tired out every night, until—

He discovered by accident an idea that has saved the strength of millions

In a printing office in Lynn, Massachusetts, 25 years ago worked a tired compositor.

One night he felt unaccountably fresh after work—with his backache gone. For several days this kept up.

Suddenly the explanation dawned on him. Those days instead of standing on the hard floor he had stood on a rubber mat he had found about the office.

Next morning his rubber mat was gone. It was under the desk of a brother printer. He dragged it out, cut two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes. And that was the start of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels.

Making a good idea better

The printer saw the possibilities of his discovery. And he saw that the special development of a certain type of rubber—something far different from his crude rubber mat—would make this idea a thousand times more valuable.

For years he worked. Countless tests—experiments—and the brains of some of the world's best rubber experts brought it to perfection. And today the O'Sullivan idea has spread throughout the country.

Like all things of value, O'Sullivan's Heels have been widely imitated.

Are yours O'Sullivan's?

If they're not—ask your repairman for "O'Sullivan's" next time! They usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But notice the difference at the end of each day! See how much freer you are from tiredness and strain.

Long before our morning newspapers told what happened in San Francisco the seismographs in New York City had written their startling story.

The shocks and jars from city trucks and street cars which keep our sidewalks trembling would soon destroy a seismograph. To avoid them and protect his instrument, the scientist houses it in a cellar, deep underground.

Is it any wonder that the human body, the most delicate instrument of all, needs some simple protection against constant shocks and vibrations?

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

JESSE GUILFORD IS BROOKLINE WINNER

BOBBY JONES IS SECOND

His 145 Is One Stroke Behind National Titleholder—Tolley and Evans Tie at 148.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 4.—Playing most of his round in a driving rain and over a course thoroughly drenched and covered with pools of water, Jesse Guilford of Woodland, the national amateur champion, was today returned a winner of the qualifying round of the 1922 tournament at The Country Club.

The "Siege Gun's" final effort was a 70, which broke Francis Ouimet's amateur record of 71 and equaled the professional mark for the course, made by Ted Ray in 1913, and tied later by George Bowden during his career as a pro here.

With his 74 made on Saturday, when the first half of the test was held, Jesse totaled 144, which also equaled the United States Golf Association qualifying record, made first by Ray Gorton of Brae-Burn and W. C. Fownes of Oakmont at Ekwanok in 1914 and tied by Ouimet at St. Louis last year.

Guilford had a chance to break not only the course record, but to set a new low qualifying mark, when his iron second to the home green left him with a 35-foot putt for a birdie 3. The ball started straight and true for the cup, but stopped a scant few inches from its destination.

Today was a day of dramatic episodes and incidents, starting early in the morning and ending with a play-off among the men tied at 162. There were a number of crashes recorded, not the least of which was the almost complete collapse of the British team of invaders, only three of whom succeeded in surviving the test made doubly difficult by the conditions that prevailed over the Brookline course today. The visitors from the other side have one thing to comfort them, however, and that was the great performance of Cyril Tolley, British amateur champion of 1920. It was this sturdy golfer who led the field for the greater part of the gloomy day, his 148 standing out conspicuously in its solitude on the score board from early forenoon until long after luncheon.

Guilford Establishes Record.

Then began a series of attacks by the American forces. First of all came Chick Evans with a tieing mark, a brilliant 4 on the home hole giving him a 74, duplicating his score of Saturday. A short time later Bobby Jones, pride of the South in particular and of the American amateur golf world in general, appeared with a total of 145, which entrenched him in the lead until Guilford, along toward the end of the qualifying procession, came home with his record-shattering 70.

Tolley has only two of his fellow travelers to aid him in upholding the prestige of the British golf world. Colin C. Allmer, the Ranelagh golfer who, shortly before coming to America, rattled off a 56 on his home course, and W. B. Torrance. John Caven, runner-up in the British amateur lost his chance today, when he took an 86, which placed him two shots away from a play-off. In a similar predicament was Roger Wethered, who virtually put himself out of the running on the opening day when he required an 83. Willis McKenzie put an 87 on top of a 79 for a total of 166, which placed him out of the running, while both V. L. Hooman and Bernard Darwin withdrew.

The chances of the British world are further strengthened by the survival of Thomas D. Armour and William L. Hunter who, although entered from the Westchester-Biltmore Club, are still considered as members of Britain's forces. Armour took an 83 in today's going, but his 77 on Saturday left little cause for worry.

For Hunter it was somewhat different. When the last of the field had finished, the former British champion was in a tie with four others at 162, the mark on which the field divided today. Only three were eligible and a play-off was necessary to round out the list.

Hunter Safe in Play-Off.

Along with Hunter, there started out on the test H. E. Kenworthy of Metacomet, J. M. Wells of East Liverpool, Ohio, the Buckeye State champion; his namesake, Carlton Wells of Barton Hills, Mich., holder of the Michigan State title, and Cameron Buxton of Pine Valley. Hunter secured his place with a 4 at the extra hole, while Kenworthy and the Michigan Wells gained the last two places with 5's.

Following the four leaders is Rudy Knapper, the Iowa State champion and Princeton golfer, who tied Jones for the second low mark of the day with a 72, while Bob Gardner of Hinsdale, leader on Saturday, dropped back to sixth place with an 80. Jesse Sweetser of Siwanoy, metropolitan district champion, is well up in the list with a total of 152, tied with Jock Hutchison of Allonquin. Three shots back of them comes Francis Ouimet, and immediately following is W. B. Torrance, with 157, his 72 of Saturday more than offsetting an 85 today.

Then comes John G. Anderson of Siwanoy, W. C. Fownes of Oakmont, former national champion, and William McPhail of Norfolk, Mass., followed by two more metropolitan players, Frank W. Dyer of Upper Montclair, the New Jersey State champion, and L. M. Lloyd of Greenwood, accompanied by Aylmer and young George Aulbach of Scarboro.

In the classification are Tommy Armour of Westchester-Biltmore, J. J. Riedel and Marcus Greer of Lanarkets, Philadelphia; Frank A. Godchaux of New Orleans, runner-up to Jones in the Southern amateur; two former Connecticut State champions, W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn and Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich, R. S. Kaupmann of Pine Valley, and George Rotan of Houston, Texas. The last of those to make the championship division without undergoing the rigors of a play-off were James A. Kennedy of Tulsa, Okla., the State champion; P. C. Newton of the same club and W. W. Patton of Schenectady, N. Y.

Stars in Upper Half.

According to the draw, the upper half is the one which will probably furnish the most thrills, with such masters as Guilford, Hunter, Armour, Sweetser, Johnston, Jones and Gardner in the lists. In the lower half the outstanding stars are Evans, Fownes, Tolley,

Two Brothers' Nines Clash; One Team's Father Pinch Hits

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 4. — Two baseball teams, each composed entirely of brothers, met on a diamond here yesterday, the Crowe Brothers of this city defeating the Chase Brothers of Otterbein, Ind., by a score of 10 to 9. The ages of the Chase team ranged from 13 to 54 years, the latter player being the father of the family. He was sent in as a pinch hitter in place of one of his sons.

NOEL BULLOCK WINS PIKE'S PEAK CLIMB

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 4.—Noel Bullock of North Platte, Neb., driving a Ford special car of 183 cubic inches piston displacement, outdistanced all other cars in the fourth annual Pikes Peak hill climb here today and won the Penrose Trophy Cup, as well as the prize money in his class. His time was 19:50 4-5.

Harold Brinker of Denver, in a Wills-St. Claire Gray Goose, finished first in event No. 2, flashing across the line in 20:46. H. L. Chapin, with a Dodge special was second.

King Rhiley, last year's cup winner, finished first in the large car event with a Hudson special in 20:05, with P. B. Abbott, in a Packard special, a close second, in 20:07. Glenn Schultz, in an Essex special, was second in event No. 1.

The Red's Special car driven by William Majora overturned, but no one was injured. E. L. Hopper in a Revere Special, and George D. Adams in a Ford Special did not finish. Their cars were crippled by accidents. Sherman Graves, driving a Ford Special, withdrew.

The time was not as fast as that made last year, which was 18:18 2-5.

Thousands of Summer visitors to the Pike's Peak region got an early start this morning for the course, which extended for twelve miles and 2,200 feet up the Pike's Peak auto highway, beginning at the starting line at Crystal Creek and on up to the summit of the peak.

Warm sunshine sped the racers on their way as they flashed across the starting line at Crystal Creek. They roared past Glen Cove Inn and on to the timber line. After they passed mile post fourteen they sheered into the precipitate, hairpin turns of the switchbacks, with death facing them if they failed to keep the road pn the back turns.

At an elevation of 13,000 feet, a shrieking wind whipped around the lofty summit and the racers encountered the full blast of it as they piloted their cars along the fast stretch near Bottomless Pit. They climbed upward and at Little Pike's Peak a sharp drive of intermittent sleet and rain cut their faces. The course there and at the summit gradually grew softer and a number of the cars barely held to the curve as they shot ahead at sixty miles an hour for the finish.

The time of the cars that finished follows:

Event No. 1; cars with piston displacement of 183 cubic inches and under—Bullock, first, 19:50 4-5; Glenn Schultz, Colorado Springs, second, 20:03 3-5; Art Hillis, 22:03 3-5; Al Gunther, 22:14 3-5.

Event No. 2, Cars With Piston Displacement of 184 to 300 Cubic Inches—Brinker, first, 20:46; H. L. Chapin, Colorado Springs, second, 22:25 4-5; Sam Marcus, 24:06 4-5; R. C. Dashiell, 24:37 3-5; Harry F. O'Brien, 29:01 3-5.

Event No. 3, Cars Over 300 Cubic Piston Displacement—King Rhiley, Oshkosh, Neb., first, 20:05 3-5; P. B. Abbott, Denver, second, 20:07; W. S. Haines, 20:31; Harry McMillen, 23:11 1-5; Jerry Chambers, 30:00.

Spencer Penrose Trophy, Car Making the Best Time Regardless of Class or Event Entered—Noel Bullock, North Platte, Neb., driving car of 183 cubic inches piston displacement, first. Time—19:50 4-5.

THREE GOLF TEAMS TIE AT MANCHESTER

E. T. Clark 34-F. T. Clark, Daubel-Marsh and Given-Power Even in Best Ball Play.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 4.—In the annual Labor Day golf handicap, which was played as a best ball competition, a tie resulted among three teams—Edward T. Clark 3d and Frank T. Clark of Ekwanok, who played from scratch; J. A. Daubel of Dunwoodie and R. E. Marsh of Grassy Sprain, who had an allowance of six strokes, and John L. Given of Ekwanok and W. F. Powers of Englewood, N. J., who had ten strokes allowance at seventy-three.

The summaries:

GOLF MATCH POSTPONED.

Special to The New York Times.

PELHAM, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The special golf match which was scheduled for today between Miss Glenna Collett, the Providence player and North and South women's champion, and Miss Alexa Stirling, former national champion and present holder of the Metropolitan title, at the Pelham Country Club, was abandoned because of the heavy storm. The match was to have been at eighteen holes and for the benefit of the Radcliffe College Endowment Fund. It has not been decided whether the match will be played at a later date.

SARAZEN AND CRABB LOSE.

Are Defeated, 3 and 2, by Sparling and Wheeler at Ridgewood.

DANBURY, Conn., Sept. 4.—Gene Sarazen, American golf champion, and James L. Crabb, professional of Ridgewood Country Club, were defeated 3 up and 2 to play in a four-ball exhibition match on the Ridgewood Club links here today. Their opponents were George Sparling, professional of the Brooklawn Club of Bridgeport, and Nat Wheeler, champion of the Brooklawn Club.

Sarazen played an exhibition round earlier in the day and turned in a card of 76 for the course. Par is 70.

Amateur Bouts Thursday.

Bouts in four classes have been scheduled for Thursday night in the next amateur boxing tournament of the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, to be held at the New Moon Club's Bay Ridge quarters. The weights are 112, 118, 128 and 138 pounds. Some of the leading local amateur boxers are expected to compete in the tournament.

REG BEATS OTHER BRITISH 6-METERS

WEATHER MARS CONTESTS

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Sixty-four yachts started today in the Fall regatta at the Larchmont Yacht Club, sailed over outside courses, with the starting line off the Breakwater. In view of the adverse weather conditions which prevailed in the forenoon, it was a phenomenally large fleet. As it was a holiday, the Regatta Committee had planned to stage its show early and begin promptly at noon. At noon, however, sheets of rain drove up and down the Sound and curled up from the face of the waters. The Regatta Committee set the postponement signal, clustered inside the pilot house of the anchored committee boat Satanstoe and waited; the crews of the assembled yachts took an extra hitch on their oilskins—and waited.

But regatta committees and yachtsmen are a tenacious lot. After an hour and a half of pouring rain squalls, lightning and thunder, there was some moderation of the weather, and courses were signaled from the Satanstoe. Finally, at 1:53 o'clock, the first start was made, that of the New York Yacht Club 40-foot sloops. The last to be sent away were the four six-meter boats comprising the British team which is over here to race for the British-American Cup off Oyster Bay.

Sail Triangular Course.

The visitors, which were sent away at 3:00 o'clock, sailed a triangular course of five and one-half miles. The wind, which had come from north-northeast at 2 o'clock, had hauled to the south-of-east and was very light.

Jean, owned by Sir John Ward and sailed by Sir Ralph Gore, should have won on form, as she is the main reliance of the Britishers in light weather. But Jean made a poor start, being nearly two minutes late at the line, and she could not make up the handicap. The winner was Reg, owned by Norman Clark Neill and sailed by Captain Dixon. W. F. Robertson's Caryl was 35 seconds in the wake of Reg. One minute and a half or so astern of Caryl was G. F. Stephen's blue-hulled Culla III. The black-hulled Jean was a poor fourth.

These of the American six-meter yachts which failed to make the international team sailed an 11-mile triangle, the leading boat, Ace, owned by Adrian Iselin, Jr., and sailed by C. Lawley.

Besides fighting for the day's prize for the New York 30-footers, there was also a Race Week sail-off to be decided between Okee, owned by J. A. Mahlstedt, and J. C. Pirie's Oriole. These yachts finished third and fourth, respectively, with the sail-off going to Okee.

Azor Is Race Week Victor.

A sail-off in the first division of the handicap class between C. A. Marsland's Azor and Mashnee, owned by H. L. Norris and D. M. Hayden, gave the Race Week prize to Captain Marsland. A sail-off for second place in the Arrow class between Gordon Raymond's Kippews and G. J. Bradish's Jack-o'-Lantern went to the former on this victory in the class today. No other Arrows started.

The New York Yacht Club 40-foot sloops and the Larchmont O Class 30-foot sloops had the hard luck of the day. After slushing to and fro in the pelting rain for over two hours, the two classes finally got away to sail a triangular course, a 10½-mile course. At 7:30 o'clock, when the time limit expired, two of the 40s were drifting slowly toward the finish line on the flood tide. But no one waited to see if they crossed. It was "no race" for the two classes, thanks to the flat calm which had clamped itself over the Sound around 6 o'clock.

Besides depriving the several skippers of a race, the sloops had made the trip in each class—the calms postponed two decisions which have hung fire from Larchmont Race Week, in July. Among the 40-footers there was a Race Week tie for first prize between C. L. Ade-dorn's Pompero and Ralph E. Hoyt's Zilph, for which today's race was to serve as a sail-off. In the Larchmont group the race today was also to have been a sail-off between Leroy Sargent's Nimbus and L. V. Lockwood's Maisie.

Adios Takes Sail-Off.

Race Week sail-offs were, however, decided in three other classes. Among the New York 30-footers there was a tie between J. A. Mahlstedt's Okee and S. G. Pirie's Oriole to be settled. The prize will go to Okee, which led Oriole for third place in today's contest. The winner in the group today was Adios, owned by T. and M. T. Hornidge.

In the first division of the handicap class C. A. Marsland's Azor, by coming in today ahead of Mashnee, the property of H. L. Norris and D. M. Hayden, will receive the Race Week prize. Azor, however, was not the winner in the division, finishing second to Wet T, Hamilton's Hamilda, both on a boat-for-boat basis and on corrected time. Hamilda, by the way, which is a 30-footer, was sailed by Arthur Knapp Jr., the son of Arthur Knapp of the Regatta Committee. "Lit Arthur," as he is generally known, is 15½ years old, but one of the most promising of the junior sailors in the Sound. He was Captain of the Larchmont junior crew which recently won the junior championship of the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead, Mass.

Two yachts of the arrow class had a race week tie to settle for second place honors. The boats were Gordon Raymond's Kippews and G. J. Bradish's Jack-o'-Lantern. They were the only entrants in the race for the arrows today, which was won by Kippews.

Ernest Ratsey, who has recorded many victories this year in the star class with his blue-hulled Irex, led a small fleet across the finish line. Irex was forty-five seconds ahead of Aquilla, the property of Gordon Curry. Several Mars which had come to the line early in the day went back to the line before the start of the regatta was finally signaled. As this little boat has but scant cabin room, and is not the most comfortable craft in which to weather two hours of rain.

Six of the victory class sloops made a race over the short course. Donald Cowl, in N. A. R., was the winner. His nearest competitor was Spad, sailed by A. E. Clark, which was six minutes astern. By the time the victories had turned the second mark of their triangular course the wind was flattening out rapidly and times between yachts meant nothing.

Five Jewel Sloops Start.

Five of the Jewel class sloops sailed today and they happened to make their race during the part of the afternoon when the wind held steadiest. The first two to cross the finish line were but six seconds apart and the third sloop was hardly more than half a minute astern of the second. The three to finish in the order given were C. H. Appleby's Opal, A. W. Rice's Turquoise, and Jake, the property of Guthrie Willard.

A pair of the 17 class of sloops created the starting line for a lonesome two-some, of which Tern, owned and sailed by John Slavin, was the winner. In the third division of the handicap class the winner was Twinkle, owned by C. Hunter. Twinkle defeated the second yacht, C. M. Garland's Robin Hood III., by less than two minutes of corrected time.

The story of the regatta would not be complete without mention of the little Larchmont Yacht Club cats, which sailed an outside course instead of going

Vincent, in Packard-Chriscraft, Wins Gold Cup by Taking Third Straight Heat

DETROIT, Sept. 4.—Colonel J. G. Vincent of Detroit, driving his Packard-Chriscraft, today made a clean sweep of the Gold Challenge Cup race on the Detroit River, taking the third and final heat from a field of eight other starters. He previously had won the first two heats.

He traveled the thirty miles for an average speed of 39.8 miles an hour. Following the race Vincent raced a lap against time and established a new world's record for displacement boats with motors of less than 625 cubic inches displacement, averaging 42.2 miles an hour.

Gar Wood, five times winner of the Gold Cup event, was declared winner of the Wood-Fisher trophy race for express cruisers, following the final 50-mile heat today. Wood took the first two heats with his Baby Gar 2d. Today's heat was won by Joseph Kinney, driving Baby Gar 3d, also owned by Wood. Kinney made the distance at an average speed of 51.75 miles an hour, a new world record for displacement boats for the distance. The former record of 49.9 miles an hour was set by Wood last Friday.

Edsel Ford, driving his Woodfish, set another world record for displacement boats when he made 59 miles an hour on the seventeenth lap. Neither the Woodfish nor Baby Gar 2d was eligible for the Wood-Fisher trophy, however, because they did not compete in the previous heats.

The Ballan trophy for cabin cruisers was won by R. George Marsh of the Detroit Yacht Club with his Miss Grossepointe. Mayor James Couzens of Detroit, looked upon as a probable winner because of a first and second place in previous heats, was disqualified because, according to judges, he exceeded the speed limit awarded his craft, Tramp 21.

The express cruiser Betty M., owned by Charles Kotcher of Detroit, won the motor yacht trophy for express cruisers by circling the course alone, all opposition having been withdrawn.

The hydroplane Baby Sure Cure, owned by Paul Strassburg of Detroit, was the only starter in the last heat of the Detroit trophy race for hydroplanes and was awarded the trophy, having taken the first two heats.

TUNA IS STRATFORD SHOAL RACE WINNER

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 4.—Regardless of the fact that the international six-meter series is to start off here on Saturday, the members of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club have by no means forgotten their regular Summer program. Over the holiday the club has given a half-dozen races. There were several Saturday afternoon, and on Saturday night the annual Stratford Shoal Lightship race was sailed. It was an overnight contest, the yachts finishing yesterday. The winner on corrected time was Tuna, the property of J. H. Ottley.

Regardless of the driving rainstorm the club held two regattas today. The morning race was for the women of the organization. The fair sex sailed the Fish Class yachts, and the first home was Eel, which belongs to Daniel Bacon. It was sailed by Mrs. H. M. Curtis. Eel beat Tuna, sailed by Mrs. M. McIntyre, by 1:22 for the prize. There also was a race for the Kittens, which was won by Scat, the property of A. D. Weeks 3d.

In the afternoon the Kittens again raced over the inside course. Bob Cat, which has been doing the best work throughout the Summer, was the winner. The yacht, which belongs to William Loeb 3d and Joseph Willets Outerbridge, defeated Scoot, the property of S. Weeks, by 1:50.

NEW YORKERS LOSE IN DOUBLE SCULLS

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 4.—The annual Fall regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing Association was run off on Lake Quinsigamond today. The races were a mile and a half in length and fast time was made, conditions being good. The novice and junior singles had the largest fields, each containing eight. George Cromier of Crescent Canoe Club of Waltham won the novice and Joel Haas of Worcester Rowing Club the junior. Russell Codman, of the Union Boat Club, of Boston, won the senior singles in nine minutes and thirty seconds. He had three lengths on Carey Faulkner, of the Riversides, of Cambridge, who was second. The Union Boat Club intermediate doubles, Dan Harding and T. K. Richards won in 9 minutes, 9 seconds, making better time than the senior doubles. Henry Heller and Henry Fralech, of the Lone Stars of New York, who won in 9 minutes 10½ seconds, conditions being alike in both races.

The senior eight-oared race was a contest between St. Alphonsus of Roxbury and Worcester Rowing Club, which had a few minutes previously won the intermediate eight. St. Alphonsus won by a few feet of open water in 8 minutes 5½ seconds.

Cocheco Canoe Club of Dedham won all the three canoe events from the Crescents of Waltham—the four and war canoe races by a few feet.

The junior eight-oared race went to the Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge, with the Atalantas of Springfield second. George Cormier and R. S. Masher of the Crescent Canoe Club won the junior double, and Manuel Gomes of the Riverside Club won a close finish over Ed Boylan of Bayonne in the intermediate singles. Worcester Rowing Club captured the intermediate eight-oared event.

TED LEWIS WINS BOUT.

YOUNG GUDE WINS 3 ROWING TITLES

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4.—Granville Gude, a 20-year-old youngster of Washington, just out of high school, was the winner in three events of the annual Middle States rowing regatta which was held here over the Spring Gardens course in the upper Patapsco River today. Pulling an oar only about three months, Gude took the junior singles, intermediate singles and association senior singles. It was the first time he had ever entered into competition and he was pitted against men who were many years older in age and in the sculling game.

Due to Gude's splendid work, the Potomac Boat Club, whose colors he wore, was able to get four crews over the line first. The New York Athletic Club took three firsts and one second, The Bachelors Barge Club of Philadelphia, with a large entry list, took two first places, a like number of seconds and three thirds.

The summaries:

Senior Championship Singles—Won by Thomas J. Rooney, Undine Barge Club, Philadelphia; second, Paul Costello, Vesper Boat Club, Philadelphia; third, J. Durnan, Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto. Time—6:26 2-5. Garrett Gilmore, Bachelors Barge Club, Philadelphia, finished first but was disqualified for getting out of his course.

BOXING CARD POSTPONED.

Velodrome Bouts Scheduled for Last Night Delayed by Rain.

The card of boxing bouts scheduled for last night at the New York Velodrome was postponed because of yesterday's heavy rain. No new date was announced for the bouts. Promoter Tex Rickard expects to announce a date for the contests today. It is likely the matches will be conducted next Monday night, which is the next open date available on the local boxing calendar.

No change is now contemplated in the original card. This provides for a four-round bout, two six-round matches and two twelve-round contests. The twelve-round bouts will be between bantamweights and featherweights. Sammy Noble, of the East Side, and Danny Lee, a Harlem boxer, are the bantam-weights who will clash in a bout which is expected to produce an opponent for Champion Joe Lynch. The featherweight battle will bring together Sammy Siegel of the East Side, and Kid Sullivan, Brooklyn's hard-hitting contender for the title now held by Johnny Dundee.

WOMEN ATHLETES IN MEET.

Nearly Two Score to Compete at Lewisohn Stadium.

With more than thirty-five entries received for the competitions scheduled, local A. A. U. officials are predicting a successful meet on the occasion of the women's athletic meet which the Metropolitan A. A. U. will conduct Saturday afternoon at Lewisohn Stadium. It is expected that a record crowd will witness the meet.

Miss Blanche Dixon, who has shown ability as a sprinter, is the latest athlete to enter. Miss Dixon plans to compete in the 50-yard and 100-yard events. Miss Mary D. Durand, another sprinter, will make the journey from Syracuse to engage in these two events. A team of about fifteen competitors is expected to represent the D. A. Sokal Gymnastic Association.

AFTERNOON GAME.

MEADOW BROOK.	EASTCOTT.
1—F. S. Von Stade.	1—Stephen Bastard.
3—H. C. Bacon.	3—R. W. Hopping.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., Sept. 4.—The highly-rated Shelburne four had no difficulty this morning in eliminating the Flamingo team, a makeshift combination from the National Open Polo Championship tournament, winning 10 to 4. The second game of the Labor Day program, scheduled for four o'clock, was postponed until tomorrow morning because of a heavy rain which set in at noon and made the fields unplayable.

Due to a lame shoulder, R. E. Gatins, No. 3 of the Flamingos, was unable to play and J. C. Cooley shifted to No. 3, inserting in the line-up in his own place at No. 4 Luis Nelson, a substitute of the Argentine club, who played well but was too unfamiliar with the Flamingo combination to show his real worth. Nelson, however, scored one goal and his passing work was responsible for two of the other Flamingo tallies.

On the whole Shelburne outrode, outhit and outplayed their adversaries, scoring six goals in the first half without permitting one Flamingo tally, and letting up only in the later periods when there was small possibility of their losing. Each of the winning players was on his game, hitting well and riding off attacks with precision.

Captain Louis E. Stoddard of Shelburne was at the top of his form. He scored four goals and was in and out of many plays, cutting off Flamingo rallies and several times catching a hard drive, sent straight for the Flamingo goal, just as it neared the posts. His passing, too, was excellent.

Webb and Belmont Star.

J. Watson Webb and Raymond Belmont made several extraordinary plays for Shelburne, passing the ball to Stoddard with uncanny accuracy and digging the ball from melées with a dash that made the game a fast one despite its one-sidedness. The play of the backs of both teams, too, was excellent, both sipping opposing attacks in the bud, strawbridge, especially, getting into many plays.

Harry East played a good riding game for Flamingo, but his poor striking, particularly when he had the ball, alone with a clear field before him, lost several goals for his team. He was good in the scrimmages and in riding off his opponent, but his passing work was below normal. Cooley played the best game for Flamingo, even in a position to which he was unaccustomed. His defense was particularly brilliant.

During the morning the weather was the best that the polo season here has had. The sun shining brilliantly and the heat being mitigated by cooling winds from the Shrewsbury, but as soon as the play had ended a hard rain set in, making the afternoon game out of the question.

Play started at 11:30 A. M. East shot the ball out from scrimmage and, after being interrupted by Stoddard he recovered the ball and took it down, only to miss a goal. A series of clever passes by

In one of the most remarkable exhibitions of aquatic ability in the history of women's swimming competition in this country Miss Gertrude Ederle, strongly-built, fifteen-year-old swimming star of the New York Women's Swimming Association, yesterday established six world's records. Miss Ederle accomplished her wonderful feat in a 500-meter special invitation race held, despite the torrential downpour, in the 75-foot pool of the Brighton Beach Baths, in this test Miss Ederle shattered five world's marks and created another at a distance at which no previous record officially had been listed.

Miss Ederle swam to victory in the 500-meter swim in hollow fashion. She beat Miss Helen Wainwright, a clubmate who holds the women's all-round swimming title, by the impressive margin of twenty yards after a race in which Miss Ederle led practically from start to finish. Miss Hilda James of the Garston Swimming Club, Liverpool, England, Europe's premier women swimmer, was third, hopelessly beaten off by Miss Wainwright, about 75 yards back of the winner. In her victory Miss Ederle swam the distance in the unprecedented time of 7 minutes, 22 1-5 seconds, creating a new world's record for this distance.

On the road to her triumph, Miss Ederle shattered the existing records for 300 yards, 400 yards, 400 meters, 440 yards and 500 yards. Only the inability of the timers to reach their places at the 300-meter mark deprived Miss Ederle of a seventh record and the accomplishment of her initial objective. The men holding the watches on the superb swimmer were unable to advance from the 300-yard point to the 300-meter point in time to get Miss Ederle's time as she passed 300 meters. It is unquestionably true that she eclipsed the record for that distance also, but by how great a margin no one who witnessed the remarkable performance could definitely state.

It is reasonable to suppose, too, that both Miss Wainwright and Miss James, defeated rivals of the victor, also broke previous records for some of the intermediate distances at which Miss Ederle set marks. The absence of accurate watches at different points when the strollers were swimming past, however, precluded the possibility of accurately determining this point.

Breaks Record at 300 Yards.

Miss Ederle shoved the first record into the discard as she swam past the 300-yard mark. Her time here was 4:22 2-5, a mark of 10 1-5 seconds better than the old record, held by Miss James. At 400 yards Miss Ederle was caught," in 5:22 2-5, eclipsing Ethel Lackey's record of 6:02 2-5. Miss Ederle finished her way past the 400-meter mark in 5:53 1-5, against the old mark of 6:16 3-5, credited to Miss James. At the quarter-mile mark Miss Ederle's time was 5:54 3-5, just exactly twenty seconds faster than the old record of 6:16 3-5, the record of Miss James, which also was the mark for 400 meters. The fifth record disappeared before the remarkable swimming of Miss Ederle at the 500-yard post, when she swam past the officials holding watches in the unprecedented time of 6:45 1-5, displacing Fanny Durack's four-year-old mark of 7:06 1-5, made over a 110-yard course. Then Miss Ederle proceeded without extra effort or diminution of pace to the 500-meter mark, where she finished her journey in possession of a record for the distance in 7:22 1-5, and with about twenty yards on Miss Wainwright, who struggled home second.

Of the remarkable features of this superb exhibition of swimming the method of Miss Ederle's victory stands out in bold relief. Despite her remarkable performance Miss Ederle completed the journey without any evidences of distress or weariness. Not once during the event did Miss Ederle's speed decrease. Nor was she really extended to her limit. The ease with which she negotiated the distance was conspicuously reflected two hours from the finish of her journey, when Miss Ederle, her head bobbing from side to side with the rhythm of her six-beat trudgeon crawl stroke, suddenly looked upward and inquired as to the number of lengths she still had to make as if she were addressing a remark to a bystander at a club practice session.

Gets Early Lead.

From the start Miss Ederle swam as if she was competing in a sprint race. She went off his mark with the speed of a fifty-yard star and, remarkable though it may seem, maintained her pace throughout. She swam a straight and true, never wavering from the path of her "lane," and closed her remarkable demonstration with a sprint which was even a greater surprise than her slaughter of records. Veteran followers of women's swimming were unanimous in declaring after the race that Miss Ederle is superior in ability even to the great Ethelda Bleibtrey, to whose place in women's aquatics the 15-year-old star has succeeded with surprising speed. Miss Ederle, a resident of the west side, has been competing for about three years. Not until recently, however, did she really gain the swimming spotlight. Her first outstanding performance was her victory in the Day Cup Race, an international distance swim held at Brighton Beach. Last Saturday she captured the national quarter-mile title.

A description of the race is just one uninterrupted chronicle of Miss Ederle's almost unchallenged progress to victory. The victor, Miss Wainwright and Miss James got off simultaneously as the gun barked started the race, but when the trio straightened out after the first few strokes Miss Ederle was in front. She was destined to remain there, as, with powerful, rhythmic stroke, she proceeded through the water. Miss James was second at fifty yards, slightly in front of Miss Wainwright and close to Miss Ederle. At 100 yards Miss Ederle showed the way by a scant margin on Miss Wainwright, who spurted and passed Miss James. The order never changed thereafter.

At 200 yards Miss Ederle was about a yard in front of Miss Wainwright, who, in turn, led Miss James by about five feet. In the next fifty yards Miss Ederle added another yard to her advantage over Miss Wainwright, while the latter increased her margin on Miss James to about ten feet. The pace was beginning to tell on Miss Wainwright as the swimmers passed the 300-yard mark, for at this point Miss Ederle was in front by about five yards. Miss James here started to fall back steadily. At 350 yards Miss Ederle was leading by about eight yards. She added another two yards in the succeeding fifty yards and increased her margin to twelve yards at the 450-yard mark. The ultimate winner was leading by fifteen yards at a point fifty yards from the finish, and in the final half-century Miss Ederle, with the same consistent, undiminished pace, added five yards more to her victorious margin.

Miss James to Return Home.

The race marked the last performance here of Miss James. The English star is scheduled to start for her home in Liverpool tomorrow. Both Miss James and her coach, H. Howfrost, were lavish in their praise of Miss Ederle after the race.

The event was held up for a time because of the heavy rain. In fact, it was undecided at first whether the race could be held. A crowd of close to 2,000, protected with umbrellas, raincoats and slickers, braved the unfriendly elements and waited around the uncovered pool until the downpour had subsided sufficiently to permit the starting of the race.

Miss Charlotte Epstein, Women's Swimming Association leader, filed application for the records immediately after the race. Every requirement for record-making was complied with. Because of this it is expected the marks will be accepted by the Amateur Athletic Union and the International Record Committee. Four capable timers held watches on the race. They were led by Chris Dalton, a veteran timer of track and field and swimming events; Lew Handley, to whose coaching mainly is due the development of Miss Ederle; Harry Jons of the New York A. C. and Ed Manken.

Miss Ederle's record race overshadowed three other events which were conducted and which furnished interesting competitions. Miss Wainwright returned to competition, following her defeat in the 500-meter event, and had the consolation of scoring a victory in a scratch diving test. The former champion outscored Miss Aileen Riggin, Olympic diving champion, and Miss Helen Meany, present national titleholder, in this event. Miss Wainwright carried off first prize, with a total of 80.03 points. Miss Riggin was second, with 78.60 points, and Miss Meany finished third, with 78.33 tallies.

Miss Riggin Swims Fast Race.

Miss Riggin scored the second fastest time of the season for 100 yards in a 100-yard handicap event, in which she competed from scratch. The diving star was clocked in 1:05 2-5, a matter of one and two-fifths seconds slower than the record of Miss Wainwright, made last June 10. The fast trial, however, did not avail Miss Riggin. She achieved her admirable performance in the third heat, but, because of the liberal handicap she was forced to concede, Miss Riggin was shut out in the heat and did not reach the final. The event was won by Mrs. Hazel Zeits, who was allowed a handicap of 21 seconds. Her time was 1:25 1-5.

Little Miss Julia Marmorstein, 10-year-old swimming tot, captured a handicap race for girls of 10 years or less. Miss Marmorstein was allowed a start of 4 seconds and scored her victory in 0:40 2-5 seconds. Miss Edna Leonard, of the same age as the winner, was second. Miss Ruth Meany, another 10-year-old prospect, who competed from scratch, was third.

The summaries:

ROBINS DROP TWO GAMES BY ONE RUN

Phillies Win Second Contest in Sixteenth by 7-6 After Taking First by 5-4.

BEHAN SCORES FINAL RUN

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The Phillies and the Brooklyn Robins celebrated the workmen's holiday by laboring long and hard here this afternoon in the double program, which ran twenty-five innings before it was completed, and kept the fans in their seats from 1:20 to 7:05 o'clock. The Phillies won both contests, the first in the regulation nine innings by 5 to 4, and the second in the sixteenth by 7 to 6.

Young Behan, a pitcher just recalled from the London (Ont.) Club, with two out in the sixteenth, hit Decatur for a double to the scoreboard just as darkness was falling. Wrightstone singled toward second and Rapp then sent Behan home with the winning run on a single to centre. Behan had supplanted George Smith on the knoll in the sixth inning.

Robins Score First in Second Game.

In the second game both sides scored in the first inning. Olson and Johnston led off for the Robins with singles. Tom Griffith popped to Wrightstone, but Wheat tripled to centre, sending both his pals home. In the home start, Wrightstone walked, Rapp singled, and the former scored on Lee's single.

The Phillies jumped to the front in the fourth. With two out, Leslie singled to right and made the circuit on Parkinson's two-base slam against the fence. Tom Griffith's wild throw let Parkinson reach third. Peters's single to left sent Parkinson home.

In the fifth the Robins tied the score on Miller's homer into the bleachers. In the sixth the Robins scored three more runs. Wheat and Myers smote singles. Smith grabbed Mitchell's tap and flagged Zack at third. High hit to Parkinson, but Mitchell was safe when Wrightstone muffed his throw. That filled the bases. Miller singled to Rapp, scoring Myers. On a passed ball Mitchell scored. Ruether, batting for Manaux, walked. Olson aided to Williams. Johnston singled to left, scoring High. Miller also tried to score and was out at the plate on Lee's chuck to Peters.

The Phillies replied by scoring two runs on their half off Sherry Smith. Johnston made a two-base wild throw on Lee. Leslie flied to T. Griffith. Parkinson then flogged a homer into the 50-cent seats, putting the Phillies one behind. Peters followed with a two-bagger. Manager Robinson removed Sherry and called on Dell Wilhelm, who then delegated Henlin to bat for G. Smith. Butch flied to Wheat while Wrightstone popped to Parkinson.

The Phillies tied the score in the ninth. Decatur passed Rapp and then whiffed Williams. Walker's single to right put Rapp on third and the latter scored the tying run when Lee hit a long sacrifice to Wheat. Then the two teams battled until the end in the sixteenth.

Robins Lead in First Contest.

In the first game two were out in the second inning when Mitchell walked. He stopped at second on High's single, but Meadows trapped him off the bag. In the run-down Meadows made a bad throw to third and Mitchell scored. Rapp followed with a bad chuck to the plate and High took third. De Berry however, fumbled.

The six Dodgers reaped their second run from three swats in the fourth. Wheat and Myers hit safely and later Zack was forced at third on Mitchell's bunt, Meadows to Rapp. A minute later De Berry's safe wallop sent Myers home.

Johnston's single in the fifth was followed by Tom Griffith's two-base drive to centre, scoring the Brooklyn shortstop. In the second part of this inning Wrightstone hits to the right centre for three bases, Myers doing a long cross-country chase to gather in the ball. As Hi's throw to third was wild, Wrightstone continued his journey to the plate.

Henline released a smoking double in the sixth and took third on Lee's out. Butch scored after Myers had caught Leslie's fly.

In the eighth the Phillies scored three runs, tying the score, and taking the lead by the same number. Shriver popped Walker, who ran on to second on a wild pitch. Henline prodded a four-cushion shot into the wet bleacher seats, Walker scoring ahead of him. Lee whiffed, Leslie knocked out a two-bagger and crossed with what proved to be the winning run on Parkinson's single. The latter was stopped, trying for second.

The Robins were full of fight in the ninth and came within one marker of tying. Griffith, with a single and circuited to the rubber when Alex Berry banged a double against the fence in left. Manager Robinson assigned Bert Griffith to bat for Shriver and Neis to run for De Berry. Orders from the bench provoked the pinch hitter to sacrifice, sending Neis to third. A sacrifice fly meant a tie score. In this situation Olson hit to Wrightstone, who threw him out and at the same time kept Neis pinned at third. Then Parkinson tossed out Johnston, ending the game.

RAIN KEEPS YANKS AND GIANTS IDLE

Hugmen Announce Changes in Playing Schedule for Remainder of Week.

The torrential rains that fell in this vicinity yesterday washed out the double-header which the Yankees were scheduled to play with the Boston Red Sox at the Polo Grounds. While the Hugmen were held in enforced idleness, the St. Louis Browns gained a full game on the American League champions by taking two games from the Indians and the two contenders for the pennant are now separated by the slim margin of one game.

It was announced by the management of the local club yesterday that the Yanks and Red Sox will clash in a double-header at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The first game will start at 1:30. The Boston team will remain over for another game with the league leaders tomorrow afternoon. The Athletics, who were originally scheduled to play the Hugmen at the Polo Grounds tomorrow, will play a double-header with the Yanks on Sunday, instead of the scheduled single game. The Yankees will be idle on Thursday and will open a two-game series with the Senators at the Polo Grounds on Friday.

Following the two games with the Athletics on Sunday the Yanks will journey to Philadelphia for one game on Monday, after which they will leave for their final tour of the West. Incidentally, their double-header on Sunday will mark their last appearance before the home fans this season, unless they manage to get into the world's series. The champions will open their Western trip on Tuesday with a three-game series with the White Sox. They will then meet the Browns, Tigers and Indians in that order. They will return East for a three-game series with the Red Sox in Boston, starting on Sept. 28, and will wind up their campaign with a Sunday game with the Senators in Washington.

Yesterday's rain deprived Bullet Joe Bush, pitching ace of the Yankees, of retaining his lead in the matter of the number of victories among the American League twirlers. While Bush, who was slated to pitch one of yesterday's games, was idle Urban Shocker of the Browns tied the Yankee star's record of twenty-two victories. Bush will be sent against the Boston club this afternoon and Waite Hoyt will probably pitch the other game.

Rain also prevented the Giants from meeting the Braves in their scheduled double-header in Boston.

CARDINALS IN EVEN BREAK WITH PIRATES

Pfeffer Pitches 5 to 3 Victory in Morning, but St. Louis Drops Final, 6 to 5.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4.—Pittsburgh divided a double header with St. Louis here today. The morning contest went to the Cardinals, 5 to 3, while the Pirates took the afternoon battle, 6 to 5. Pfeffer's splendid twirling was responsible for the St. Louis victory. Maranville broke up the afternoon game with a triple in the ninth. He scored on Mann's wild return. By breaking even, the Pirates remained in second place. The scores:

Win Morning Game From Tigers in Tenth, 3-2, and Final, 6-3.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—The White Sox took both games of the holiday bill from Detroit here today by winning the morning game, 3 to 2 in ten innings and the afternoon game 6 to 3. Robertson had little trouble holding the Tigers safe as the support behind him was perfect, while Oldham was hit opportunely. Faber outpitched Pillette in the morning game, the latter forcing in the winning run with a walk. The scores:

RAIN HALTS FINAL DAVIS CUP MATCHES

ANZACS RESENT CRITICISM

5:00 P. M. (Exhibition Mixed Doubles)—Miss Helen Wills and Vincent Richards vs. Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Pat O'Hara Wood.

Special trains will leave Long Island Station, Pennsylvania Terminal, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street, every few minutes between 12:35 and 3 P. M., in addition to regular service, for Forest Hills.

The weather cleared up too late yesterday to make possible the playing of the two final matches in the 1922 series for the Davis Cup between the United States and Australasia. Julian S. Myrick, referee of the matches, conferred at noon with Captain Gerald L. Patterson, for the visitors, and William T. Tilden 2d, for the United States, and decided that no fair test was possible under the conditions. It had rained heavily all morning, and there were no signs of a let-up at noon. The courts were well protected by tarpaulin, but without an entire cessation of the downpour they would not have been in shape for play. The balls would have been heavy and the footing slippery. Moreover, most of the expected gallery of 15,000 had taken it for granted that there would be no action and had turned its attention to other matters for the day.

The entire program was put over until today, with the same arrangements governing it, excepting that the start will be made at 3 o'clock instead of 2:30. The first match will be between William M. Johnston of the United States and Patterson, and immediately upon its conclusion Tilden will take the court against James O. Anderson. Then there will be a mixed doubles exhibition match, in which Miss Helen Wills of California and Vincent Richards of Yonkers will oppose Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory of the West Side Club and Pat O'Hara Wood of Australia.

No change in the complexion of the series was brought about by the rain. The delay in the conclusion of the series, so far as can be estimated, makes no difference whatever in the probable outcome, the Americans still being top-heavy favorites, with the Australians conceded a fighting chance.

Captain Patterson disagreed yesterday with those who had questioned his judgment in nominating Anderson for the team instead of Wood. Patterson called attention to past performances in Anderson's favor and to the fact that all athletes have their days when nothing seems to break right. Anderson had such a day on Friday in his match against Johnston.

Wertheim Defends Selection.

Rudolph C. Wertheim, reserve man on the Australian team, resented especially criticisms of Patterson's judgment in picking Anderson for the singles instead of Wood. Past performances showed, according to Wertheim, that Anderson at his best has a chance of beating either Tilden or Johnston, while Wood, in Wertheim's opinion, even at his best, would have a much poorer chance. It was wise, in his opinion, to take a chance on Anderson's physical condition, even though he happened to be shy of tournament practice. Wertheim brought to bear the additional evidence that in Wood's past meetings with both Patterson and Anderson the results have been all in favor of Wood's opponents.

Although it is impossible to deny the strength of Wertheim's contentions, attention is called to the fact that those who have taken the contrary view based their opinion wholly upon the performances of the Anzacs in competition in this country this Summer. On their showing this Summer, Wood, in the opinion of many observers, has been better even than Patterson, and thus would have been a better choice than Anderson because of the handicap under which the latter labored after his illness.

Wood played better tennis at Philadelphia in the singles, a better rounded game than Patterson, and this in spite of the fact that, through hard luck, he lost to Alonso while Patterson beat Alonso decisively. In the national doubles at Boston, Wood not only excelled his teammate, who was erratic, but he played better tennis even than Tilden or Richards.

There is always the opportunity for a large argument in doubles as to which of two partners is doing the more valuable work. Many supporters of the Australian team, including Wertheim, believe that it was Patterson's excellent ground strokes on Saturday that upset the Americans more than Wood's steady play in all departments and they argue that Patterson's superior decisiveness overhead was a determining factor. The stroke analysis of the match is all in Wood's favor. But stroke analyses of doubles matches are never conclusive for the reason that they record only the finishing shots, while the shots that may have paved the way and may have been far more important in the manoeuvring are not chronicled. No way has been devised for getting around this difficulty statistically, and thus an argument is left open as to individual achievement. Thus, to a considerable extent, it is a matter of opinion as to which Australian decided the issue in the doubles more than the other.

Australians Have 85 Earned Points.

The composite statistics of the two singles and one doubles matches between the two teams are interesting, though they prove little. The Australians have made 35 earned points and 229 errors in the three matches for a percentage of .370 and the Americans have made 65 earned points and 103 errors for a percentage of .404.

A noteworthy feature with regard to post-mortems of the doubles contest is the fact that Tilden believes he played better tennis at Forest Hills, according to report, in the match he lost, than he did in the national championship at Boston in the match which he and Richards won. Tilden denies that that was a "sitter," which he slammed into the net in a crisis of the first set on Saturday. Tilden states that the ball was coming at him so fast and at such an angle that it was difficult to judge its flight and that an error of it was quite as reasonable to expect as a smash for a placement. All these differences of opinion make for the interest of the game and, in this particular instance, Tilden was certainly in a better position to judge than any spectator could be.

Members of both the American and visiting Davis Cup teams are greatly interested in a new variation of tennis in which a demonstration is to be made this morning at 11 o'clock at Washington Square under the supervision of the Rev. Frank B. Peters. The game is called paddle tennis and is designed for the benefit of youngsters in the big cities who have not the space at their disposal to enable them to play on regulation courts. A wooden paddle about three-eighths of an inch thick 14 inches long and 7½ wide is used instead of a racquet and the play is on a court about 13½ feet by 30. The paddles cost only about twenty cents apiece. If possible, a net is used for the game, but sometimes the youngsters stretch a wire or a water pipe or a string across their court at the proper height. The idea of the game, according to Mr. Peters, who is an ardent tennis fan and the winner of the First Army Corps championship of the A. E. F. in Paris in 1919, is to interest the youngsters of crowded neighborhoods in the game of tennis and give them an introduction to the play which, in later years, may bring important results. The game can be played in any street or public park. It is expected that many of the leading players in the country will be present at this morning's exhibition in Washington Square and possibly participate in the play.

Sullivan Postpones Channel Swim Owing to the Weather

DOVER, Sept. 4 (Associated Press). — Continued unfavorable weather conditions compelled Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., who had been watching all day for an opportunity to start on his attempt to swim the English Channel, again to postpone his getaway. Walter Patterson of Bridgeport, Conn., who, like Sullivan, intends to make the attempt in spite of the failure of Charles Toth and Sam Richards of Boston, in their recent effort, decided today that when conditions were favorable he would make his start in the early morning, instead of at night time, as the Boston swimmers did, from South Foreland, to the east of Dover.

MAIR LEADS AT HYDEWOOD.

Has Low Net Score in First Round of Oakmont Cup Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 4.—The first 18 of the 72-hole competition for the Oakmont Cup was played today at the Hydewood Golf Club. A heavy rain caused a postponement of the second round until next Saturday. Kenneth Mair led in Class A, with 89, 14—75.

The scores:

Class A—Kenneth Mair, 89, 14—75; Francis Cannon, 89, 11—78; F. R. Bowlby, 87, 8—79; Warren Townley, 87, 8—79; W. F. Taylor, 85, 5—80.

Class B—C. F. Foster, 90, 18—72; Dr. T. R. Champlin, 98, 18—80; A. A. Cannon, 94, 14—80. A. H. Briggs, 95, 13—82.

Class C—A. M. Carter, 100, 22—78; J. W. Reid, 106, 27—79; John White, 109, 30—83; G. F. Chambers, 107, 23—85; G. S. Simons, 117, 27—90.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., Sept. 4.—After its first defeat of the season yesterday, Chester Simmons's Aphrodite romped home an easy winner in the special holiday Knockabout race over the Rumson Country Club's regular course on the South Shrewsbury River this morning.

over the sheltered harbor route. The contest was won by Duncan Sterling Jr. in Black Cat.

The Regatta Committee of the Larchmont Yacht Club, consisting of Howell C. Perrin, Chairman; Harold D. Flint, William Harvey Smith Jr., Arthur Knapp and Shirley Ellis, has put in the busiest Summer of any of the many regatta committees on the Sound. This executive force, however, is not yet through with its labors, as it will manage the racing on Larchmont Day, Thursday, on the interclub cruise which starts tomorrow from Manhasset Bay.

PRENTICE DEFEATS RIKER ON COURTS

Seabright Tennis Champion Wins Rumson Title by Score of 6-4, 8-10, 9-7, 8-6.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Sept. 4.—On the courts of the Rumson Country Club this morning Vernon S. Prentice, holder of the club championship in singles at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, defeated Irving Riker in a hard-fough four-set match by 6—4, 8—10, 9—7, 8—6. By virtue of this victory Prentice becomes the singles champion of both clubs, a distinction that has not befallen a member of both clubs in some time.

From the start both players introduced a smashing, driving game. Prentice soon demonstrated his excellence at the baseline. Invariably Riker, a former Princetonian, tried to overcome the steady and accurate forehand drives of his opponent by advancing to the net.

Following this match Miss Marie La Marche and Leonard Beekman, a former Princeton captain, won the mixed doubles honors by defeating Miss Atha and T. Tedwards in a hard-fought match by 4—6, 6—3, 8—6, 3—6, 6—7.

The brilliant returns and smashing drives of both Miss La Marche and Miss Atha featured the long drawn-out match, but the method of attack of Beekman before the defense of Edwards proved too much at critical stages, and the victors were able to register as the club champions in the final set after the games had been 7—all. Miss La Marche won her service and by a brilliant net attack broke through for the set game and match.

CRUISE STARTS TODAY.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Sept. 4.—The interclub cruise will get under way from the anchorage of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club of Port Washington tomorrow for a jaunt of four days. Five clubs are taking part in the excursion, which is a revival of a cruise which was very popular several years ago. The clubs, in addition to Manhasset Bay, are Larchmont, Indian Harbor, Stamford and Seawanhaka Corinthian.

The yachts, which will race from port, will anchor Friday night at Oyster Bay, off the Seawanhaka Corinthian Club's house, and will sail out "at will" on Saturday to follow the international teams racing for the British-American Cup around the course on their first race.

ON NEAR-BY LINKS.

The semi-final round for the President's trophy at the Fox Hills Golf Club on Staten Island was played yesterday in the first match John Conroy defeated F. J. Mohr by 3 and 1. In the other T. D. Conroy defeated L. G. Spindler by the wider margin of 5 and 4. The final round will be played on Sunday, Sept. 10.

E. J. Ridgeway was the winner of Robert's Prize, being four up on par, his card being 77—5—80.

At the Baltusrol Golf Club at Short Hills, N. J., a ball sweepstakes was the feature of the holiday card, the scores being as follows:

M. R. Reeves, 75—3—72; R. C. James, 79—4—75; R. W. Matterson, 101—25—76; J. T. Wentink, 102—25—77; H. T. Coursen, 89—9—80; W. Green, 91—10—81; F. Finney, 92—9—83.

There was also a thirty-six-hole medal play, best eighteen holes in which the leading scores were as follows:

M. R. Reeves 72, W. Green 76, H. T. Coursen 83 and J. J. Serrell 92.

In the Labor Day tournament at the Inwood Country Club, Inwood, L. I., the finals in only one class were completed, Clarence Sommers defeating Humphrey Michaels in Class C by 2 up. The finals in the other classes were postponed until next Sunday.

The class championships at the Woodmere Club at Woodmere, L. I., were contested yesterday. In Class A, which is at thirty-six holes, only eighteen holes were finished, G. Bluthenthal being one up on Monroe Emmland at the end of the first round. In Class B, eighteen holes, Herman Fried defeated R. A. Williams, while in Class C Jack Rubinstein defeated M. Frank.

Medal-Play Handicap, Class A—Thompson Dean Jr., 80, 12—68; D. P. Morse Jr., 79, 10—69; Campbell Carrington, 81, 11—70; J. F. Cannors, 88, 14—74; S. A. Pierson, 78, 4—74; A. W. Stark, 91, 11—80.

Quimet, Knepper, Torrance and Aylmer. All three of the British players are in the bottom half of the lower bracket, which will leave only one of them in the conflict after the second day's match play.

The metropolitan district has done itself fairly proud in the event thus far with eight players left to fight it out for the honors—Hunter, Sweetser, Lloyd, Lewis, Armour, Anderson, Dyer and Seeley.

Gardiner White, the former district champion, made a great attempt today to overcome the handicap he imposed on himself on Saturday, returning a 76. Grant A. Peacock of Cherry Valley, on the other hand, took a 93 today, putting him far down in the list. Alex Armour, former Scottish amateur champion, who has recently allied himself with the metropolitan district, just missed the field by a shot taking an 88 today, while Dick Haight was exactly ten strokes over his Saturday's score.

Max Marston, former New Jersey State champion and present holder of the Philadelphia title, who had the national title almost in his possession in 1915, took 40 to the turn, starting out 6, 4, 8, and it was the last figure that left him high and dry on the rock of failure. He made a great effort over the last nine holes, but was unable to make the grade.

Guilford's Putting Wonderful.

The secret of Guilford's success today was the same one that guided him to success at St. Louis last year, wonderful work on the putting greens. On the eighteen holes, he took just 28 putts, eight less than the prescribed number. His start was not particulary impressive, with a 5 at the first hole, where he was short of the green with his second, and a 6 at the third, where he took three putts after getting home. Just before that, at the second hole, he missed a three footer for a 3.

His start came at the fourth, where he holed a forty-footer, much to his surprise. After equalling par at the next two, he lost a shot at the seventh, but got down a fifteen-footer for a birdie 3 at the eighth and with another par at the ninth was 37 at the turn. Another ten-footer came at the tenth. Then he missed a short one for a 4 at the eleventh and after two pars stuck down a brace of birdies at the next two.

His 3 at the fifteenth was the product of another ten-footer. He had another birdie at the seventh holing a fifteen-foot putt and then had two fine shots to the home hole for a possible 3 which he narrowly missed.

His card:

Out	5	3	5	4	3	4	4	4	—37
In	3	5	3	4	4	4	3	5	—35—72

Jones was 2 over fours at the turn, his only slip-up coming at the sixth, where he took a 5. He dropped another stroke at the eleventh, but laid his ten start dead for a birdie 2 at the twelfth, finishing out in 2 under fours, with two birdies in the string.

His card:

Out	5	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	—39
In	4	4	3	4	4	3	5	4	—35—74

Tolley's Brassie Slips.

Tolley, like Jones, was 38 at the turn. Playing to the eleventh, his brassie slipped out of his hand and he hooked his ball to the rough, from where he failed to get on the green on his third. He almost holed at 3 at the sixteenth, but got a fine birdie 3 at the eighteenth, where he sank a side-hill putt of some twelve feet. His card:

Out	5	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	—39
In	4	6	3	4	5	3	4	5	—36—74

Evans, whose chances were held to be diminished by the wretched conditions, started out with six 4s. He got down a birdie 3 at the seventh, but required a 6 at the ninth, giving him a 39 at the turn. Here he was short with his second and elected to roll the ball up to the green instead of pitching. As a consequence it took him two more shots to get on. This experience with the traps came at the fifteenth, and his only mistake of consequence was at the seventeenth, where he shanked his approach.

He was short of the home green on his second shot, his ball lodging on the side of the bank, from where he pitched up within a few feet of the pin. With a chance to tie Tolley for the lead at that point, Chick took more than his usual amount of time with his putt, but it was time well spent, for after replacing his ball on the green he proceeded to hole out for a par 4.

His card:

FLORENCE BRISCOE STAR IN SWIM MEET

Miss Florence Briscoe, competing without club affiliations, occupied the limelight last night in the closing swimming carnival in the Madison Square Garden pool. The young west side swimmer, in a demonstration of ability which exceeded any of her previous performances this season, captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. senior medley swim championship for women and scored a victory from scratch in a 200-meter handicap swim for women. In the medley event Miss Briscoe swam 300 yards in varied styles of swimming in 5:02 3-5. Her winning time in the handicap race was 3:21.

In the medley that the competitors were compelled to swim free style, back stroke and breast stroke. The distance for each style was 100 yards. Miss Briscoe exhibited surprising ability in the test of aquatic versatility and easily excelled her rivals. She finished with an advantage of about nine yards on Miss Louise Davidson of the People's Palace, Jersey City. Miss Helen Briscoe, young sister of the winner, was third.

Miss Briscoe exhibited considerable speed in the 200-meter handicap test, in which she conceded liberal handicaps to her rivals. She won by a comfortable margin from Miss Davidson, who was allowed a start of three seconds. Miss Agnes Chester, who was in receipt of eight yards, finished third.

Miss Alma Mann, former Panama Canal Zone swimming star, captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. junior 220-yard championship for women. Competing as a member of the New York Swimming Association, Miss Mann scored an impressive victory in 3:33 3-5. A spectacular burst of speed on the final length of the pool gave Miss Mann the victory by a matter of about six yards over Miss Agnes Chester. Miss Helen Lambden, who showed the way until the field entered the final length, had to be content with third prize.

The men's Metropolitan A. A. U. junior quarter-mile relay title swim resulted in a victory for the New York Swimming Association quartet, composed of William Perry, D. Nostrom, Paul Krantz and J. Hanrette. The Boys' Club four finished second and the Central Y. M. C. A. team was third. The time for this event was 4:15 3-5.

The prize for the woman swimmer scoring the greatest number of points during the Garden season was captured by Miss Mann. Her total was 55¼ tallies. The men's season prize was won by Edward J. Keating of the Boys' Club, who accumulated 25¾ tallies.

Haughdahl Sets Two World's Records in Automobile Races

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 4.—Sig Haughdahl, driving a Frontenac car, broke two world's records for automobiles pacing on a half-mile track at the Nebraska State Fair this afternoon. He lowered the mile record to 58 3-5 seconds. The previous record of one minute and 2-5 seconds was established last week at Des Moines by the same driver. Haughdahl then won the two-mile race in 1:55, breaking the record of two minutes, 2 2-5 seconds, set four years ago.

PRELIMINARIES FOR 18.2 TOURNEY MADE

There are indications on all sides now that billiards is about to blaze its way into the sporting spotlight. It was announced yesterday that the preliminary arrangements for the international 18.2 balkline championship, to be held in this city in November, had been completed and that the announcement of the details would be made just as soon as B. E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, returns to this country from Europe. He is expected here this week.

Following on the heels of this statement came the announcement by John T. Doyle, president of the New York room owners' association, that during the Summer the membership of that organization had been increased from 300 to 600 and that the first meeting of the association would be held one week from Tuesday. At that time the final arrangements for the season will be made.

"The association intends again to play a prominent part in the promotion of amateur billiard tournaments in this city," said Doyle. "Our big tournaments of last year were such pronounced successes and did so much to develop the young players of this vicinity that we have decided to continue the work. The first tournament will be an amateur pocket billiard affair open to all the amateurs of Greater New York. Last year we had more than five hundred players in this event, and this year there is every reason to believe that we will have more.

"The tournament will be held in the different sections of the city. It will gradually narrow down to a semi-final round among the winners of these different districts, and then the finals will be held."

Roy Johnson has challenged George Barton for the amateur snooker championship, which the latter won last year. The conditions governing play for this championship provide that the title has to be defended every forty days if there is a challenge issued. Johnson, who has been in Chicago for the last two years, is easily the best player in that city. They will play a 300-point match, 100 points on each of three nights, Sept. 11, 12 and 13, at John Doyle's Academy.

It is now assured that the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club will be opened formally in its spacious quarters at Fifty-first Street and Broadway one week from tomorrow, Sept. 11. The work of installing the forty-three tables, specially constructed of American walnut, has progressed so satisfactorily and the elaborate decorations are so nearly completed that R. B. Benjamin, general manager, yesterday was able to make a definite announcement of the opening date. He also announced that the applications for membership far exceed all early expectations and that New York is now assured of having the best appointed club devoted exclusively to billiards in this country, if not in the world.

U. S. MARINES WIN TWO RIFLE MATCHES

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 4.—Several matches in the twenty-ninth annual interstate rifle and pistol tournament of the National Rifle Association were shot today. The Dryden Trophy match for any team of eight men, shot at ranges of 200, 300 and 1,000 yards, was won by the first team of U. S. Marines. They scored 1,111 bullseyes out of a possible 1,200. The third U. S. Marine team was second, with 1,108 bullseyes, and the second U. S. Marine team was third, with 1,098 bullseyes.

The first team of U. S. Marines won the McAlpin Trophy match with 1,111 bullseyes out of a possible 1,200, beating the second U. S. Marine team, which scored 1,093 bullseyes.

In the team match, shot at a range of 200 yards, open to teams of six men from any veteran guard organization of any State, the 71st New York National Guard team won, with 336 bullseyes out of 360. The second company of the Governor's Foot Guard of Connecticut was second, hanging up 329 bullseyes.

The National Capitol Rifle Club of Washington, D. C., won the Old Guard trophy. This was a prize for any team of six not belonging to a State rifle association, shooting at 600 yards. The winning score was 333 out of a possible 360 bullseyes. The second company of the Governor's Foot Guard was second, the Seventh Regiment Rifle Club of New York was third.

Three matches for small-bore target shooting were held in the Sea Girt small bore championship matches at 50 and 100 yards, for all competitors. C. Johnson of the Frankfort Rifle Club of Philadelphia was first, with 247 out of 300 shots. W. Coons of the Arlington Rifle Club of Arlington, N. J., was second, with 246 bullseyes. J. Greene of the same club was third, with 244 bullseyes.

M. Mosch, Arlington Rifle Club, and W. Coons of the same club made perfect scores in the 100-shot small-bore match at fifty yards. J. W. Heaslan of the Manhattan Rifle and Pistol Association scored 99.

TEAM PRIZE FOR MOHAWKS

Defeat Cygnet A. C. by 21 Points—Twenty-Seven Harriers Compete Under Adverse Conditions.

Mike Dwyer, veteran distance runner of the Mohawk A. C., led a field of twenty-seven rival harriers yesterday in the fourth annual five-mile handicap road race conducted under the auspices of the Rye Community Field Day Committee at Rye, N. Y. Over a course that was muddy and offered treacherous footing, Dwyer showed the way for the last half of the distance, and finished with an advantage of about 175 yards over Russell Jekel of the Long Island A. C. Richard Van Eyk, 16-year-old schoolboy runner of Stuyvesant H. S., who sported the emblem of the Mohawk A. C., finished third. Dwyer was allowed a handicap of four minutes. He covered the course in the actual time of 29:14. Jekel started off the 4:50 mark, and Van Eyk started with the limit handicap allowance of five minutes.

The inclement weather interfered with the race and spoiled what promised to be one of the best handicap distance events of the year. Seventy-eight runners were entered, but the downpour discouraged some of the prospective participants and decreased the size of the field. Despite the rain, however, a large pack started in quest of the prizes offered, and the majority of the starters finished.

Dwyer ran a well judged race. The veteran, showing himself adaptable to the unfavorable conditions, drew up within striking distance of the limit handicap runners after a mile and three-quarters, and, increasing his pace, gained the lead at two and one-half miles. Once in front, Dwyer gradually worked up a winning advantage which enabled him to decrease his speed in the latter stages of the race.

Feher Sets Early Pace.

E. Feher of the Greek-American A. C. went to the head of the limit handicap starters when the field was sent on its way. He held the front position for about a mile, when he gave way to Harry Hansen of the Cygnet A. C. For another mile and one-half Hansen led, although his margin was slight. Then Dwyer suddenly moved forward and steadily crept up on the limit handicap runners. When the veteran challenged Hansen the latter could not met his rival's spurt and Dwyer forged to the front. The struggle for premier individual prize ended then, for Dwyer's running discouraged challenges as the race progressed and the veteran won as he pleased.

Van Eyk was the strongest runner in the pursuing pack, but he weakened in his effort to overhaul Dwyer and faltered as the race neared completion. Jekel finished strongly, and in the last half mile passed the Stuyvesant lad.

Ilmar Prim of the Finnish-American A. C., Metropolitan A. A. U. junior cross-country champion, was the scratch starter. He ran a good race under the circumstances and finished eleventh. The hill-and-dale champion covered the course in the actual time of 29 minutes 45 seconds, a performance which gave him fast-time prize.

The prize offered for the first novice runner to finish the full course went to Van Eyk, in third position. Hansen, one of the early leaders, finished in sixth position and carried off the second novice prize.

Mohawks Take Team Prize.

Representatives of the Mohawk A. C. carried off the team prize, scoring a victory over the Cygnet A. C. The Mohawk quintet outscored their rivals from Port Chester by the margin of twenty-four points. The victorious team's winning score was 28 points. The Cygnet runners had 52 points.

MAROTTI FAILS IN FINAL WITH CUBAN

With the whole chess playing world looking on expectantly, Dr. David Marotti, the Italian representative in the London International Chess Masters' tournament and tail-ender among the sixteen competitors, faced Jose R. Capablanca in the final round, when the world's champion needed but one-half a point to clinch his victory. It was the chance of a lifetime and, had he been successful, the Italian's name would have gone down into history for all time. But it was not to be and Capablanca added another full point to his total, thereby finishing first by a comfortable margin.

Professor Marotti, who selected the Sicilian defense, entered upon an unsound combination at his tenth turn, which Capablanca quickly turned to his advantage. The Italian resigned after twenty-four moves had been recorded.

Other scores received show victories by Enwe of Holland over Watson of Australia, Yates of England over Morrison of Toronto, Aljechin of Russia over Atkins of England, and a fine draw achieved by Wahituch of England against Aljechin.

TANG HAU KI II. IS FAIRFIELD WINNER

NOROTON, Conn., Sept. 4.—Rain did not dampen the spirit of the exhibitors at the annual show of the Fairfield Kennel Club held here today on the grounds of the Ox Ridge Hunt Club. Judging advanced rapidly under the huge tents with little discomfort. The proceeds will be divided among the three churches in the town.

Tang Hau Ki II, a chow dog owned by C. E. Libbey of New Haven, Conn., repeated his victory of last Saturday at the Westchester-Biltmore show. That dashing good Airedale terrier, Briarcroft Cadet, owned by the Briarcroft Kennels, Youngstown, Ohio, again won handily in winners' dogs, and the same owner's Briarcroft Mademoiselle won winners' bitches.

The breed that attracted the most attention was the Old English sheepdog. Twenty were benched, the winner being Kinnelon Kennels' Kinnelon Night Raider. In bitches the winner was the same kennels' Champion Kinnelon Hallowe'en.

William Ziegler's collection of field trial pointers was greatly admired, every one a winner in field trials, but in show competition today they were beaten in winners' dogs by Joe Armstrong's Post Road Jeff, a very sound pointer. In bitches, H. E. Place's Comanche Pride won.

Poodles (Curly)—Dogs—Sanford C. McKnight's Champion Judge W., first; Alice W. Hodge's Napoleon, second. Bitches—Mrs. S. C. McKnight's Judy Mc., first; Joseph George's Daisy, second.

American Fox Hounds—Dogs—C. S. Purdy's Champion Ranger, first; Dr. R. L. Bohanan's Drew, second. Bitches—Harry F. Ragan's Obette, first.

Pekingese — Dogs — Mrs. Thomas Hasting's Bagatelle Dah of Toddington, first; the Misses Lowther's Champion Dan Sun of Clamarlow, second. Bitches—Mrs. F. C. McAllister's Yu Kot of Meridale, first; Mrs. Harry L. Soar's Bus of Wu Kee, second.

Pomeranian—Dogs—Mrs. Vincent De Meer's Pall Mall Riverlesh Prince, first; Mrs. F. R. Mayhew's Fox Hill Wee Flyaway, second. Bitches—Mrs. A. W. Rose's Fall Mall Becky Fleshers, first; Mrs. V. Matta's Little Black Lady, second.

Boston Terriers—Dogs—Mrs. M. C. McGlone's Lilils Peabody High, first; John H. Rooney's Rooney's Duke, second. Bitches—James Flynn's Valley Belle, first; Thomas Shield's Shield's Girl, second.

Chow Chows—Dogs—C. E. Libbey's Tang Hau Ki, II, first; Mrs. Robert Appleton's Radiant Husky Wing Tei, second. Bitches—Miss Claire Knapp's Champion Chop Suey of Clairdale, first; Mlle. Dorothy A. Andrade's Peckwall Ah Lo, second.

Samoyedes—Dogs—Mrs. John Earnshaw's Champion Kazan of Yurak, first; Louis Smirnow's Nico of Parminham, second. Bitches—Louis Smirnow's Olga of Parminghan, first; Yurak Kennels' Fox Liaka of Yurak, second.

was easily next best, but never had the slightest chance to make trouble for the leaders.

In this race, for the first time since his importation from England last Spring by Al Davis, that fine jumper, Ards, met defeat. He sprawled at the contest by the drenched infield and an ungainly effort to clear the third hurdle after the start sent his rider, Specs Crawford, tumbling to the turf. The rider was a bit shaken up, but not badly hurt. Ards had won thrice on this side of the water and had taken his last three races abroad also; it was his first beating in seven starts.

Pecoant was a warm favorite with the talent, being played from an opening price of 8 to 5 to close at 2 to 5. Ards and Sea Skipper were well backed, too, at around threes, while Earlocker was played from tens to eights.

Hereafter Captures Opening Sprint.

Hereafter, a five-year-old selling plater, bought out of a race at Saratoga by J. A. Coburn from J. I. Ward, who brought the horse from Kentucky to race at the Spa, made good for his new owner at the first asking, capturing the sprint of six-and-a-half furlongs which opened the afternoon's entertainment. The son of Dick Finnell broke second to Knight of the Heather, but passed the Casey gelding within the first eighth and, showing a keen fancy for the sloppy going, swam along in front for the rest of the voyage.

Coming to the last turn Hereafter was five lengths ahead of Knight of the Heather, which was second all the way, but the latter made up a lot of ground in the plunge down the stretch under the whip, although never threatening the pacemaker. At the line Hereafter was two lengths in front, under a gentle hand ride by Ensor, and Knight of the Heather beat Valor, the favorite, by five lengths for the place. The winner was held at the remunerative odds of 30 to 1.

WANAMAKER HORSES SCORE IN EXHIBITION

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 4.—With one of the largest lists of entries ever registered at an outdoor horse show in America, the eleventh annual Rochester horse show opened today. Most all of the large Eastern exhibitors whose horses have graced the local ring in other years were back again today and the crowd that turned out to see the first day's sport was larger than ever before.

Entries from Woodroyd Farms, of which William H. Wanamaker Jr. is proprietor, scored heavily in the day's events, the popular Sunrise and

NOT PLAYING POLITICS.

A member of the Cabinet, coming to the defense of the President, said on Sunday with deep feeling: "If anybody "thinks that WARREN HARDING has "been playing politics in this situation "he is wrong." It is a charge which no one but an envenomed partisan would make. The President has throughout the strikes borne himself like a man with an eye single to the public interest. His party might sink, for all he seemed to care, if only the country's well-being could be secured. If this be politics, make the most of it.

If proof were needed that President HARDING has not been playing politics, it could be found in the state of mind of the Republican managers. They differ only as to the extent of the blow which their party will receive in the November elections. That it will be heavy and damaging all of them admit. Their estimates of the majority by which the Republicans will control the next House of Representatives have been steadily dropping. A few weeks ago they talked about a probable 60 in place of the existing 166. Later they cut the figure to 40. Now they reluctantly put it at 24—a majority which, they concede, is "below the margin of safety."

No, it is certain that President HARDING has not been playing politics.

SYMPATHIZING WITH LABOR.

To encourage his followers on Labor Day, SAMUEL GOMPERS informed them that they "have few outside their own "ranks who sympathize with them in "their determination to emancipate "mankind." It is a good phrase, but not quite clear. The trainload of "mankind"—aged invalids, women and their babies—whom members of the gently named brotherhoods stalled in the California desert would regard that act as a faulty essay in emancipation. A similar doubt must have beset the miners at Herrin who were so summarily emancipated from their right as Americans to work—or even to live. If Winter comes—the poet SHELLEY and the novelist HUTCHINSON hold forth an encouraging possibility that it won't—the meaning of emancipation as Mr. GOMPERS conceives it will be plain not merely to railway passengers and unorganized laborers but to millions of the organized. For those who have, there will be something new in the way of coal bills; for those who have not, emancipation will mean an experience unlike that on the August desert, but scarcely more welcome to invalids, women and children.

Mr. GOMPERS's eulogy of the emancipation wrought by his followers had a refrain that punctuated it like a triolet or a camp-meeting hymn. It was "Organize! Organize! Organize in trade unions!" On the same day, W. Z. FOSTER told his hearers what he thought of organizing in trade unions. It was not at all complimentary. Among the railway men there are nine such organizations, of which only five went on strike. Can that be called organizing to emancipate mankind? Mr. FOSTER would have each basic industry, each public utility, organized as a single union extending throughout the nation. If any one refused then to be emancipated, he wouldn't have a chance for back talk.

To Mr. GOMPERS it is apparently a matter of pain and surprise that so few outside the ranks "sympathize with them." There are actually those who wish to "destroy unionism." Doubtless he is lamenting the time, not so long ago, when at the outbreak of industrial strife "mankind" sided instinctively with the supposed underdog of labor. That that time is definitively past is only one more evidence of the slow emancipation of mankind. There is no general condemnation of the principle of organization, of unionism as such. The demand is only that it be brought within the sphere of law, made to abstain from violence and public oppression. There is, or should be, a future for organized labor as bright as its past—but only as a harmonious part of the industrial state. Of that one hears little from what Mr. FOSTER describes as "$25,000-a-year labor leaders," especially on Labor Day.

PARTISANSHIP IN THE POST OFFICE.

Postmaster General WORK, much nagged of late by the National Civil Service Reform League, replies with zeal and virtuous intention to Mr. WILLIAM DUDLEY FOULKE, who charged him with violating President HARDING'S executive order of 1921, modifying WILSON'S order in regard to the selection of first, second and third class Postmasters. Thenceforth the some 13,000 Postmasters of those classes were to be selected by the appointment of any one of the three candidates highest on the eligible list. The League urged that the highest person on the list should be appointed.

Investigation by the League showed that in more than 56 per cent. of the cases examined the second or third man got the appointment. Political service, the recommendation of members of Congress, had a great influence. Thus Representative ROGERS of Massachusetts explained to the high man not appointed Postmaster at Woburn that SAM HIGHLEY had been his "principal Woburn representative in five Congressional contests." "I "feel under unusual obligations to "SAM," wrote Mr. ROGERS. So the United States paid that obligation. Mr. HARDING wanted Congress to bring the first, second and third class Postmasters into the classified service. That he has no power to do. Now the Civil Service law forbids the recommendations of any member of Congress being received save as to character or residence. Mr. HARDING had declared that the Presidential Postmasters ought to be classified. In that case, the political influence of the Congressman would be cut off and Mr. WORK wouldn't heed his recommendations. The point is technical. Mr. FOULKE stands for the spirit. Mr. WORK is content with the letter. "It "is an essential absurdity to have "competitive examination for the "purpose of eliminating spoils, and "still to admit patronage by the Con"gressmen," said the League last Spring.

According to Mr. WORK, the spoils system "means the substitution of "politics for merit in all of the clerical and subordinate forces of the "Government." The spoils system exists in part wherever it has not been driven out by the merit system. It exists in the Post Office Department. "Other things being equal," says Mr. WORK candidly, "we send to the "President the name of a Republican "if there is one on the list. * * * "Those higher positions in the Government which involve administrative policy, and where it is for the "good of the country that the office"holder should be in sympathy with "the President," shouldn't be under permanent "Civil Service." What administrative policy requires that the head of a Presidential Post Office have this set of political opinions or that? Post Offices are not likely to be better conducted according to the ancient lingering principle of spoils. As for the Administration, to "strengthen" which these political appointments to business offices are made, what Administration ever fails to get more kicks than votes from its solicitude about the Post Offices?

"FAMILY AFFAIRS."

"Why do you mix in our family affairs?" Such was the question of the business manager of the Moscow grand opera to the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES. It was provoked by the latter's inquiry concerning the directorship of the famous ballet. This particular matter, the ballet, may be a purely Russian family affair, though there is a great interest on the part of many in the art which the Russians have been markedly so successful in developing. The correspondent made the soft answer which turneth away wrath, and contented himself with reporting the scant fact of MORDKIN'S retirement to Tiflis.

Yet the question put by the Moscow manager is, after all, Russia's challenging question to the rest of the world. Translated into an even less courteous form it would tell the world, and America in particular, to mind its own business. The difficulty is to know exactly what is a "family affair" and what is our "own business." When is an affair that of one household and when is it, as well, a neighbor's affair? When does it transcend both family and neighborly concern and become a human affair?

When millions were starving last Winter in the Valley of the Volga we proceeded so far toward a definition as to say, not without some protest from the Communistic lexicographers, that this was not wholly a family affair, that it was the concern of all mankind and more especially of the United States, since we were best able to give relief. But the humane instincts which gave material expression of that conviction in tens of millions of dollars' worth of supplies were still left without a complete and satisfying answer. If there is an extra-family responsibility for alleviating an intra-family misery, does it begin only when the calamity arrives? Has it to do only with the hideous results and not at all with the causes, even if some of these lie wholly within the family?

There is, we are told on high authority, a typhus and cholera peril to Europe in the millions of cases in Russia. Despite the "strong probability," to quote Dr. COPELAND, that these "diseases will sweep through Europe," and may even take ship for America, is this still a family affair? If it is we have "mixed in" to the extent of inoculating, through the A. R. A., ten million persons. But is it not at any rate a European "affair"? There must be millions of children in Russia who are having not the meagerest sort of an education, and yet teachers and other intellectual and spiritual leaders have been banished by thousands. Is this a "family affair"? And is it a "family affair" that because of false economic doctrine and knavish or stupid political designing a large fraction of the white race is doomed to fresh disaster?

Many persons in America seem to agree with the implication of the Russian ballet manager's question, that we have no business to be mixing in. Fortunately, there are representatives of fifty nations sitting at Geneva who feel that the human race is, after all, a family of nations, and that there are some things which do concern the whole human family. When these are being considered the American people ought not to be so consumedly afraid of "mixing in."

BAYARD THE SIXTH?

Students of American political history will note with interest that Mr. THOMAS F. BAYARD has been nominated for United States Senator by the Delaware Democratic State Convention. Should he be elected he would be the sixth BAYARD of Delaware in the United States Senate. Mr. CLEVELAND'S Secretary of State and Ambassador, the first American Ambassador to Great Britain, is the best known of the race. Perhaps the first, JAMES ASHETON BAYARD, who entered the House of Representatives in 1797, and served in the Senate from 1805-1813, did the most useful political service. He did it as a Federalist leader, who had a great part in securing the election of JEFFERSON in the contest between him and BURR in 1800. The son of this Federalist BAYARD, the father of Mr. CLEVELAND'S THOMAS FRANCIS, didn't reach the Senate as a Democrat till the 50's, a generation or more after the Federalist Party, the party of "the wise, the good and the rich," as FISHER AMES called it, was dead.

If the present THOMAS FRANCIS BAYARD should go to the Senate, his presence there would make a new link in a long, honorable chain of distinction; yet it is the man and not the office that counts. Probably the least of the ADAMSES in nearly 200 years had more intellectual power than the best of the BAYARDS.

THE GRAND JURY SPEAKS.

The presentment of the August Grand Jury of New York County upon the 213 fatal motor accidents in the Borough of Manhattan in the first six months of this year contains recommendations that both the State and city authorities will do well to heed. A condition of things is shown that puts much of the blame upon lax enforcement of the Motor Vehicle law and inadequate traffic regulations. The findings of the Grand Jury are said to be based upon inquiries and investigations made by it. Of course this means that dependence had to be placed mainly upon court records and police returns. Twenty-two of the fatal accidents are reported as due to the fault of the driver and fifty-seven to the fault of the victim. In most police and court cases the family or friends of the victim are at a disadvantage in presenting evidence. The driver of the motor vehicle is always ready with his story. More of the fatalities compiled by the Grand Jury were caused by commercial motors, which generally carry two men, than by private cars or taxicabs. In 64 of the accidents the victims were crossing "between streets," but 149 victims were not. In putting together its figures the Grand Jury was no doubt embarrassed by confusion of testimony, and even by lack of it. For instance, the total of "unknown causes" is given as sixty-one.

Here is one finding of the greatest importance: Of the 213 victims, 98 were under 16. If their ages were given it would probably be found that children largely predominated. The child playing in the street, stealing rides and darting between moving vehicles is the terror of even careful drivers. However, it does not follow that when a child is killed the driver is never at fault. If the majority of pedestrians did not look out for themselves and give the motor vehicle the right of way the roll of victims would be much longer.

The Grand Jury points out that the State Tax Commission "is licensing "operators [drivers] at times at the "rate of 700 applicants a day, with "thirteen examiners, between the "hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M., * * * "an average of less than fifteen minutes separating individual examinations in blocks of fourteen." This "rush" method tells its own story. The Grand Jury recommends more rigid tests. Its other recommendations are that traffic regulations be made more stringent, that an automatic device to keep down the speed of commercial vehicles be installed, that more jail sentences be imposed for infractions of the law, that omnibuses be made to discharge their passengers always at the curb, that alternate crossing of pedestrians and passage of automotive vehicles be the rule at all congested traffic points, that chauffeurs and operators have their general health and eyesight properly certified, and that all be furnished with the Motor Vehicle law and the city regulations. Some of these recommendations call for amendment of the Motor Vehicle law. That is often urged ineffectually. The Grand Jury of this county having spoken, is it an idle hope that Albany will be impressed?

THE BATTLE OF THE NOTES.

The Balfour note has inevitably called out another Poincaré note. The latter is not so studiously courteous in form as was the former, and several English editors and publishers are fairly aching to reply to it. They see, or think they see, several joints in the harness of the French Premier's logic into which they feel that they could thrust an irritating pen. But the sounder view seems to be that it is better to put an end to this diplomatic fencing between Great Britain and France. Neither side is convinced by the other's arguments, so why prolong the controversy merely for the sake of scoring a rhetorical or dialectical triumph? As the whole question of war debts is to be taken up afresh at a new conference in November, it seems futile to encourage Lord BALFOUR and M. POINCARE to continue their verbal sword play.

The fundamentals of the French position were laid down by M. POINCARE in his speech of Aug. 21 to the Conseil Général of the Meuse. His subsequent note merely expanded or reaffirmed what he then said on the subject of the war debts of the Allies. His language was so clear and precise that a part of it is worth quoting:

> Can the slightest comparison be established between what Germany owes the Allies and what the Allies owe each other? To confuse debts so distinct would be the most monstrous wrong. Germany has to make good the mischief which she wrought, and this necessary reparation should naturally have a priority over every other arrangement. The interallied debts were all contracted in the interest of the common cause. If England were to desire to be immediately reimbursed for what we bought of her during the war, and if, at the same time, she were to hinder the payment of reparations, she would compel us to turn to our allies who are our debtors, and so we should be asked to demand payment from Italy, Rumania and Serbia of the sums which we were called upon to pay and which we were not allowed to obtain from Germany.
> It is needless for me to say that we could not agree to be placed in so strange a position. We do not dream for a moment of calling in our credits with our allies. First of all, it is our credit upon Germany which we wish to recover. Until that is done it is morally and materially impossible for us to discharge our debt to our English friends. They, for their part, will understand that we have no wish to dun our common friends.

There the matter must stand for the present. It could not be cleared away even if the battle of the notes were to be prolonged or resumed. By November the Supreme Council will be better able to get its bearings. It will then know whether the adjustment between Belgium and the German Government is going to be workable. It will also have a truer line on the developments of German public finance and politics. Ardently, therefore, as the skilled writers on either side of the Channel may desire to expose and refute each other's diplomatic communications, it is to be hoped that they will cultivate restraint, or have it imposed upon them by superior authority.

FIGURES FOR FARMERS.

Mr. EDISON proposed a special finance for the farmers because they got "skinned" through ignorance of figures. But their education is proceeding apace. Those wise in the ways of markets are advising holding crops for higher prices. This is the "conservative marketing" policy. It is right when prices are rising, but wrong when prices are falling. The farmers ought to be financed, but commercial banks should have the least possible to do with a business which is not self-liquidating. No one is wise enough to say whether grain prices will rise or fall. But it is certain that there is an almost immeasurable foreign demand.

The publication Farm and Home offers instruction in politics. Dollar wheat at Chicago may mean as little as 60 cents on the farms, and Congress is to blame. The higher it builds the tariff wall the smaller are our exports, because foreigners cannot pay in goods for what they are unable to buy with gold. The farmers have been deflated, but Farm and Home reminds them that the coal and railway strikers have not been. Also, much money is going into war expenditures throughout the world which would line the farmers' pockets if spent for food. Hence the farmers are for disarmament, and for thrift in public expenses.

No possible harm can come from this sort of teaching of the farmers. It will help them both as merchants and as voters. But is Farm and Home justified in saying that there is an "international scandal in low prices for wheat"? If our tariff prevents our selling abroad is not that the same thing as giving the world market to our competitors, Canada, Argentina and Australia?

BROOKLYN'S CROSSTOWN SUBWAY.

The Transit Commission's plan for a subway from Queens to Coney Island is in no sense a response to the Mayor's. The route was part of the original scheme for subways. Such routes are useful as both feeders and distributers of traffic. Brooklyn and Queens need facilities for intraborough travel, and between Sound and Ocean. And in both boroughs great areas await development, as in the Bronx, by easy communication.

The Mayor and the commission would, for the most part, necessarily use the same streets. But the commission plan proposes to give far more for a nickel, and to give it as soon as the city provides the funds. If the Board of Estimate continues to obstruct, realization of the plan will be remote. In just the degree that the new facilities are afforded there will be relief for the overcrowded routes now in existence. The commission's plan has an advantage in its proposed connection with the Fulton Street elevated lines in Brooklyn. Even the Mayor ought to approve the proposal of removal of that blemish on part of Brooklyn's best business street.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Prosperity of Beggars.

Whatever be the economic or social parasitism of some or many beggars—and here in New York the "easy money" of these workers upon public sympathy is once more held up as a warning to kindly credulity and American ready-handedness—one often feels that, as CHARLES LAMB said of the London mendicants of his time, "Much good might be sucked from these beggars." Their disguises, "faked" infirmities, mingled patter of whine and threat, not seldom their avocation as distinguished from a profession, were amusing.

Some of us remember fondly the complex cripple who stood in front of City Hall Park for years. One night a frenzy seized him. He threw his appealing crutches across Broadway. He danced madly on perfect legs. It was hard to blame an "imposition on the public" so spiritedly played, tossed away, resumed. There was the blind pencil merchant whose day station was by Trinity Churchyard. At night, bright-eyed and well-dressed, he dined in good restaurants and hailed with an engaging impudence any downtown customers who happened to recognize him. There was a tramp who collected pennies and nickels in cafés. Prosperous, clean-shaven, in clothes well-cut, he passed his evenings in "bucking the tiger" in Ann Street.

These men and their co-mates kept up the long jovial tradition of their trade, much relished in literature. Why do we give money to a beggar of whose need or sincerity we know nothing? To gratify our vanity, show our superiority? It might be maintained plausibly that the exchange of pretenses between the beggar man and his patrons is just about equal. Why shouldn't we rejoice in the prosperity of beggars? Remember LAMB'S story of the Bank clerk who got his five-hundred-pound legacy from "some blind Bartimeus" in whose hat he had dropped half a penny for twenty years. Bread upon the waters!

Controlling Railway Accidents.

"A single defect in track or equipment," says a bulletin issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad, "may cause a fatal train wreck." Yet during the twelve months ended with last May not a passenger lost his life. The system operates 27,000 miles of track, 271,000 freight cars, 8,000 passenger cars and 8,000 locomotives. The total of passengers was 152,000,000. In a land so long indifferent to the toll of railway accidents the achievement is noteworthy.

Accidents at grade crossings are not so easily dealt with, for here the leading factor is the carelessness of the public. During the past five years the total of those killed in the United States has fallen only from 1,969 to 1,705. The number of injured has risen slightly, from 4,764 to 4,896. The companies belonging to the American Railway Association have begun a campaign to make motorists more careful. Of the seven rules six may be paraphrased as "Slow down, look and listen"; but one will be new to many. It is: "Shift into a lower gear to prevent stalling on the tracks."

An automobile engine running slowly in high is easily stalled—by the roughness of the tracks or by a wrong movement made in the surprise of suddenly seeing a train. On the lower gear there is less likelihood of stalling and, furthermore, it is possible to put on speed more quickly.

The Father of the Man.

Among the columns recording achievements of Viscount NORTHCLIFFE in the British press, some modest paragraphs almost buried possess a singular interest. They refer to the newspaper man's first adventures as an editor, when, as ALFRED HARMSWORTH, aged 13, he guided the destinies of The Henley House School Magazine.

Although published in 1878, the excerpts printed from the few numbers of the little school paper bear a curious resemblance both in method and phraseology to the style of the present-day Northcliffe press. There is a characteristic note in the boy editor's first "leader." He writes: "I have it on the best authority that the paper is to be a marked success." The next number follows up this assurance with the statement that the editor is "glad to say that the prediction as to the success of the magazine proved correct." Something of the well-known Northcliffe flair for publicity and circulation-booming schemes comes in a later issue, which records "the excitement manifested when it became known that there would be a Grand Extra Double Summer Seaside Number of the magazine." Another "Double Number" followed at Christmas time, when he writes: "Our printing office on the night of production presented a scene never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it—the inglorious spectacle of an editor aiding in the production of his own writings."

So curiously true to form are these early writings and ideas that, even if the authorship were in doubt, it would require no literary detective to prove that the boy editor of The Henley House School Magazine and the titled director of Carmelite House and all its multiple interests were one and the same.

Herr Ebert of Bremen.

The visit of President EBERT to his "old home town" of Bremen reminds his friends there that he has been a man of many occupations. The world knows him as the harnessmaker who became President of the German Republic. A harnessmaker, like a cobbler, is naturally given to newspaper reading and politics. So it does not seem strange that EBERT left the bench for the editorial chair.

His organ of opinion is described as "a modest daily newspaper." The adjective is puzzling. Was it an obscure sheet with the Sheriff knocking at the door, or shy and diffident in making its merits known? In either case, success apparently did not come, for EBERT turned to inn-keeping. In this calling he seems to have made a hit. He became "the popular proprietor of a prosperous inn." But in part it was the "good bourgeois cooking" of his better half that made the business pay.

Stories have been told of Frau EBERT'S dislike for pomp and circumstance in her dignity as "first lady of the land." She yearns for the bourgeois dishes, which are never served at State dinners, and for the snug quarters of the harness-making days, when it was not bad form to eat in the kitchen. As an inn-keeper Herr EBERT could talk politics with his guests and be heard respectfully. Master of the cellar, he was a personage. In Germany an affable host may be a bigger man than the editor of a "modest daily newspaper." A fourth occupation was not necessary to qualify EBERT for a career in politics, his rise in which is another story.

Letters of Viscount Bryce Wanted.

In view of the desire which has been expressed that a biography of the late Viscount Bryce should be published, Viscountess Bryce would be grateful if his friends in the United States would have the courtesy to forward to her, care of the Macmillan Company, 64 Fifth Avenue, New York, any of his letters which they may have preserved. The letters would be duly returned as soon as copies had been taken of them.

THE LAW IN THE CASE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the criticisms upon the injunction granted in the suit just brought by the United States, let me call attention to the fact that the Clayton act only applies to suits between employers and employes. It has no application to a suit brought by the United States. Injunctions similar to those just issued were granted by the Federal courts in 1894. Debs and Lennon disobeyed them and were imprisoned for such disobedience. The orders of the courts below were sustained by the Supreme Court (In re Debs, 158 U. S. 564; ex parte Lennon, 163 U. S. 548).

"Government by injunction" is government by law. The writ is granted to prevent men from taking the law into their own hands. It is really an essential part of the police power and in the present case it will enable the Government to protect interstate commerce and the right of the citizen to travel or ship goods free from lawless violence.

The Middleman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In discussing the high cost of living there is nothing said about the profits of the middleman. A farmer in Saratoga County told me that he paid to the local coal dealer $12 a ton for coal, f. o. b. cars. He happened to see the dealer's bill, showing that the coal had been bought in the car at Troy for $6.50 the long ton and that the Troy wholesaler had in turn secured it f. o. b. cars Troy at $6.

When apples were selling in New York City at several dollars a barrel, the grower in Saratoga County could not get 50 cents a barrel at the farm and fruit was allowed to rot on the ground, for the empty barrels cost within a few cents of what buyers offered for full ones.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The reduction in army officer personnel, as lately provided by law, is not ill advised. Relative to the full strength of the army (enlisted and officer personnel) the reduction is only sensible and makes the officer personnel of proportionate strength. Having been an officer in the navy for a number of years, I know that the statement that the condition will overtax the remaining army officers in work is erroneous. In a vocation in which there is no hazard of personal fortune or position, the attitude of Congress on pay and other considerations has been generous toward officers. You point to the warnings of Secretary Weeks and General Pershing; they are the chief representatives of the army at present; the army's interests are their interests.

Peary's Fame.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I knew Peary and had the opportunity of learning more of him in his last illness. When he knew death was approaching, and in the tranquillity of his study, he had not a harsh word to utter against his calumniators.

Such utterances as yours in THE TIMES will eventually bring to Peary's memory that fame which he so richly merited in life.

A CHILD'S GRAVE IN BRITTANY.

Laughter in the young grass,
And merriment.
A new moon in the sky,
And no wind's lament!

Ninon, Ninon is sleeping,
There is no sound of weeping,
Only the elf-folk creeping
To play in her tangled hair.

What does she know or care,
Ninon, the straight young child?
An hundred years she is dead,
Yet a moment ago she smiled,
For the star flowers stirred at her head.
Ninon, the straight young child,
Does she dream in her narrow bed?
Does she sweetly dream, that she smiled?

Ninon, Ninon is sleeping,
There is no sound of weeping,
Only the elf-folk creeping . . .

Laughter in the young grass,
And merriment.
A new moon in the sky,
And no wind's lament!

REACHING THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Lecturers on public health, morals and civic improvements wish to reach as wide an audience as the importance of their subjects warrants. Yet, while most of these lectures are free, or given at small cost in public buildings, and though the greater part of them are afterward published in book or pamphlet form, it is doubtful if, written or spoken, even a single word ever reaches that part of the public for whom the lectures are primarily intended.

In the open-air concerts in the Stadium isn't there a hint to those who would reach the poorer and least educated of our citizens? Those are folk who never enter a lecture hall or read an American paper, but most of whom can understand spoken English. If the lecturers on such elementary subjects as cleanliness, health and beauty would institute a series of open-air lectures, might it not follow that, even though the immediate words of the speaker failed to reach the outermost circle, yet the repetition, even the echo of those words, from neighbor to neighbor and mother to child, would carry further than the same words addressed to a better educated audience, further even than those words in print read within the same narrow limits?

If knowledge of good and beautiful things should be acquired while men are yet children, then let our educators begin by instilling that knowledge into the childlike minds of our aliens, both old and young. Why leave it only to fakers and self-advertisers to attract their ears and eyes? Get down into the arena and fight for clean cities and beauty in homes. Talk in the public squares, on street corners, from a soap-box. It may be that municipal government itself will sometimes attain to a degree of civilization which will authorize the erection of balconies and small stands in parts of the city where the vendors of better living, better government and better ideals may show their wares to the people.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The newspapers report that some children have drawn up petitions asking the good citizens to influence the city officials to establish a permanent "municipal camp" to which school children could be sent away for a vacation of two or three weeks. The idea is a good one and should sink in the minds of the public.

When it is understood that over 40,000 youngsters spend their Summers in the city in crowded streets and dark and dingy vacation playgrounds, it will be seen that it is to the advantage of the city to send our boys and girls to places where they can recuperate from their hard work in school.

The one question doubtless is, "Where is the money to be gotten?" That is a pretty serious one, I understand, but it will be remembered that the Board of Education is now spending millions of dollars for vacation playgrounds where sunlight never enters. The poor kiddies are forced to breathe foul air. They get no vacation in the true sense; children need air and plenty of ground for physical freedom. A large portion of money for such a camp could easily be lopped off the vacation playground appropriations and spent for a real vacation camp. Every child might be sent away for three or four weeks, and I am sure that Mayor Hylan, always a friend of the school children, will exert his official influence when given all the details of the plan. The Funny Side of It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe that the reformers and all who honestly uphold the dry law are good people, in good faith doing their utmost to bring this present age to a better stage, sacrificing themselves for the benefit of others. But the strange thing is this: The forbidden fruit flows freely in the rich man's house as well as in the poor man's humble dwelling, in the rear of the cobbler shop, in the tonsorial parlor, in the elegant salon of the socially elect, in the simpler but equally festive atmosphere of various studios, at weddings, at banquets, &c. Politicians, jurists, diplomats, business men, artists, priests admit not to drink; fatally the production of wine and spirits has materially increased since prohibition became law. "Enforce the law!" is the cry of the reformers; and I think this is the comical side of it: the more seriously they talk the more amusing it sounds.

A Beer Questionnaire.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Do you believe that light wines and beer would help or hinder the solution of the present labor problem? Do you believe there would be a fair-sized revenue from a tax on light wines and beer, or would the enforcement of the law cost as much as the total revenue? Do you give preference to drinking men when employing them on your staff or in your workshop; and do you believe any percentage of alcohol tends to promote efficiency? If so, do you find the more alcohol the more efficiency?

Would you be in favor of the engineer on your train taking a generous drink before starting, and how about the dispatcher; when should he take his nip?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

America's visitors to Europe in the last year have found the English clerks in tourist agencies active in their discrimination against American ships and persistent in efforts to route us home by British ships instead of the new American liners.

Are we expected by British ship owners to throttle our new merchant marine and be again at the mercy of foreign shipping in time of war? Why does she interpret all our efforts to build up a merchant marine as hostile to her? Cannot American citizens see their duty to the American marine to book their return passage by an American boat?

The Laborer and His Hire.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why do people tip a waiter? They receive nothing extra either in food, drink or attention by tipping. They tip because the other fellow does it, and through fear of the other fellow considering them "cheap skates." I do not "tip" waiters or "tip" any one else. I consider it beneath my dignity to recognize organized paupers. If they cannot make a livelihood as waiters, then let them secure a new occupation.

An End to Picketing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The labor unions obtained their strangle hold through picketing—merely an excuse to intimidate any one who sought the job they deserted. Therefore, to put an end to strikes, put an end to picketing, and put any man, woman or boy in jail at hard labor who interferes with, intimidates, threatens or molests in any way any one or any member of his or her family, or instigates or is a party to any boycott placed on any of them because of their seeking employment. PERILS OF INEFFICIENCY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A recent report by the Treasury Department on foreign and landed valuations of imported merchandise, covering everything from cabbage seed, shoe strings and harmonicas to necklaces, four-hundred-day clocks and silk dyers, shows an average percentage of retail price to landed cost of 47.39. By landed cost is meant the value of the article bought abroad plus transportation, insurance, freight and duty. The average duty in this report is about 33 per cent.

Unless labor recognizes the fact that its lack of efficiency is its greatest trouble and that as long as it does not produce some one else will produce, it is going to see hard times. A fair wage for services rendered is absolutely right, but if labor desires prosperity, let it produce sufficiently for services rendered. If labor does not do this, it is going to live on foreign goods till its money is gone and it is out of work, and our industries shut down because they cannot compete with foreign trade, or the United States is going to put a terrifically high duty on all imports and labor is going to die of starvation just that much faster. For a nation to succeed the average man must put forth the average amount of effort to create the necessities and luxuries he consumes. In short, efficiency produces prosperity. Let the employer pay a fair wage, but the workman is not earning what he consumes.

Get to work, Mr. Workingman, and get efficiency. Nine-tenths of your employers are broke and considerably in debt, while you are at worst broke or badly bent. In five years you can have every one in the universe working his head off to make things efficient and easy for you and every one will greet you with a smile, which is not what he is doing right now.

The Domestic Fuel Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Domestic anthracite (stove, egg and nut sizes) is a manufactured product, just as furniture, for instance, is. The steam sizes (buckwheat, barley, &c.), are a by-product like the sawdust and chips of a furniture factory. They are sold for what they will bring, going as low as $1 a ton, New York Harbor. Although selling at a loss, this contributes by that much to reduce the cost of the manufactured article. Pea coal comes between the two grades, being used for both household and steam purposes.

Is it not practicable to burn steam sizes in ordinary household equipment, and how should it be fired? Pea can be so used, but a good bed of ashes must be kept under it to hold it in the grate.

I am told that an ordinary steam-heating household furnace can be fired with wood, hot enough to blow off the safety valve. Is this so?

In view of large use of coke is it possible to bank a coke fire to keep it over night? Coke is very hot and quick burning.

Advertising the Rent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I endorse with "A Cave Dweller" the desirability of naming rent in apartment advertisements. I acquired an almost uncanny facility when reading the "To Let" columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES in seeing at a glance if the advertisement included the $ sign. When it did not, as in most cases, I did not take the trouble to read the advertisement. No description is as important as "rent asked."

New York, Sept. 1, 1922.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Cave Dweller" is not alone in his experience. Under the classifications "Furnished Apartments to Let" and "Furnished Rooms to Let" I have been seeking a room and bath for myself, but as the advertisers seem to consider the price an unimportant item, they put themselves to the needless trouble of showing their rooms, and the seeker to an expenditure of time and energy, all of which could very easily be avoided by putting the necessary information as to terms in the advertisement.

The Kind of Laundry You Want.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The laundry industry today knows that the housewife is eagerly looking for some method of handling her family laundry in a satisfactory manner and at a price within her reach. Mrs. Heath laments the many different systems on the market at the present time. Could any more convincing proof of the desire of the laundries to give the public better service be found than in the different systems offered? There is, literally, service for every purse, but, of course, some are better and consequently more expensive than others. It may require a little shopping for the housewife to find just exactly what she wants, but it is here and is ever increasing quantity.

The Poll and Prohibition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not believe the poll now being taken by The Literary Digest is fair in the impression it is creating in the mind of the public. If a poll of this town were taken it would show 20 to 1 in favor of absolute enforcement. The vote of a factory was exploited by The Digest to indicate the great desire for a change in the Volstead act! I know of no minister of my acquaintance who has been sent a vote by The Digest. They are not being given a chance to vote. The Digest has not taken a fair representative poll of either university students, teachers and professors, ministers of all denominations and many other classes of people whose vote would be almost solid for prohibition.

Foster, Lewis and Jewell.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The last paragraph of your editorial of Aug. 26 on "Foster and the Bishops" gains in the significance of its comparison by the fact that it follows so complete a demonstration of the views and the menace, of W. Z. Foster. The similarity between his attitude and that of Lewis and Jewell is undeniable. The stand of Lewis and Jewell is fundamentally sheer Bolshevism—the domination of the many by the few under the camouflage of regard

FIRST-CLASS FARES ON LINERS TO BE CUT

Reduction of 10 Per Cent. on Older and Smaller Atlantic Ships.

WINTER RATE IN EFFECT

Nine Vessels Being Converted Into One-Cabin Vessels With Moderate Prices.

There will be no reduction in the mouth class and steerage rates from New York to European ports, but there will be a cut of about 10 per cent. made in the first class fares on the older and smaller steamships like the Kroonland and Finland of the Red Star Line and the Nordam and Ryndam of the Holland-America Lines.

The Winter rate of $265 minimum first class on the White Star Liners Baltic, Celtic, Cedric and Adriatic to Liverpool and the Cunarders Carmania and Caronia went into effect on Friday last.

What is called the "one-cabin" class of steamships, that is, those which only carry second and third class passengers, are increasing steadily in popularity with Americans of moderate means who wish to travel abroad and do not like the idea of having people possessing more of the world's goods than themselves looking down upon them. The new one-cabin steamships for the Atlantic trade have rooms with private baths, nurseries fitted with all kinds of toys for the children and gymnasiums for the men with verandah cafés on deck.

One-Cabin Ships Popular.

One of the veteran steamship managers, who has had over thirty years' experience in the trade, said yesterday that he expected to see all the slow vessels converted into one-cabin ships and three classes, first, second and third class passengers carried on the fast express liners only.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has seen the success of its one-cabin service between Montreal, Quebec and Liverpool and has ordered five steamships, oil burners, of 18,400 gross tonnage to be built and equipped with all the latest improvements for the safety and comfort of its patrons. The Montcalm, the third one, started on her maiden eastward voyage on Friday, following her two sister ships the Montcalm and the Montrose, which are both in service now. They have an average speed of 17 knots.

Some of the new vessels which will be added to the New York-Atlantic services before the Spring of 1923 are two new 17,000-ton liners for the Holland-America Line, the 20,000-ton Dugrax of the French line, two 22,000-ton liners for the North-German Lloyd and two for the Hamburg-American line, a 22,000-ton liner for the Italian lines, two liners of 20,000 gross tons, each carrying first class passengers only, for the Atlantic Transport Line from New York to London, the 20,000-ton twin screw liner Belgenland for the Red Star Line and others for the Cunard Lines service from New York to the Mediterranean and the Boston to Liverpool and Montreal to Liverpool services.

Catering Cost Declines.

The expenses of catering for the first-class passenger liners has been as high as $4.00 a day and now with the reduction in the cost of food it is fully $3 per head, $1.85 for the second class and about $1 per head for the steerage according to the number on board, which also applies to the other two classes of passengers.

Some idea of what it costs to operate a big Atlantic liner for the round trip from Southampton to New York and back via Cherbourg may be had from a voyage of the White Star Liner Olympic last Summer. The ship was full in all three classes and her earnings amounted to £158,000. After all expenses had been paid there remained the sum of £13,000 to be placed to the profit account which was to make up for all the lean voyages during the year. The cost of the oil fuel alone for the new 56,000-ton Liner Majestic is $10,000 a day.

There has not been much improvement in the ocean freight business because there is too much idle tonnage which swamps any movement of merchandise at once. The coal strike has created a demand for tonnage to bring the fuel to New York and freighters of all nationalities are being rushed to the ports in Wales and the North of England to get aboard by cutting the rates against the American and British steamships, which cost from 25 to 75 per cent. more to operate than the Continental lines.

The engagement is announced of Miss Sarah Latimer, youngest daughter of the late Senator Latimer of South Carolina, to Robert Clement Watson of this city. The wedding will take place in October at the home of the bride in Belton, S. C.

The Berkshires.

A few brave spirits who were in Berkshire for golf tramped through rain over soaked greens yesterday, but most of the courses were deserted. Sweepstakes at Stockbridge arranged by Casper G. de Gersdorff and Henry R. Stern were postponed. The final matches in Lenox and Pittsfield tennis tournaments also went over for a day.

One of the largest gatherings yesterday afternoon was at Wheatleigh, where Mrs. Carlos M. de Heredia entertained more than one hundred members of the Lenox Garden Club and guests. Miss Mary Rockwell Coy gave an interesting description of famous English and Italian gardens. She is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Banyer Clarkson in Tyringham.

Mrs. Hattie Clapper Morris was the guest of honor for whom Mrs. Henry Fairfield Jones had a reception and tea with music at her villa in Stockbridge yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Horton Lippincott entertained at luncheon at her home on Prospect Hill at Stockbridge yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Blagden, who have the Misses Katherine Blagden and Katharine McClenahan and Miss Kendall Stearns as guests at Stockbridge, had a dinner party of twenty-three members of the young set last night.

Mrs. Warren Rockwood Gibbs opened her house at Richmond yesterday afternoon for a concert by a quartet of negro singers from Hampton Institute, at Hampton, Va., and brief address by its President, Dr. James E. Gregg. The patronesses included Mrs. Gregg, Mrs. Zamas Crane, Miss Clara L. Crane, the Misses Elizabeth W. Hinsdale, Anne L. Dawes and Harriet T. Plunkett.

Among arrivals at the Red Lion Inn at Stockbridge are Mr. and Mrs. George McCall, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Thomas of Philadelphia, Captain Chester Wells, U. S. A., and Mrs. Wells of Chevy Chase, Md.

One of the best golfers who has played on the Stockbridge course this season is Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who defeated Representative Allen T. Treadway in an eighteen-hole match yesterday afternoon.

CAN'T SAIL FOR MEXICO.

Passengers at Plymouth Fail to Get Visas, So Hammonia Doesn't Dock.

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 4.—The steamer Hammonia of the Hamburg-American Line should have sailed from Plymouth today to initiate the new passenger and mail service to Mexico by way of Cuba. The passengers awaiting embarkation here, however, had omitted to obtain Mexican visas in London. Consequently the Hammonia was ordered to proceed, omitting her Plymouth call.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—The Mexican Government in pursuance of its policy of cutting expenses has issued an order that purchases on its account shall be made for cash only. Those who have brought agencies, purchasing agent, and a saving of 25 per cent is expected.

TERROR CAMPAIGN FAILING IN IRELAND

MANY RETURN TO HOMES

De Valera and Childers Are Believed to Have Directed Saturday Battle in Cork.

DUBLIN, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—The Republican campaign of ambushes and destruction continues, but on a smaller scale than in the past. During the week-end two bridges were blown up near Dotterkenny and the hay crops of rebel farmers in South Tyrconny were burned.

Castle Gore at Ballina, the historic Moyo seat of the Earl of Ayran, was burned to the ground yesterday. Thirteen armed and masked men presented themselves at the gate at 8 o'clock in the morning and covered the caretakers with revolvers while they set fire to the castle. The great building was soon in flames and valuable antique furniture and works of art were destroyed.

The Nationalists captured a Republican outpost at Ballymacelligott, in the eastern corner of Glenflesk, Donegal County, without firing a shot, and also captured a large ammunition dump of the Irregulars.

Eamon de Valera and Erskine Childers are believed to have participated in a battle near Kilworth, County Cork, on Saturday. During the conflict, in which National troops defeated a greatly superior number of Irregulars, a guard of prisoners of the latter party made a desperate effort to escape from which the two Republican leaders are believed to have directed the operations.

As the time for the meeting of the Irish Parliament approaches renewed rumors are in circulation of plans to bring about peace between the Government and the Irregulars. It is pointed out that the nucleus of a possible peace party exists in a combination of the Labor Party and the Independents, but in Government circles there is no talk of any compromise, the essential condition of peace being declared in these circles to be surrender on the part of the Irregulars.

The four Parliamentary vacancies caused by the deaths of Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins, Charles Burgess and Harry Boland will afford the electors in widely separated districts the opportunity of pronouncement on the Anglo-Irish treaty and the Government's policy.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Sept. 4.—Three hundred hungry Irregulars came down from mountains near Macroom, in County Cork, and attempted to raid the town for food supplies. They attacked the positions held by the national troops for nearly nine hours, and it was only when shelled by field guns that they were put to flight. Two national soldiers were killed during the fighting.

According to official reports the Irregulars suffered heavy casualties before removing their dead by horse transport.

This is one of the few occasions on which the Irregulars have attempted to take the offensive and it is known their object was not so much to capture Macroom as to procure food stores there.

Since De Valera's followers were driven from the towns they no longer have been able to solve their commissariat problems by systematic looting. Already they are feeling the pangs of hunger and are finding life on the mountains less tolerable than it was in the west hotels. Some of them are making their way homeward so they can keep a comfortable fire and indulge in a little sniping by night.

Others in parties of twenty or thirty are banding themselves together into flying columns to go foraging for the necessities of life.

The armoured car, Wicklow Head, which was arrested by destroyers at Queenstown on Friday, was brought under escort today into Dublin Bay. A party of national troops has been placed aboard and, although search of the vessel is to be made, no guard.

Today's list of outrages is rather lighter than usual. The tearing up of street car lines appears to be the latest form of sabotage. County Councils and other public bodies are becoming so tired of the everlasting warfare that they are commencing to talk about calling a conference among themselves with a view to bringing both sides together to air their differences. Some have already appointed delegates.

INQUIRE INTO DEATH OF ARMY SERGEANT

The Brooklyn police yesterday were pressing their inquiry into the killing of Sergeant John Huiquist of the Army Quartermaster Corps, whose body was found in a lot near 5,708 Second Avenue, Brooklyn. He had been struck on the head with a chair, and then beaten and kicked as he lay prostrate, according to information gathered by the police. The police have the name and description of a man believed to have caused the soldier's injuries. They have not learned the cause of the quarrel.

In the course of the investigation, officers Max Wolf and George Lenon of Inspector Sackett's staff searched the premises occupied by Mrs. Antoinette Piolo and her husband Phillip at 5,707 Second Avenue. The couple have a grocery store in the front. In the rear, the officials allege, they found a bottle containing gin, another bottle containing wine, and still another bottle holding whisky. Piolo was not arrested, but his wife was taken into custody and charged with violation of the Mullan-Gage law.

When questioned she is alleged to have admitted that Huiquist had been drinking in her place Sunday night. She said he was alone and that he did not get into any trouble while there. She was held in $300 bail for examination by Magistrate Geismar in the Fifth Avenue Court.

Huiquist served fourteen years in the army. He was in France and on the Rhine. Recently he had been on the army transport Cambria. He received $96 pay on Sept. 1. When his body was found there was no money in his pockets.

TROOPS LEAVE CAMP DIX.

Eighteenth Infantry Marches Today and Seventeenth to Follow Soon.

CAMP DIX, N. J., Sept. 4.—With the departure of the Eighteenth Infantry from Camp Dix tomorrow, abandonment of the camp will be begun in earnest, it was learned today. By Dec. 1 only such troops remaining will be garrisoned.

The Eighteenth Infantry will march from here to Fort Hamilton, N. Y., where it will be stationed. On Sept. 15 the Third Battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry will leave New York, and in November will be followed by the Second, the last battalion of that regiment.

GOVERNMENT SCORED IN HERRIN CELEBRATION

CARBONDALE, Ill., Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Union men in the coming in the Southern Illinois coal fields gathered here for the celebration of their "holiday today"—Labor Day. Public officials took stringent precautionary measures, providing twenty-five extra policemen and Deputy Sheriffs, while the Illinois Central Railroad sent sixty extra guards.

Mine prominent in union circles were among the speakers, including State Senator W. F. Small, President of the Herrin Subdistrict of the Illinois Mine Workers, and John H. Frey, of Cincinnati, editor of the Iron Moulders' Journal.

Large delegations attended from neighboring towns, including Herrin, scene of the recent massacre, and Marion, where a Grand Jury is investigating the Herrin deaths.

In the parade was a float containing fifteen small boys from Herrin bearing a long pine coffin, on which was printed "Here Lie Some We Will Take Their Places."

Frey in his address called the United States Government "the greatest strike-breaking agency in the country." He declared the temporary injunction obtained by Attorney General Daugherty as "a palpable violation of the Constitution because it denies the right of trial by jury."

He declared the first principle of guilty was to come into court with "clean hands," and this, he asserted, the railroads have failed to do "because of the guilty part they have played in the events leading to the mining troubles."

CRITICISES 'AMERICAN PLAN'

Robertson of Locomotive Firemen, Says Unions Fight Serfdom.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 4.—The American Plan Association campaign was criticised by D. B. Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, in a Labor Day message. He said:

"The modern trade union is the first effective challenge to the world-old theory of serfdom, and around this challenge centres all opposition to organized labor. To continue their status of inferiority and maintain control of the workers, employers have introduced the 'open shop' and individual bargaining known as the 'American plan.'

"Fortunately for the workers, they have been students of the 'open-shop' question, and through the propaganda circulated by the employers have become educated to the fact that a world-wide 'open-shop' campaign has been launched for the purpose of destroying the trade unions.

"The craft union workers have set their standard of intelligence, solidarity and determination in an advanced position against the open shop and against the industrial part theory. To stand united against the establishment of such conditions can mean nothing else but that those, with proper unjust and un-American standards, will soon pass into history."

LEGIONARIES HONOR DEAD.

LONDON, Sept. 4. (Associated Press).—The delegation of American Legion members now touring England conducted memorial services in Brookwood Cemetery, near London, today, laying wreaths on the graves of 460 Americans, victims of the war, buried there. The heads of all were bared as the chaplain recited prayers.

Later the delegation members were guests of high English army officers at Aldershot, where the latest type of tank was demonstrated and a ceremonial drill by the Scots Guards was held. The members of the party lunched at the Officers' Club and afterward watched a polo match and an exhibition of physical skill in outdoor army games.

Tomorrow they will be guests of the British Government at a luncheon when Sir Laming Worthington Evans, the Secretary of War, will preside and other officials will attend.

The Legionaries will complete their stay in London tomorrow afternoon with a visit to the Tower of London, after which they will start for Scotland, where they will visit the cemeteries containing American dead and from which they will sail for home Sept 8.

WAREHOUSE MAN A SUICIDE.

Jersey City Truckman's Act Laid to Business Reverses.

Business reverses were believed by the police to be responsible for the suicide last night of Emrich R. Wessels, formerly Exalted Ruler of the Elks of Jersey City and prominent in several other fraternal organizations in New Jersey. A policeman found him dead in a chair in the inner office of his warehouse at 420 Newark Avenue, Jersey City. He had turned on several jets in a small gas stove.

That he had killed himself was borne out by a note he had scribbled on the back of an envelope found on a desk nearby, in which he requested Robert McDonald of the Elks Club in Jersey City to send the following telegram to his daughter, Mrs. Mae A. Russell, Flatbrook Road, Marlborough, N. Y.: "Mr. Wessels met with an accident. May be serious. Come at once."

Twenty years ago Mr. Wessels was the foremost native in Jersey City. Later he opened a saloon at Newark Avenue and Grove Street. He closed soon after prohibition went into effect and went into the trucking and warehouse business at the address where he killed himself.

WOMAN KILLED IN FALL.

Cause of Two-Story Drop to Fire-Escape in Doubt.

Jumping or falling from a window of her apartment on the fourth floor at 624 West 172th Street yesterday morning, Miss Elsie Wertheimer, 38, was killed when her body struck a fire escape platform on the second floor, rear. Screams of other women in the house who saw the woman's body were heard by Miss Frances Tappen, a registered nurse with whom Miss Wertheimer lived. Miss Tappen told the police she was looking out of a window when she heard Miss Wertheimer get out of bed and go toward the bathroom.

According to Miss Tappen, Miss Wertheimer had been in ill health for some time, her illness being aggravated by the death of her mother about a year ago. Miss Wertheimer had an independent income.

CLEANER FALLS FORTY FEET

Trenton Youth Seriously Hurt When Window Sill Gives Way.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 4.—After falling forty feet from a window he was cleaning today in St. Mary's school hall, Fred Barnard, 22, is in a serious condition in McKinley hospital. He suffered three fractures of the left leg, a broken arm, lacerations about the face, contusions about the body and probable internal injuries.

The sill gave way without warning. Barnard struck a second-story window lodge and rebounded to the street. He was unconscious when picked up.

EX-KAISER'S CHAPLAIN, DR. DRYANDER, DEAD

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—There died today in Berlin a man whose Germans title, literally translated, is "Upper Court Preacher." He was Ernst von Dryander, for more than thirty years the friend, confidant and court preacher of the Kaiser. During the incumbency he officiated regularly on Sundays in the Dom Kirche, the ex-personal residence turned at a reduced rental opposite the Imperial palace.

William listened to Dr. Dryander's preaching when he was a student at Bonn University. In 1890 Dryander was called to the "Upper Court Preacher-ship" in Berlin and joyously accepted the appointment. He was intimate with the whole Hohenzollern family, and in his memoirs he wrote fine chant his relations with its members.

"At all times I endeavored with every ounce of strength at me to serve the Imperial house and to be loyal to it and, to be sure, loyal not only in what I talked about but also what I kept secret as not being part of my clerical job."

Despite his age—he was more than 70 years old—he was one of the mightiest few Germans able to adapt themselves intellectually to the new times that followed the war. Previously his home was Trum in simple. The simpler it is the truer.

The royal personal servants had another reason for admiring Dryander's courage. His appointment to the Dom Kirche, which carries with it the patent of hereditary Prussian nobility, it was said to have been the first instance of a Lutheran clergyman being so honored.

Mgr. Edwards's Body Laid in Crypt.

The funeral of the Right Rev. Mgr. John Edwards, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Sixth Avenue and Washington Place, who died last Wednesday, was held yesterday morning at the church, with a solemn pontifical high mass celebrated by Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes. The Archbishop was assisted by Mgr. James McGean and the Rev. William Livingston as deacons. The Right Rev. Mgr. James Lynch of Utica preached the funeral sermon.

Following the services at the church the body was taken to White Plains and placed in the crypt of the Convent of the Sisters of Divine Compassion.

The honorary pallbearers were Judge Alfred J. Talley, Charles F. Murphy, ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Martin J. Conboy, George Gordon Battle, John Mullaly, Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling, Surrogate Foley, Corporation Counsel Watson, Michael J. Horan, Edward J. Smith and Thomas Kelly.

General Sir Partab Singh.

Women in Hysterics During Services for Slayer of Two Detectives.

HEAR MESSAGE FROM DEAD

Pastor Tells of Last Words to Relatives: "I Will Meet You in the Kingdom."

Thousands of negroes lined the streets of Harlem yesterday as the hearse containing the remains of Luther Boddy, 22-year-old murderer, motored slowly down Seventh Avenue past the corner of 135th Street, where, on the night of Jan. 5, he killed Detectives Francis J. Buckley and William A. Miller.

Boddy was put to death in Sing Sing Prison Thursday night. Since Friday his body has been lying in the funeral parlors of H. Adolph Howell, at 107 West 136th Street, where some 30,000 persons have filed in to view the man whose crime, escape, capture and sentence form one of the most sensational chapters in the record of the New York police.

The services for Boddy, held in the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in West 130th Street, were punctuated by the cries of hysterical women. The church, formerly a synagogue, was packed to the doors, and a detail of thirty policemen, under Deputy Inspector William McGrath and Captain Patrick Gargan, was sent there.

When the Rev. R. R. Wilson, who visited the condemned man in the death house, told how Boddy had accepted religion and passed serenely to the death chair, exclamations rang through the church. The minister described how Boddy dismissed his relatives on the afternoon of his death with the words, "Go home, I will meet you in the kingdom."

In his sermon, the Rev. W. Y. Bell, pastor of the church from which Boddy was buried, took as his theme, "Shun Evil Companions." Three hymns, requested by Boddy, were sung, during the services. The dead man's parents-in-law, his brothers and sisters and his four-year-old son, Luther Boddy, Jr., accompanied the body to Cedar Grove Cemetery, Flushing, Long Island.

At the height of the crime wave last Winter, Boddy, on his way to the West 135th Street station house, whipped out a concealed pistol from his sleeve, shot his captors, Detectives Miller and Buckley, then eluded for several days the efforts of 40,000 police officers in the metropolitan district to find him. He finally was captured in Philadelphia by a negro Magistrate.

Within twenty-five days of his crime, Boddy was indicted, tried and convicted. His wife, who is serving a term for larceny n Auburn Prison, was allowed to bid him farewell in the death house on Aug. 22.

Five Chinese Beaten and Robbed.

Arrested in connection with the holding up and beating of five Chinese in West Forty-first Street, Eugene McCarthy, 20, of 542 West Thirty-seventh Street, and Paul Ghignow, 19, of 252 West Forty-first Street, were held in $5,000 bail each yesterday by Magistrate Jesse Silbermann in Jefferson Market Court. The five Chinese, one of whom was Gee Young, owner of the Republic Restaurant, at 1493 Broadway, were attacked in West Forty-first Street early yesterday and robber of $40. Gee Young was taken to Bellevue Hospital. The assailants escaped in a taxicab.

PLAN EVENTS HERE FOR SULGRAVE GUESTS

Plans for the reception and luncheon at Fraunces's Tavern for the members of the British branch of the Sulgrave Institution, who are on their way to attend a series of functions here, were announced yesterday by John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Sulgrave Institution. American members will meet at luncheon at the Lawyers' Club on Thursday to discuss the reception.

"The more specific purpose of the visit," said the announcement, "is the presentation to the American people of a memorial of William Pitt, to be unveiled in Pittsburgh on Sept. 14; a statue of Edmund Burke, to be unveiled in Washington, D. C., by the President on Oct. 10, and busts of the late James Bryce, to be presented, respectively, to the people of America and accepted by Congress at a convocation in the Capitol at Washington on Oct. 11 and to the authorities of Trinity Church in New York, where it will be unveiled with ceremonies on or about Oct. 13 at high noon."

M. Mahmood, President of the International Assembly organized by students at Oxford, has arrived in this country to organize similar assemblies in American universities and to promote interest generally in the League of Nations. He is at the Hotel Pennsylvania, whence he will start soon on his mission in this country.

"The International Assembly at Oxford represents student delegates from thirty-five nations," he said, "including the United States, Germany, Russia, Austria and Turkey. The assembly stands for propagating good-will and harmony among nations and for an efficient co-operation among the student world.

"Somehow we cannot understand America's attitude toward the League of Nations and other international problems of the day. And I have come in the unconventional spirit of youth to tell the United States what her international young admirers expect of her."

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

Woman Says Visitor Gave Her Potent Drink and Threw Him Under Table.

Victor Szelawa, 26, of 537 Fifth Street, appeared before Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg, in Essex Market Court yesterday, charged with drugging Mrs. Anna Dombrowski and robbing her while she was unconscious.

It is alleged that on Sunday afternoon Szelawa went to the home of Mrs. Dombrowski, at 536 Fifth Street, taking with him two glasses of an amber colored liquid, one of which he offered Mrs. Dombrowski. While the woman drank the contents of her glass, Szelawa is said to have thrown the contents of his under a table. The woman suddenly became unconscious and while she was in this condition, it is alleged, Szelawa ransacked the apartment, taking jewelry valued at $126 and $65 in cash. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bail.

WHY every man hopes his first child will be a BOY

Whence comes this deep instinctive desire of every man for a son?

Surely no mere pride in keeping alive the family name can account for it.

Nor the desire to boast with Kim, "I have killed my man and begat my man."

Nor yet because of any old-fashioned idea that men mean more to the world than women.

Compounded of all these, perhaps, but of more—the longing for a son springs primarily from some deeper personal need of the father himself.

* * * *

That deeper need arises because man cannot live by bread alone.

A hidden but indestructible idealism demands satisfaction.

Yet as maturity dawns a man begins to suspect that not in his lifetime will he see realized the flaming ideals of his youth.

Already can he look back, somewhat, and see the mistakes he has made, the heights he has failed to scale, the gaps between intention and deed.

Still more can he see how much longer is the road to the heights than he thought it would be.

Then a man's dreams, and himself, must slowly die, or have new and personal aims to live for.

In a child, then, comes that new chance at life which Barrie, in "Dear Brutus," showed all the world had longings for.

And in a boy that new chance comes in terms that a father best understands.

All that he himself hoped to be or do he sees his son accomplishing. A fresh page, that he knows how to write on, is there before him.

* * * *

Then comes a new sense of high adventure—the making of a better man than his father and of a better world for him to live in.

Then idealism matures and turns practical. Then the world beyond one's picket fence becomes personal and important.

To help you realize the desires of that mature and practical idealism—

To help you shape the forces of that world beyond your picket fence so that you and your children may have life more abundantly—

BANKERS REVEAL MEXICAN COMPACT

OIL EXPORT TAX PLEDGED

Government Also to Set Aside Net Operating Revenues of Railways to Meet Obligations.

The International Committee of Bankers on Mexico yesterday made public its summary of the debt agreement signed in New York on June 16, by the terms of which the Republic of Mexico will resume payments on her defaulted obligations. The plan was made public coincident with the opening of the Mexican Congress. Formal ratification of the settlement arranged, which provides for the resumption of current interest payments, arrangement for back interest payments and specific proposals concerning the National Railways of Mexico, is now the chief piece of legislation before the Mexican Congress.

Bankers are prepared to issue calls for the deposit of the twenty-eight different securities affected by the plan, immediately upon favorable action by the Mexicans. Service of the debt, in part at least, is expected to be resumed during the early part of next year.

Prior to the signing of the agreement it developed here that recognition of the Obregon Administration by the United States played no part in the deliberations of the International Banking Committee, which met with Finance Minister de la Huerta. It is the generally expressed belief, however, that acceptance by the Obregon Government of the terms whereby Mexico will discharge her external obligations will have considerable weight with the State Department in some quarters, recognition of Mexico is considered a strong probability of the near future.

Securities Affected.

In the agreement which is set forth in brief by the committee securities affected by the plan are referred to by the following numbers:

(1) United States of Mexico 5 per cent. consolidated external gold loan of 1899.
(2) Republic of Mexico 4 per cent. external gold loan of 1910.
(3) United States of Mexico 6 per cent. 10-year treasury notes of 1913 (Series A $6,000,000).
(4) City of Mexico 5 per cent. sterling loan of 1899.
(5) Institution for Encouragement of Irrigation Works and Development of Agriculture (S. A.) Thirty-five year 4½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, due November 1, 1943 (Caja de Prestamos, etc.).
(6) United States of Mexico 4 per cent. gold bonds of 1904.
(7) Republic of Mexico Consolidated 3 per cent. internal debt of 1886.
(8) United States of Mexico 5 per cent. internal redeemable bonds of 1894.
(9) State of Vera Cruz 5 per cent. bonds due April 1, 1927.
(10) State of Tamaulipas, 5 per cent. bonds 1902 (first series).
(11) State of Tamaulipas, 5 per cent. bonds 1906 (second series).
(12) State of Sinaloa, 5 per cent. bonds 1906.
(13) State of Vera Cruz, 5 per cent. bonds 1906.
(14) National Railway of Mexico Guaranteed General Mortgage 4 per cent. seventy-year sinking fund redeemable gold bonds, due October 1, 1977.
(15) Vera Cruz and Pacific Company first mortgage 4½ per cent. gold bonds due July 1, 1934.
(16) National Railways of Mexico Prior Lien 4½ per cent. fifty-year sinking fund redeemable gold bonds due July 1, 1957.
(17) National Railroad Company of Mexico Prior Lien 4½ per cent. gold bonds due October 1, 1926.
(18) National Railroad Company of Mexico 1st Consolidated Mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds due October 1, 1951.
(19) The Mexican International Railroad Company 4½ per cent. prior lien sterling bonds due September 1, 1947.
(20) The Mexican International Railroad Company 1st Consolidated Mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds due September 1, 1977.
(21) Pan American Railroad Company 1st Mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds due January 1, 1934.
(22) Pan American Railroad Company General Mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds due January 1, 1937.
(23) Mexican Central Railway Company, Ltd., 5 per cent. priority bonds due July 1, 1939.

(26) National Railways of Mexico 6 per cent. secured notes (secured by National Railways of Mexico bonds):
(a) National Railways of Mexico two-year 6% secured gold notes due June 1, 1915.
(b) National Railways of Mexico 6% secured notes due July 1, 1919.
(27) Tehuantepec National Railway 5 per cent. gold loans, Series "A," due June 30, 1953.
(28) Tehuantepec National Railway 4½ per cent. gold loan, Series "B," due June 30, 1953.

Provisions of the Plan.

The Mexican Government undertakes to set aside annually toward the payment of such coupons on the above bonds as mature after Jan. 2, 1923:

(a) The entire proceeds of the oil export tax;

(b) Ten per cent. (10%) of the gross revenues of the National Railways of Mexico;

(c) The entire net operating revenues of such railways.

In any event the Government agrees to provide for such current interest not less than 30,000,000 pesos ($15,000,000 United States gold) during the calendar year 1923, and an additional 5,000,000 pesos each year for the ensuing four years, bringing the fund up to 50,000,000 pesos in the fifth year.

These cash interest payments on such coupons maturing after Jan. 2, 1923, will, during the first year, be made on a scale varying from 50 per cent. to 140 per cent. on the external loans; at the rate of 25 per cent. on the internal 3 per cent. and 5 per cent. bonds; 50 per cent. on the State bonds, and, in general, from 50 per cent. to 65 per cent. on the railway loans, except that the railway notes secured by Government bonds are to receive 100 per cent.

After 1923 the increases in the minimum fund provided by the Government for current interest should permit an increase in the scale of cash payments to all bonds receiving less than 100 per cent. in the first year, and should permit payment of full current interest in cash in the fourth year upon all bonds named in the schedule, except the internal 3 per cent. and 5 per cent. bonds and the State issues guaranteed by the Mexican Government.

Scrip to be Issued.

To make up the difference (during the five year period covered by the agreement) between the amounts of current interest actually due on such bonds and the cash payments made, scrip or certificates are to be issued maturing in twenty years after January 1, 1923, and bearing interest after Jan. 1, 1928, at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, the Government to have the right of redemption in whole or in part at 105 and accrued interest at any time before maturity. Any excess over the minimum fund provided for current interest payments is to be used in buying or redeeming such current interest scrip or certificates.

Arrears of interest.—At or prior to the completion of the five-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1923, the interest coupons maturing on or before Jan. 2, 1923, with respect to bonds in the above list, are to be detached by the respective depositaries and lodged with a special depositary or depositaries approved by the committee, against the issue of receipts or certificates to an equivalent face amount. Such receipts or certificates are to be purchased or redeemed by the Government from a fund sufficient to retire them in full, extending over a period of forty years, beginning Jan. 1, 1928. The certificates for arrears of interest will be of two kinds—class "A" and class "B"; class "A" to be retired completely prior to class "B."

The respective bonds to which this plan of readjustment applies are to receive certificates for arrears of interest on the following basis: The secured debt and the railway notes secured thereby (Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 25) are to receive 100 per cent. of arrears of interest in Class A certificates. The balance of the Government loans (with the exception of the internal 3 per cent. and 5 per cent. loans) and of the railway obligations (with the exception of the notes No. 25 secured by Government bonds) are to receive 35 per cent. of arrears of interest in "A" certificates and 65 per cent. in "B" certificates. The internal 3 per cent. and 5 per cent. bonds are to receive 100 per cent. of arrears of interest in "B" certificates. Based on the amounts of "A" certificates and "B" certificates to be issued, it is calculated that the proposed annual payments will retire all the "A" certificates in a little less than twenty years from Jan. 1, 1928, assuming that retirement is effected at par.

To Restore Railways.

National Railways System—The Government is to make prompt return of the national railways to private management and to the control of a Board of Directors agreed upon with the committee. It recognizes its obligation to restore such railways, including rolling stock, to their condition at the time the Government took over the railway lines.

Holders of outstanding obligations of the National Railways System, listed above, upon deposit under the plan and the adoption thereof, are to have their bonds and notes stamped to the effect that the Government agrees to assume the payment of principal, interest and existing sinking fund thereof, subject to the provisions set forth as to the payments during the five-year period. The liens created by the existing mortgages are not to be enforced unless the Government defaults in its obligations under the plan; in which event such liens may be enforced in favor of the respective bondholders.

Ten per cent. of the annual gross receipts of the railways are to be set aside toward the minimum fund to be provided for the payment of cash current interest. Further, as stated, until the resumption in cash of full current interest on the obligations dealt with under the plan, the net operating revenues of the National Railways are to be added to the fund for the same purpose.

Matured Obligations—The matured notes of the National Railways of Mexico (No. 26) are to be extended for a period of ten years from Jan. 1, 1923, with interest at 5 per cent. per annum for the first five years and at 6 per cent. per annum thereafter. The 6 per cent. Notes of the Government of Mexico (No. 3) and the National Railway Notes secured by 6 per cent. Government Notes (No. 25) are to be extended for the same period of time, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

All sinking funds are to be postponed for a period not to exceed five years from Jan 1, 1923.

4 Hold Up Cafe Bartender; Owner Uses Gun; Arrest One

Four hold-up men last night entered the cafe of Henry Huy at 887 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, just around the corner from the Morrisania Police Station, and ordered John Tuite, the bartender, who was alone in the place, to throw up his hands, after he had served them with ginger ale. Seeing that the men were unarmed, Tuite tried to fight them off.

During the struggle one of the four went to the cash register and took out $36.50. At that juncture Huy entered the cafe and, realizing the situation, whipped out a revolver and went to the aid of his employe. Tuite held one of his assailants, and the other three ran from the saloon. Huy followed and fired three shots after them, but they escaped. The prisoner, who was arrested on a charge of assault and robbery, said he was Joseph Palmer, a blacksmith, of 1,477 Segal Avenue, the Bronx. He denied implication in the robbery.

ECLIPSE WILL TEST EINSTEIN'S THEORY

Astronomers Hope to Remove Doubts on Sept. 21, When Sun Will Be Partly Hidden.

PROOF IN THE PHOTOGRAPHS

Expeditions Will Take Observations from Australia and Indian Ocean.

Dr. Frank Schlesinger, Director of the Yale Observatory, said in an interview yesterday that greatly improved equipment for photographing stars behind the sun and near the sun's rim during the eclipse on Sept. 21 should put an end to all doubts concerning the Einstein theory, but that the intensive observation of Mars recently has produced no new evidence for or against the existence of life on that planet.

The moon comes between the earth and the sun on Sept. 21, so as to throw a streak of shadow on the earth over the Indian and Pacific Oceans near the equator. Telescopes with photographic and spectroscopic equipment will be trained on the sun from islands in the Indian Ocean and North Australia. During the five minutes or so that the sun is obscured many things about it will be studied, as well as the Einstein theory. Efforts will be made to discover more about the prominences, or tree-like figures of red flame which appear about the rim of the sun during the eclipse. Efforts will also be made to discover the nature of the corona, the pearly green cloud many times the size of the sun which surrounds the sun during the eclipse. A still more favorable opportunity to study the sun during eclipse will occur on Sept. 10 of next year, when the shadow of the total eclipse passes over San Diego, Catalina and other islands off Los Angeles and a part of Lower California.

Einstein vs. Newton.

Starlight is bent by gravity as it passes the sun. If the Einstein theory is correct the bend is about twice as great as it would be if the Newtonian theory is correct. The photographs of the sun taken in Africa and South America during the total eclipse in 1919 favored the Einstein theory, but did not silence objectors. The photographs of the stars near the sun's rim were displaced from the positions which they normally occupied, indicating that the light waves had been bent by the sun's mass. But a minority of astronomers and mathematicians refused to be convinced.

"The astronomers studying the eclipse this time are all armed with the 'doubter' photographic equipment, which is free from some of the criticisms urged against the pictures taken in 1919," said Dr. Schlesinger. "They take in a much bigger field and enable calculations to be made with much greater certainty. Another advantage is that the region in which the photographs are taken is almost cloudless. There was some difficulty in 1919 because of the interference of clouds.

"On the other hand, the section of the heavens in which eclipse takes place is not so favorable. The stars are not as numerous. What is wanted for a test of the Einstein theory is a number of stars close to the sun's rim. The 1919 field was a very rich one. The doubter, however, more than makes up this difference, and the result should establish the truth about the Einstein theory with finality.

"Many other subjects about the sun will be study. The corona, the pearly green atmosphere which fills the sky around the sun, is something whose nature is largely unknown. We know it to be dust lighted up by the sun, but it to some extent furnishes its own light. It is only visible during the eclipse, and it is known to vary from eclipse to eclipse in its appearance. It seems to have a periodic law apparently connected with the sunspot cycle. Its spectrum is different from that of the sun.

"Prominences" 100,000 Miles High.

"The proginences, or flame-like red appearances near the rim of the sun, can be studied at other times, but not so advantageously. They are from 50,000 to 100,000 miles high and project from the sun in all directions. Another subject will be the reversing layer, the small comparatively cold layer of atmosphere about the sun, which is responsible for the dark lines in the spectrum. This is 400 or 500 miles thick, about the thickness of the atmosphere about the earth.

"People in this country have a glorious chance to see the total eclipse of the sun in September of next year, when the Catalina Islands and some California towns are in shadow of the total eclipse. The eclipse is partial at the Mt. Wilson observatory."

Asked whether the study of Mars during the Summer, when it has been closer to the earth than for many years, had developed anything new, Dr. Schlesinger said:

"Not a thing. It leaves the questions about Mars just where they were before. The public is more interested about Mars, as a general rule, than astronomers are, because it presents a field for fancy and speculation, rather than for study. Few astronomers are willing to put in their time on Mars, because there appears to be no promise of solving the problems concerning it. Study in other fields, where questions can be definitely answered yes or no, produce much greater results."

One American expedition will study the eclipse this month. This is headed by Dr. W. W. Campbell, Director of Lick Observatory, California, and has taken a position at Ninety-Mile Beach, in Northwest Australia. The British Joint Eclipse Committee has sent an expedition to Christmas Island, in the Indian Ocean, 200 miles south of Java. The German-Dutch expedition will also see the eclipse from Christmas Island. The American expedition, financed by William H. Crocker, will carry four cameras for the study of the Einstein effect and five telescopes equipped to study the corona.

NEPHEW OF GEORGE V. LIABLE TO SEIZURE

But May Not Be Arrested If He Visits England For Mother's Funeral.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—A delicate situation has been created by the death of the Duchess of Albany, aunt of King George. Her only son is the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, who, although he was born an English Prince, bore arms against England during the war and is therefore liable to prosecution for high treason if he comes to this country for his mother's funeral.

It is understood, however, that if he does come no action will be taken by the authorities. It is stated here that the Duke appealed to his Kaiser to let him leave Germany and live in Switzerland until the war was over. But the Kaiser gave him his choice of arrest or joining his German regiment.

Nova Scotia Steel Wages Raised.

TRENTON, N. S., Sept. 4.—An increase of 25 cents a day in the pay of all day laborers employed in the steel plants of the British Empire Steel Corporation here has been announced. This follows the increase granted in the Sydney steel mill of the corporation last week.

Hughes to Reach Rio Janeiro Today; Secretary Exchanges Wireless Greetings

ON BOARD THE STEAMER PAN AMERICA, Sept. 4 (By Wireless to the Associated Press).—Charles E. Hughes, American Secretary of State, heading the American mission to the Brazilian Centennial Exposition, received a wireless message today from Senor Azevedo Marques, Brazilian Foreign Minister, assuring Secretary Hughes of a warm welcome in Brazil. Secretary Hughes replied expressing deep appreciation of the message and adding that he looked forward with the greatest gratification to his visit in Brazil. The Secretary appended most cordial salutations and friendly sentiments.

The Pan American is expected to overtake the American battleship contingent bound for Rio Janeiro Tuesday forenoon for the transfer of the mission to the dreadnaught Maryland on which the Brazilian officials will be received, the mission then proceeding on to Rio Janeiro and landing by mid afternoon Tuesday.

A Canadian mission of two members is also on board the Pan America bearing a message from Premier Mackenzie King to President Pessoa.

As he approached the shores of Brazil today Secretary Hughes told The Associated Press correspondent accompanying the mission that one of the happiest events of his voyage was the exchange of congratulatory messages with Foreign Minister Azevedo Marques by way of the new cable connecting the United States with the east coast of South America.

"This of course," said the Secretary, "means increased facilities for the exchange of information between North and South America, and for the bringing of the countries of the Western Hemisphere into still closer acquaintance. Now that all obstacles have been removed we may look for the further extension of the facilities for communication as the need for them grows with the inevitable growth of business and other relations between the two continents.

"I am particularly glad," added the Secretary, "to hear that this new line direct to Brazil will especially benefit the newspapers of Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay in respect to transmission from those countries."

FLEE IN PANIC AS FLOORS TILT ABOUT

WAITERS TAKE TO WINDOWS

Hats, Handbags, Food and Drinks Hastily Abandoned in Wild Rush for Safety.

Seventy men and women had a scare and a narrow escape from injury last night in Newark, when two four-story brick buildings suddenly sagged more than two feet, bringing down a shower of bricks and plaster and causing the occupants to hurry to the street.

The two buildings were at 728 and 730 Broad Street, the latter at the corner of Commerce Street, in the heart of the business section. The first floor of 728 is occupied by Schiller's market, which was closed, and the other three floors by the Shanghai Restaurant. Tom Walsh's saloon, a holdover from pre-Volstead days, occupies the first floor of the corner building, the other three floors being empty.

Fifty men and women were eating in the Shanghai restaurant, when there was a grinding noise and a shower of plaster with a sudden tipping of the floors like the deck of a sailboat keeled over by a brisk breeze. Chairs and tables were overturned, glasses cracked and several customers thrown to the floor. Several frightened Chinese waiters jumped from the second story windows and the diners ran to the street, the men not waiting to grab their hats or the women their handbags.

In Tom Walsh's saloon, a group of men in front of the bar were engaged in the customary criticism of the Eighteenth Amendment and were about to drink a condition to it in a round of near-beer when the bar tilted suddenly, sliding the glasses to the floor at the feet of the bartender. The twenty or more men in the saloon ran to the street without waiting for further refreshment.

After sagging for a little more than two feet, the downward movement stopped, but loosened bricks continued to fall for several hours and there appeared to be danger of a complete collapse of both buildings. The point where the sagging was greatest was the juncture of the two buildings so that, as viewed from the street, they seemed to lean against each other.

Three or four fire companies and a detachment of policemen roped off the street one hundred feet each side of the two buildings, incidentally causing a temporary jam of automobiles returning from the beaches at the end of the holiday, until a policeman could be stationed several blocks away to direct drivers to another route.

A crowd of nearly five thousand persons gathered outside the police lines, but thinned out gradually as the excitement waned. Investigation by the police indicated that the accident was probably caused by the recent deepening of the cellar of the building occupied by the restaurant. It was thought that this had weakened the foundation and that the heavy rain during the day had softened some of the earth beneath the cellar's walls.

J. H. O'Rourke, Assistant Superintendent of Buildings, said he would begin an investigation today to determine the truth of the report that there had been digging in the cellar. Mr. O'Rourke said that the owners of the building applied four weeks ago for permission to dig to put in a new cellar floor and that permission had been refused. He said he had just been informed that men had been seen digging in the cellar at night.

SOUTH SEA ISLES O. K.—BUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Exotic South Sea islands, with their cocoanut groves, intoxicating moonlight nights, coral, wave-splashed shores and dancing grass-clad damsels, are very fine—in books or the movies; but as for N. P. Benson, first mate of the American schooner Henrietta, give him beefsteaks and open plumbing—and his own American wife. Such, in substance, was Mate Benson's assertion when he arrived in San Francisco from the Island of Nukualalai, in the Ellice Group in the South Seas.

Benson and his crew were on their way from Fiji to San Francisco some weeks ago on the schooner Henriette. The schooner was wrecked and the crew found refuge on the tropical isle.

In a recent interview in Honolulu Captain J. A. T. Olsen of the Henriette described the island as a miniature replica of the Oriental idea of Paradise, where the women outnumbered the men fourteen to one. Not disputing his captain's record, Benson avers his own wife had any group of fourteen women on the island beaten in every way, and, besides, fish and cocoanuts are no kind of diet.

The mate described the inhabitants of the islands as good looking, hospitable and healthy. He said they had acquired religion from missionaries and held services for about three hours each Sunday, which the crew had to attend.

"But they made up for it," Benson said, "by giving a dance every night," adding that the women were not hampered by much clothing.

The principal thing a South Sea island is good for is to make a man glad to get back to civilization," Mate Benson said.

SWEDISH WETS 29,602 AHEAD

Prohibition in Sweden Regarded as 'Dead for a Generation.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—Complete returns in the recent prohibition plebiscite show that 930,655 ballots were poled against prohibition and 901,053 in favor of the proposal. More than 60 per cent. of the electorate voted.

FRIGHTENED GUNMEN THREW GEMS AWAY

THREE YOUTHS TO BE FREED

Arrested Near Scene of Battle for Widow's $20,000 Jewels, They Prove Innocence.

The robbers who blackjacked Mrs. Catherine Irene Sweeney in an unsuccessful effort to get the $26,000 worth of gems she wore after they had robbed her of $500 and some cheaper articles of jewelry, in her home at 1816 Avenue N, Brooklyn, at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning, tossed the jewelry to the street as they fled in an automobile. The stolen articles were found yesterday under the viaduct of the Brighton Beach line of the B. R. T. road, where it crosses Avenue N, about three blocks from Mrs. Sweeney's home.

Joseph Cook, 14 years old, of 1314 Avenue N, was riding a bicycle under the viaduct when his eye caught the glint of metal. He alighted and found the jewelry roughly wrapped in a torn newspaper. It consisted of a gold watch set with diamonds, with a religious emblem burned in gold on the inside of the case; a gold thimble, card case, gold buckles, a gold brooch set with diamonds and rubies, and a gold wedding ring.

The boy carried the articles to his father, who read of the robbery, and Policeman Harry Dick of the Parkville Station was told of the find. The jewelry was identified by Mrs. Sweeney and her niece, Mrs. Kathryn McNaught.

The police believe the jewelry was discarded because of the distinguishing identification marks on each piece, which the thieves had opportunity to note during the more than two hours they lay in wait in the house for the return of the owner and her niece, Mrs. McNaught.

Youthful Suspects Absolved.

The appearance of the Sweeney chauffeur, Michael Fein, and the plucky fight made by Mrs. McNaught against one of the three gunmen, ending when the woman thrust her fist through a glass panel of the sun-porch, which brought neighbors to the house, put the thieves to hasty flight.

The three youths arrested soon after the robbery and held for examination on charges of assault and robbery were practically eliminated from suspicion yesterday. Mrs. Sweeney, her hat partly concealing the bandaged wounds on her head, went to the Sheepshead Bay station in the afternoon and after looking at the prisoners said she could not identify any of them as her assailants. Mrs. McNaught and the chauffeur also could not identify the men. The police said the statements made by the prisoners as to their movements at the time of the robbery have checked up and had proved their innocence. They will be formally discharged this morning in the Coney Island Court.

Mrs. Sweeney said that while she was at Saratoga, a New York detective, noting the jewels she had on, warned her of the danger in wearing them in such a public place. He told her she had better put them out of sight to avoid being followed and blackjacked when alone. She said the gems have been placed in a safety deposit vault.

Captain Busby of the Eighth Detective Division questioned Mrs. Sweeney, her chauffeur and Mrs. McNaught yesterday concerning the report that Mrs. Sweeney had declared the attack on her had been instigated by an enemy, and that the robbery was only a sequel to an attempt to murder her.

Murder Clipping Sent Her.

In checking up all visitors to Mrs. Sweeney's home since her return from Saratoga, Captain Busby learned that a special delivery letter had been delivered a few hours after the robbery, which contained a newspaper clipping describing the murder of a woman in Pennsylvania. This clipping and the postmark on the envelope were from a town in Pennsylvania, where it was mailed before the robbery here.

It was said that Mrs. Sweeney was at first much concerned over the letter, but had concluded it had no suspicious connection with the attack on herself. She said she knew the sender of it, a man, and believes it was nothing more than a joke.

Mrs. Sweeney, who is a wealthy widow and the owner of a lumber and shipwright concern, the Thomas F. Meehan's Son & Co., at 47 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn, instructed from her late husband, James J. Sweeney, often has been annoyed by persistent "fortune hunters," the police said.

Persons waiting for trains at the Grand Central station of the Lexington Avenue subway last night became excited when they saw two men in a hand-to-hand struggle. Special policemen rushed to the scene and were informed by John Boyd of 114 Grand Avenue, Astoria, L. I., that a man who later said he was Edward Rooney, 36 years old, of 165 West Thirty-sixth Street, had stolen a wallet from Boyd's pocket.

Rooney was taken to the East Fifty-first Street station, charged with Grand larceny. Detective Thomas Layden later took the prisoner to police headquarters for further examination.

The wallet belonging to Boyd was found in Rooney's possession, according to the police.

Police Hunt Prize Police Dog.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—Atlantic City police were asked today to look for Laddie, a prize-winning police dog, which this morning broke from the kennels of the Hotel Dennis, where his owner, George W. Cooper of Schenectady, is a guest. The dog, which is valued by his owner at $2,000, was to accompany Mr. Cooper's daughter Roberta in the beauty carnival Wednesday. Miss Cooper will represent Schenectady.

SCORES OF BEAUTIES HEADED FOR PAGEANT

FOUR TO FLY FROM HERE

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4.—Fifty-seven cities are sending representatives to the national beauty tournament, which will be a feature of the third annual Atlantic City fall pageant opening on Wednesday. The girls were selected according to uniform rules and regulations in various competitions in their home towns, pictures were first submitted and then contestants were called upon to appear in person for final judgment.

The Pacific Coast, the South, North, East and every section of the United States are represented in the official list of entries. The entire pageant program centres around the beauties who will be constantly in the spotlight during the festival of three days.

Miss Margaret Gorman of Washington, winner of the 1921 contest, will be known as "Miss America." She will sit on the pageant throne with Hudson Maxim, the aged inventor, who will be King of Carnival during the frolic. Mr. Maxim created somewhat of a sensation among the fair sex with his request that beautiful members of his court refrain from using perfume and artificially scented flowers.

The several beauties will be judged in bathing suits, under spotlights on the stage, and in afternoon dress. Miss Gorman will defend her laurels won last year. The winning beauty will be heralded as America's "Beauty Queen."

Four Entries from New York.

New York State has ten entries, two of them are from Manhattan and two from Brooklyn. These four are "Miss Rockaway," otherwise known as Miss Dorothy Hughes, 518 East Twenty-second Street, Brooklyn; "Miss Brighton Beach," Miss Ruth Andrus, 264 Henry Street, Brooklyn; "Miss South Beach," Miss Mary Hlavka, 2,502 Eighth Avenue, New York City; "Miss Long Beach," Miss Lilyan Harnach, 112 West 110th Street, New York City.

Other New York State entries are "Miss Rochester," Miss Mildred Moon; "Miss Syracuse," Miss M. Rosamond Fabey; "Miss Buffalo," Mrs. Bertha D. Rent; "Miss Binghamton," Miss Helen Agnes Scarles; "Miss Schenectady," Miss Roberta Cooper, and "Miss Utica," Miss Jeanette Adams.

The four New York beauties expect to make the trip in a seaplane, leaving tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock and arriving in Atlantic about one hour later. When the machine arrives off Iowa Avenue, it will fire five bombs simultaneously, which will release a huge banner with the inscription, "Hellow, Atlantic City. Here is New York." It is then planned to have the beauties who can swim jump off the plane and swim ashore. Those who cannot will be met by lifeguards and escorted in lifeboats to the shore, where they will be welcomed by Mayor Edward L. Bader.

Western Contingent on Way.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Four radiant beauties from the Far West arrived in Chicago today and immediately disorganized the bell boy service and caused a traffic jam at the hotel where they are stopping.

The young women are Miss Katherine Grant of Los Angeles, Miss Tanssia Zara of San Francisco, Miss Virginia Edwards of Portland, and Miss Evelyn Atkinson of Seattle, all prize-winning beauties of their respective cities. They range in age from 17 to 22 years and are on the way to Atlantic City to compete for the crown of "Queen of America." They are to be joined here by Miss Georgia Hug, Chicago's representative in the national run-off.

The Western quartette ensconced itself in the main dining room of the hotel shortly after arriving here and discussed woman-kind in general and their own chances in particular—and ere long the hotel management was called upon to clear the way to the room for mere patrons.

The beauties are scheduled to leave tonight on a special train over the Pennsylvania lines for Atlantic City. They are accompanied by Mrs. H. S. Hatcourt, San Francisco, and Mrs. Basford Whiting and Mrs. T. H. Edwards of Portland, as chaperones.

THREE MORE DEATHS IN BERLIN RIOTING

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—Three more deaths were added today and yesterday to the victims of Berlin food riots and disturbances resulting from the communistic exploitations of the growing discontent over the high cost of living.

The dead, who are now lying in the morgue, are a policeman and two rioters. Four Communists were seriously wounded today in their storming of a police station. The mob demanded the release of two agitators who were arrested late yesterday for urging 3,000 men and women from Spandau, a munition manufacturing town, to direct action.

While the Communist demonstrators yesterday were passing a shop the proprietor of which was wearing an anti-Jewish button, he ridiculed them and denounced their leaders. The Reds demolished the shop and beat the proprietor, and the leaders continued to encourage the destruction of adjoining property. The police then intervened.

The leaders refused to obey the police and encouraged their followers to attack the police. The police arrested the leaders and marched them to the police station with great difficulty, the crowd following and throwing bottles and other missiles and hooting "Down with the police." The police drew swords, and as the attackers grew more bold they drew army pistols.

After the Police Station had been reached the Communists surrounded the building and began firing at the police home hitting the mark. The police first fired into the air, but as the crowd surged toward the door the police fired twelve shots into the crowd, which failed to disperse them. Only when reinforcements came from another station did the crowd, muttering imprecations, draw away.

In this fighting one was killed and four were wounded.

Later last night as the Communists were still gathering threateningly, one of a small group fired at a policeman on duty, killing him. The assassin escaped, but finally was located in a neighboring building. He was dragged from under a table, handcuffed and marched to the station, where the police were forced to fight off the crowd which tried to lynch him. When the prisoner reached the station he was bleeding. A few minutes later he collapsed and died.

Agitators at Communist demonstrations at Frankfort, Halle and other places urged rioting and bloodshed to free the proletariat from slavery. Red banners in Berlin demonstrations call upon the workers to make similar protests.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, September 2, on shipments sold out ranged from 9.00 cents to 17.00 cents per pound, and averaged 14.49 cents per pound.—Advt.

Connecticut Mills All Running; No Textile Strike Anywhere

ONECO, Conn., Sept. 4.—Reports from the mill town belt of Connecticut today show every textile plant is full operation, with 35,000 operatives employed and no strikes anywhere.

Practically all of the mills are run by water power and coal will be needed only for heating. No shortage of fuel has been reported.

JOHNSON SHOOTING CALLED AN ACCIDENT

Prosecutor Sure Peggy Marsh's Husband Did It Himself, but Will Visit Camp.

TO TELL NAMES OF GUESTS

State Police Also Satisfied After an Inquiry—Victim is Improving.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Harold A. Jerry, District Attorney of Clinton County, began today an investigation into the shooting of Albert L. Johnson, husband of Peggy Marsh, dancer, in an Adirondack camp on last Thursday. Though he announced tonight that he was satisfied that Johnson's wound was both self-inflicted and accidental—an opinion in which the State police concur after their own examination into the circumstances—Mr. Jerry said that he would journey forty miles to the Chateaugay Lake camp tomorrow to make a personal inquiry.

At least one interesting bit of information may be expected from the prosecutor's trip—the names of those who were at the camp when Johnson, in the act of replacing a pistol in its case after having cleaned it, shot himself just as his wife and another reached his door. Mr. Jerry said tonight that these names—thus far sedulously kept from the public—would be announced as soon as he had personally satisfied himself as to the identities of those in the camp. There was no real reason for keeping them secret, he said, though he refused to tell them tonight. Peggy Marsh persists in her refusal to disclose them, grounding her reticence on a belief that Johnson, who is in the Champlain Valley Hospital here, would not want them made known.

Inquiry of the State police at Malone tonight met with the declaration that though that organization had made its own investigation and had sent a trooper to Camp Jack, where the shooting happened, it had no record of who was there. Lieut. Heim, who was in charge of the post tonight in the absence of Captain Broadfield, said that Sergeant A. F. Boyce, who was sent to the camp as soon as news of the affair was received, did not incorporate in his report the names of those who were present. Lieutenant Heim said that Sergeant Boyce might be anywhere in Clinton or Franklin Counties tonight and that he could not be located so that he might supply the omission in his report. It did develop today, however, that Jack Clifford, former dancing partner of Evelyn Nesbit, and still her husband, despite long-drawn divorce proceedings, was there. Clifford is the owner of the camp.

In the course of his inquiry today, Mr. Jerry considered the findings of Sergeant Boyce which were communicated to him. He also visited the hospital and talked with Johnson. The wounded man, son of the late Albert L. Johnson, once President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and nephew of the late Tom L. Johnson, Cleveland's famous traction reform Mayor, is a little more than holding his own now, although he was shot through the intestines. The District Attorney said that Johnson assured him he had shot himself by accident. Peggy Marsh, best known because of her litigation with the Field estate for the support of her son, Henry Anthony Field, whose father, she says, was the late Henry Field 3d, also talked with Mr. Jerry. She told him, in the presence of the same version of the accident that she had told previously. Tom L. Johnson, the injured man's brother, represented the family in talking with the District Attorney to obviate the necessity of an interview with his mother, Mrs. C. B. Bayne, who is at her wounded son's bedside. The brother told Mr. Jerry that the family was satisfied that the young man had shot himself accidentally.

"I learned of no possible motive for an attempt at murder," Mr. Jerry said in summing up his findings. "Nor did I get so much as a hint of any reason for an attempt at suicide. Judging from Johnson's condition when medical aid reached him on the mountain, he had not been drinking, and there has been no evidence that others in the party had."

POINTS WAY TO HIGHER PAY

Phillips Sees It in Better Co-operation Between Labor and Capital.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 4.—More active co-operation between labor and capital to increase output would result in large increases in wages, Cyrus W. Phillips, former member of the New York Legislature and father of the Workmen's Compensation Law, declared in a statement issued here today. He said that the present productive output was not sufficient to pay wages that would enable labor to enjoy a proper standard of living.

Quoting statistics to show that labor could not "materially increase its income by further reduction of the portion going to capital," Mr. Phillips, who is at present referee in compensation cases in the New York State Department of Labor, said:

"It is thus apparent that the only way in which labor can materially increase its income is by a larger industrial output. Both sides must cease all practices that arouse suspicion. Each must cease all attempts to limit output and must stop all waste and prevent unnecessary cost.

"If industrial managers will use the most effective machinery and adopt the best administrative methods for eliminating waste, reducing cost, and increasing output, and the workmen cooperate in the use of such machinery and administrative methods, production will increase. The managers should see that the income of the workmen increases as fast as the output increases.

"It is not too much to expect that an active co-operation in an effort to eliminate waste, cut down costs, and increase production would eventually result in very large increase in wages without raising prices. With this increase in wages labor would not only be able to maintain a proper standard of living but would be able to invest and become stockholders."

Saving of Space Necessary in Transportation During War Indicated Road to Economy.

With the present-day keen competition, the hotels are steadily reaching a higher degree of efficiency. Until the war very little was heard of the salvage service of the army, but at that time, when it was so necessary to utilize everything possible the importance of by-products was realized, and the salvage service became one of the most highly organized branches of the army. The hotel men in the army played no little part in improving this branch and have since done much to apply their army experience to their piece-time jobs.

In the current issue of Hotel Management, Clinton G. Holden, former Colonel in the Salvage Service, a division of the G. M. C., now manager of the Newark Athletic Club, tells how the methods employed so successfully in the army can be applied to hotel kitchens and even to the kitchen of the small household.

"It was our job in the Salvage Service to collect the thousand and one odds and ends of junk of all kinds that an army creates and convert that huge mass of materials into something useful and practical," says Colonel Holden. "Tonnage space was at such a tremendous premium during the war that it seemed a crime not to utilize every last bit of merchandise, even to the materials in which it was wrapped, whenever it was in any way possible to do so.

"The particular branch of this work with which I was connected was the food branch—because that was the kind of thing my civilian occupation had best qualified me to handle—and when I investigated the possibility of effecting economies in the amount of food used, or rather wasted, I was simply astounded. I found, for example, that if the American kitchens would operate at a 2 per cent. waste—which was entirely feasible—rather than at an 8 per cent. waste, which was nearer the average—the amount of food saved would have fed 100,000 men for a month; or, to state it another way, would have released 4,500 tons of shipping monthly. It is with the thought that some hotel men may on investigation find themselves confronted with similar opportunities for economy, though on a small scale, of course, that I am describing below how some of the leaks were stopped.

Classified By-Products.

"We classified kitchen by-products as follows, and I know that a hotel manager or steward would find the same classification practicable for this purpose: Bones; fats and drippings; stale bread, grill, boxes, vinegar barrels, empty cans, empty sacks, burlap and wrappings from frozen beef; paper, rope and twine; pickled kegs and other containers.

"We then went on to show in detail how to make the most of these materials. We explained, for example, that all bones should be chopped and used for soup stock. Then, after being used in that way, they should be carefully scraped and sent to a salvage plant for conversion into fertilizer. Any hotel that does a sizable restaurant business could undoubtedly find a ready market for clean bones to be used for this purpose. It would be found, I believe, that the fertilizer companies would prefer to have the bones delivered in burlap bags.

"We subdivided the fats and drippings' item into six sections: Suet, excess fat from the carcass, surplus fat, cracklings, skimmings and bacon fat. Suet should be used for the best cooking purposes. Its most economical use is raw in suet pudding, but it can also be turned into drippings. Excess fat from the carcass should be cut into small pieces or put through a meat grinder, rendered and clarified. It may be issued instead of butter. While this treatment would probably not be practicable in a first class hotel—in so far as guests' or help' butter is concerned—I see no reason why such fat, when properly clarified, should not be used for cooking.

"Surplus fat removed before cooking should be rendered and clarified, for use in making cakes and biscuits. Cracklings, the fibrous residue of rendered raw fat, should be boiled up with water, skimmed and used in first-class cooking. Skimmings, the grease skimmed off the surface of stews, stock pots, &c., should be clarified. If discolored it should be broken up, put into fresh water and reclarified. When clear it can be used for first-class cooking. If discolored and flavored, it is useful as second-class best brown drippings for frying. Bacon fat left after frying bacon should be clarified and used for second-class brown drippings for frying. Fat lost in process of cooking, clarified, makes excellent gravy.

"No matter how much care is taken to conserve fats for cooking purposes, there will always be a residue which is discolored, impossible to clarify sufficiently, or which cannot for some other reason be consumed in the kitchen. In the A. E. F. it was possible to reclaim these fats for the munitions plants—100 pounds of fat produced ten pounds of glycerine for explosives—but now, of course, this outlet is practically nonexistent. It might be that some hotels, particularly those near soap factories, could find the manufacturers of that product interested in the drippings, bacon rind, greasy materials and residue of grease traps which are in most cases simply thrown out. Some of the big packing houses have discovered that it pays them to operate their own soap factories simply for the purpose of providing an outlet for the fat which they accumulate. Fats for shipment are best preserved when packed in wooden barrels.

Save Stale Bread.

"Stale bread and loaf ends should never be thrown out. They can be broken up and used in stewed tomatoes, hash, hamburger, soup, beef loaf, croquettes and bread pudding. Ingenious chefs will probably discover a number of other practical uses for stale bread if their thoughts are directed along the lines outlined.

"It would, I believe, pay any group of hotels that are reasonably close to each other to organize a salvage service department and get one large rendering plant near the city where all garbage could be delivered and put through a degreasing process. After garbage has been degreased it makes excellent hog and chicken feed and commands a remarkably high price when sold for these purposes. The grease taken from the garbage would, of course, be utilized for making soap. With the exception of the highly perfumed soaps, a plant of this kind could probably fulfill all the soap requirements of the hotels delivering garbage to it.

"Another source of income can be had by salvaging the contents of swell-end cans such as those containing peas, beans, soups, &c. In France I reclaimed these, put the contents in large cookers, cooked them very thoroughly and removed the moisture with salvaged bran and oats. The residue was then spread in large pans and baked thoroughly in sidewalk ovens. It was then put through cutting machines, ground fine and sold as feed.

"It is largely up to the individual hotelkeeper's ingenuity to make a profit on the other items listed above—cans, sacks, wrappings, paper, rope and twine, boxes, barrels and kegs. Local conditions, and more particularly the character of local industries, will determine whether or not a market exists. It is surprising, though, how 'far-fetched' an outlet can sometimes be found. Often industries that would not at first glance seem at all interested in these by-products can be profitably cultivated—especially when it is possible to deliver the bags, boxes or whatnot in sizable quantities.

"A survey of his own local conditions with a view to uncovering outlets for them will no doubt bring to light a number of additional points."

STOLEN CATFISH MYSTERY.

Solved by Discovery of Predatory Blacksnakes by Voracious Angler.

The fisherman had put nine catfish in what he called his "preserve" on Saturday night, and when he searched for them early Monday morning, with a view to a succulent breakfast, he could not find one. The fisherman's home stood close to the shores of North Spectacle Lake on Mont Mesenaia in Connecticut, and about fifty feet from his rough pine porch a spring bubbled with a constant supply of fresh water. A little way from the heart of the spring had been dug, and in this gully, which was kept filled with ever-changing water, the fisherman kept his fish alive.

The disappearance of the catfish was followed by an eager examination of the ground near by, and then with cautiously groping fingers beneath the water, without being rewarded by any discovery that would explain the mystery. There were only two explanations, so far as the fisherman could see. One was that thieves had rifled his preserve and the other was that the "darned thing had sprung a leak and the catfish had got back to the lake." But the latter proved to be groundless, and so the conviction was lodged securely in the fisherman's breast that his fish supply had been stolen.

He prepared to catch more of the fish, and just after sundown, while the shadows of night were beginning to creep over the lake like a great blanket, he set forth in his flat-bottomed skiff, tied it to a stake driven deep in the mud, and then baited several hooks with fat, appetizing earth-worms. An hour later he came back with twenty fine catfish and deposited them, still alive and flopping, in the preserve.

The next morning there were only ten, and the fisherman swore vengeance. In the afternoon he refreshed himself with a long nap and then, with a shotgun loaded with No. 6 shot, stood watch over the preserve from the shelter of his porch. Nothing happened during the night, so far as the fisherman could see, but when morning came and he again counted his fish there were only five. These five were cooked and eaten for breakfast, and then, with his pipe aglow, the fisherman swung lazily in his hammock under the trees and tried to fathom the mystery. He caught fifteen catfish that night, placed them in the preserve, and in the morning there were only two left.

The fisherman sat on a stump and tried to figure the thing out. While he thought, he observed that a thrush was scolding dreadfully from a near-by bush, with occasional flutterings here and there, but with many signs that flight was not dreamed of. What troubled the bird was plain enough. Some creature had ventured too near her nest and she was expostulating as vehemently as she knew how. Bent on ridding the bird of the annoyance, whatever it was, the fisherman strolled toward her and suddenly jumped back with a startled expression. He had almost stepped upon a blacksnake five feet long and bigger in the middle than a fat man's wrist.

Blacksnakes are harmless and helpful in the garden because they keep down many living things that prey upon garden truck. And this snake would not have been hurt if he had moved out of the way. But he was listless and disclosed anger at being disturbed. Thereupon the fisherman struck him sharply with a heavy stick and the snake squirmed for a time and died. The fisherman gazed at him reproachfully until he noticed a dead catfish lying near by, and then his remorse turned to amazement. Running to his woodpile he got an axe and with it chopped the dead snake in two. Several catfish flopped out.

Searching around, the fisherman found three other big snakes which he instantly sentenced to death and then executed the sentence. All had partaken of catfish.

"Kin ye beat it?" asked the fisherman of his neighbors, and they replied:

"THE MIDNIGHT HOUR."

Paragraphs From Columbia University's Anonymous Perennial Editorial

One of the most interesting examples of a college tradition which has grown of its own accord from a chance beginning to an annual rite known to thousands of students, is that of Columbia College's famous editorial, "The Midnight Hour," probably the only annual college editorial in the field of college newspapers.

As the well-known, "There is a Santa Claus" editorial appears every Christmastide in one of New York's newspapers, so once a year in The Columbia Spectator a shirt-sleeved, anonymous editor celebrates its anniversary in print. When it appears it is invariably the subject of campus comment, for it seems to have caught in some chance way the spirit of college life," that vague title which is so often explained and so little understood.

It is not known how long ago it was written, and its authorship rests equally unknown. Some attribute it to John Kendrick Bangs, the late humorist and at one time the editor of Spectator. One audacious rumor places the authorship at the door of Nicholas Murray Butler, another one-time editor of the college daily. No one is sure when it was first used, but it is a tradition in East Hall, the oldest building on the Morningside campus and itself a stronghold of tradition.

The editorial may appear to point a campaign for college residence or for campus discussions or any one of a dozen reasons; invariably it awakes a score of reminiscences, and the undergraduates who spend their afternoons planning out the common in the little red brick building where the student activities centre bring their discussion idly to its past, and idly speculate on its history, perhaps aided by some recent graduate of East Hall. It has even won prizes, being chosen as the best college editorial of the year recently by the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association.

"Midnight sessions are among the most enjoyable experiences in college life. No classroom discussion can take the place of the friendly, rambling, soul-revealing sort of argument that most of us carry in our memories as the choicest part of our undergraduate days. Count not that time lost which is stolen from studies and dull, profitable education, to drag discussion through interminable windings while the room is filled with the atmosphere of philosophy and blue tobacco smoke, and the hands of the alarm clock, which is to ring at 7 A. M., slowly move around to 4 o'clock in the morning.

"That is the time when friendship is tested, when toleration and fair-mindedness are taxed to the limit, when Utopian schemes are advanced to reform religion, college politics and the social system. That is the time when generous or impracticable illusions have full sway, when man meets man without the deceiving mists of manner and custom, on a basis of complete acceptance and equality. That is the time when a man forgets that he has always considered it actually immodest to expose his own feelings and beliefs, and when he speaks the thoughts that are in his mind with full assurance of understanding. That is the time when the friends are made whom we mean to keep through life with us.

"Finally, the conversation lags and dulls, and the host shows by nods and yawns that he is sleepy, and he opens the door to say 'Good night' with a last of politeness that, at any other time, would arouse resentment. One then takes his feet off the furniture and dumps the ashes from his pipe on the floor, departing to allow the cool night to blow away the tobacco smoke, and the host to snatch a few hours' sleep before daylight."

Bitten in His Sleep by Pet Dog.

John Swarko, 27, of 325 East Forty-seventh Street, was bitten by his pet dog while asleep on Sunday. Swarko paid no attention to the wound until yesterday when he found that his leg had swollen. He had Policeman Carroll of the East Fifty-first Street station call an ambulance which took him to Metropolitan Hospital.

STAGE DESIGNER IMPORTANT FIGURE

HE SAYS THE PUBLIC KNOWS

It Can Tell the Difference When a Director Tries to Get Along Without One.

That in the future there will be only two kinds of people in the world, those who act and those who design stage settings, is the dire prediction of Woodman Thompson, scenic director of the Equity Players, who will inaugurate their new season at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre in October. While the latter group is still in the minority, he declares in an article in the official organ of the Actors' Equity Association, yet their numbers are increasing by leaps and bounds.

"Invariably, designing for the theatre, writes Mr. Thompson, "is considered by the laity to be 'extremely interesting.' This sweeping statement is only partially true. Anyone engaged in this field knows that out of five plays the designer is fortunate to get one with which he can really do a fine thing. This occasional opportunity is that for which he exists, and that which enables him to live through the too often heart-breaking impossibilities of the other four.

"Such conditions are largely due to the modern preference for drawing room plays and the like, those being usually of a highly realistic nature. So many modern plays require backgrounds, such as dining rooms in Harlem, cellars in Jersey, or abandoned attics on the East Side, the opportunities to do interesting settings are the exception rather than the rule. It is a comparatively rare thing for one to be offered a garden, an Egyptian temple or the 'Seacoast of Bohemia.'"

The art of designing for the theatre is little understood, Mr. Thompson says. According to many young people who aspire to this art and field of endeavor the "alpha and omega of this work consists solely of making a colorful and usually very vague drawing suggestive of something or other which is to be carried out by the scene painter."

Often they are astonished to learn that their pet designs will receive ruthless adaptation, if not in many cases complete obliteration. It is frequently noticed that the necessary scale drawing or a ground plan for the builders is often omitted and the very important work of finding properties is often overlooked. This means very often the success or failure of a setting.

In advising the young scenic designer, Mr. Thompson admonishes that in the theatre the stage designer is a man of many parts. He must first of all be an artist; a person of taste and discrimination. He should have a thorough historic background in the form of a broad knowledge of historic styles and periods of architecture, decoration and furniture; these should serve him not so much as enable him to reproduce the actuality of an epoch but to assist him to create the atmosphere of that epoch by suggestion rather than by representation.

It is this stage designer's belief, in order to accomplish the latter feat, such a background is imperative, decidedly imperative. This is especially true in the matter of historic costume. The designer must be an expert in costume. Perhaps the greatest crime against truth and beauty in the pictorial side of the theatre has been committed in the use of costume abominations, he says.

The designer should have a sound working knowledge of modern stage lighting. He should understand thoroughly how stage settings are constructed and above all now they are to be moved in the shortest possible time with the minimum amount of labor. To do the job as it really should be done he ought to be an actor as well. The scenic director of Equity Players feels that in order to obtain the real atmosphere of the stage and to have an intelligent understanding of its demands, one should be an actor.

"More than all these things, however," declares Mr. Thompson, "the designer must have imagination, and a personality of such calibre that he can co-operate with the play director and with the actors so that their combined efforts may be conducive to a perfect and beautiful whole. These remarks would seem to indicate that designing for the theatre is after all a matter of some moment. Eight years of wrestling with its problems have convinced me that it certainly is.

"Most thinking people, both of the theatre and the laity, admit that the designer has become an indispensable necessity. There are, however, many self sufficient play directors who scorn the services of such a person. It is a rare thing to find a director who is able to cope adequately with an intricate production unassisted by a trained expert. Such directors are especially rare in America.

"To the average self-sufficient director I would say that he should not delude himself with the thought that he is putting anything over, so to speak, on the public by not using a trained designer. The unassuming public too often for his comfort has a rare appreciation of the background of a play. Any old thing will no longer satisfy them. Too many books have been written on the subject of the right thing for the theatre for the public to permit itself to be fooled."

According to Mr. Thompson, everyone thinks he can create stage settings. Though stage designing, he says, is to a certain degree, in America at least, still a more or less new-fangled thing, it is still new enough not to have lost its noveity. This fact, he says, together with the fascination of any and all things connected with the stage, offers a fresh outlet to aspiring artistic youths who feel the call of the theatre. A stage designer can easily ruin as well as help to make a play.

A balloon recently sent up by the United States eather Bureau in Washington in connection with its observations of upper air conditions reached the record height of 22,500 meters, or about thirteen miles, while it was being watched for 123 minutes.

The aerological service of the Weather Bureau releases a balloon filled with hydrogen gas twice daily at 8 A. M. and at 8 P. M., provided there is no rain, to get the directions and velocity of wind movements at various elevations as far as the balloon can be observed.

These balloons are about two and a half feet in diameter when inflated and are made of the finest quality uncolored rubber. The watching is done through a theodolite, and the time is kept by a clock which sounds an alarm every minute. The distance the balloon travels is calculated from known computations of how high a balloon of given weight will rise per minute.

The information obtained is useful to those interested in flying, and when recorded on charts showing conditions at various elevations for each of the fifteen stations of the Weather Bureau scattered over the United States which make these particular observations, it is an aid in the daily task of weather forecasting.

THE PLAY

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT

The New Forbes Comedy.

THE ENDLESS CHAIN, a play in three acts, by James Forbes. At the George M. Cohan Theatre.

Nellie Webb	Olive May
Vera Peyton	Martha Mayo
Lulu Densmore	Vera Halara
Amy Reeves	Margaret Lawrence
Kenneth Reeves	Kenneth MacKenna
Valentine Webb	Kenneth Hunter
Billy Densmore	Harry Stubbs
Andrew Hale	Harry Minturn

An uncommonly skillful and always fascinating performance by Margaret Lawrence is the factor in the production of "The Endless Chain," likely to linger longest in the memory of those playgoers who witness the new comedy by the man who wrote "The Show Shop" and "The Famous Mrs. Fair." It was presented to New York last night at the George M. Cohan Theatre, where a somewhat lethargic audience found it a credible and moderately interesting piece conventional in design and workmanlike in execution, of course, but no occasion for throwing hats into the air.

So sage and practiced a playwright as James Forbes never does shoddy work, but such a one can write without zest and unaffectiously. He has done so this time. One would hazard the guess that here was no piece that he had fairly itched to write, but rather one resulting from a notion that it was high time he turned out another play. One can sadly imagine his ordering himself to sit down at his desk and almost hear him saying to himself:

"Dear, dear, what shall this one be about?"

What he did decide to write about was the ironies of the life in which young couples find themselves who try to woo success by seeming successful in advance and so are trapped by a rising tide of debts. This befalls young Kenneth Reeves and his wife. It is an envy of their friends who have prospered more rapidly that goads little Mrs. Reeves into orgies of new gowns and new hats and new boots. She cannot bear to have any of them think her Kenneth unsuccessful. They both fret a good deal about it and are fine foil for the sowing of the suggestion that it would be bold but shrewd business for them to move into town and stake everything on a style of living that would permit them to meet easily and familiarly the men who might be helpful to Kenneth in Wall Street.

Of course, they are soon swamped with bills they cannot pay and, of course, the powerful magnate with whom the helpful little wife tries to ingratiate herself for Kenneth's sake assumes that she will reward him according to his desires uptown if he helps her husband along downtown. The threads of this plot are gathered together at last in a somewhat too artful knot, with scraps of paper and delayed telegrams and elaborate misunderstandings a trifle mechanically maintained, but the final scenes have unmistakable dramatic value, just the same, and some of them are written with great deftness and understanding.

Miss Lawrence, as has been said, is charming. She has grown measurably in skill, and there is distinction and persuasiveness and sparkle and savor to her performance as the floundering young wife of "The Endless Chain." Excellent, too, is Kenneth McKenna as the husband. For some of the others it is comparatively easy to restrain one's enthusiasm. As Mr. Forbes directed the rehearsals of his own play, he must shoulder the responsibility for the extraordinary didoes in which some of the less burdened players indulged themselves.

All through the first act where a lot of gaudy talk is strewn through the dialogue with the idea of suggesting the flashy life into which these young people will be led, each player stands and delivers in the manner of a vaudeville team playing "in one." As for Olive May, to whom Mr. Forbes entrusted all the comic relief, she takes each speech assigned her, plants herself firmly and pitches it at the audience as if it were a quoit—and this in a thoughtful comedy of manners produced with some suavity in the late Summer of 1922.

A Watsman	Angus Adam
Jenny	Nell Barker
Polly	Stella Campbell
Hunky Dory	Walter Roy
Specky Todd	Robert Drysdale
Mrs. Magladyen	Frances Ross Campbell
Peter Maguffie	Macdonald Watson
David Low	F. Manning Sproston

An engaging and generally delightful comedy is "Hunky Dory," a play so captivating in many of its scenes that it triumphs over what is probably the worst plot of the last ten years. This new piece, named, for some obscure reason, after its villain, is a comedy from Scotland, via London and Montreal. At the Klaw Theatre it is acted by the original company—or so read the announcements—but in particular it is acted by one Macdonald Watson, who also wrote the play. It is Macdonald Watson, in the main, who makes "Hunky Dory" what it is.

He is a chunky youth, in appearance a mixture of Whitford Kane and Will Deming. His method, however, is largely his own. There are moments when he suggests William Collier, and there are others when his stumbling phrases come forth somewhat in the manner of Tom Lewis. He is, at all events, a fine and ingratiating comedian. In "Hunky Dory" he has written for himself the rôle of a plumber who would fain be a painter. His masterpiece, which hangs on the wall, is a flaming canvas entitled "He Looked for a Leak in the Gas with a Lighted Candle." As will be seen, it combines art with a bit of plumber's propaganda.

As for the play, it is singularly streaky. Minor the plot is, not more than 25 per cent. of the piece, all is well. Mr. Watson seems to be one of those playwrights who really should not bother about plots at all. In "Hunky Dory" he has contrived a number of excellent scenes, in particular a second act bit wherein the plumber sits at a table and tries to find out, by means of a crumb of bread and a bit of cheese, just what constitutes blackmail. As you can imagine, it has almost nothing to do with events.

Not quite all of the comedy is flawless, for Mr. Watson is quite willing to reach down occasionally for a farcical situation or an unfair laugh. Now and then, for example, he would pretend to have great difficulty in pronouncing the words "hereditary" or "negligible." They were there to convince you, apparently, that it really was the same man who had written both the comedy scenes and the blandly absurd plot.

The company as a whole is somewhat less capable than the play deserves. Walter Roy grossly overplays the title rôle—simultaneously engaging in various grimaces at the audience. Stella Campbell, wife of the author, gives an agreeable performance as the heroine; F. Manning Sproston is considerably more than sufficient, and the remainder are so-so.

Jimmie Dugan	Eddie Dowling
Mrs. Dugan	Josie Intropidi
Mary O'Brien	Edna Morn
Mrs. O'Brien	Maude Odell
Sally	Jean Brown
Phil Chase	Clara Palmer
Irene	Kitty Flynn
Rodman Jones	Hal Van Rensselaer
Mrs. Jones	Winifred Harris
Clarence Edwards	Alfred Gerrard
Mr. Myers	Joseph Clark
Percy Fitzgerald	Burford Hampden
Al Cleveland	Stanley Ford
Bully	D. J. Sullivan
Mr. Mulcahey	Edward O'Connor

It is the first comedy out of the Irish Free State of old Manhattan in some years, with a flavor as pure as three-star Hennessey. Mr. Dowling had "studied," it was said, the central figures in those late namesake musical shows, Marilyn Miller in "Sally," Edith Day in "Irene," Janet Velie in "Mary"; but Jean Brown, Kitty Flynn, and Edna Morn needed no borrowed finery, for Miss Brown's dancing got the big "hand" of the night and Miss Morn's September stellar début was charmingly sung, while Mr. Dowling, who is the husband of Ray Dooley of another famous stage family, came honestly by some time-honored jokes and was a capital Irish lover into the bargain.

Mr. Dowling had Cyrus Wood for book collaborator, J. Fred Coots for a catchy music maker, Raymond Klages contributing lyrics apt to the plot and Italian Foster and Frank Gaby putting music and action in terms of Broadway. But a little side ensemble of old-timers stole some honestly earned laughs and applause, Josie Intropidi as Jimmy Dugan's intrepid Irish mother, and Dr. Sullivan, William Mason, Henrietta Byron and Louise Arnold as theatre watchmen and dressers to the girls, in a repeated quartet of "stars of other days."

Eddie O'Conner made a climax-capping political speech for Dugan. "Jimmy, they've given Hylan the air and elected you Mayor." Even old Ford jokes got by in that merry company, along with Mr. Sullivan's "mot" of the heart-troubled mother whom he "kept in gin." On the uptown side there were also Mary's unsuccessful society suitor, well sung and acted by Hal Van Rensselaer; two stage mothers, by Maud Odell and Clara Palmer, and stage door Johnnies by Burford Hampden and Al Gerard, all with a bit of song or story. But the best of the dancing, except Miss Brown's Pavlowa hit just before intermission, was that by the broiler chorus and Dowling to the old street piano on Avenue A.

LAME DUCK HARBOR MASCOT

Harbor travelers to the Jersey Coast, especially the younger folk, are greatly entertained by the antics of a very small, very plump and richly-plumaged wild duck that plays around the steamers Monmouth and Sandy Hook every time they approach the long Jersey Central Railroad pier at Atlantic Highlands.

The little bird is a cripple as a result of someone's poor marksmanship. It cannot fly, but it swims as well as ever and whenever a big boat appears in the offing it paddles out vigorously from under a neighboring wharf where it makes its domicile and leads the ship into her dock.

As the twin screws alternately reverse and go ahead as the officer on the bridge manoeuvres for the landing, they create veritable maelstroms under the stern and along the sides. Squawking its glee, the duck drives straight into the fiercest of the pother and is first drawn beneath the surface, then thrown high in the air from one vortex to another.

As the vessel is made fast, the duck drifts alongside, apparently watching the passengers disembark, but paying little heed to tinseled fragments of chocolate and morsels of fruit tossed overside, for it is fed regularly night and morning by the sailors with scraps from their mess.

The duck often swims out to the channel to wave a farewell with its useless wings as the steamers leave for New York, but as they cut the water clean in gathering headway this function loses its thrill.

All that is known of the bird's history is that it was picked up shot and bleeding by a watchman on the pier last Winter. The kind man nursed and fed it for a few days and vainly tried rough seaman's surgery on the broken pinion before he freed the duck.

FAITH-BUILT CITY GROWS.

No Knockers in a Texas City That Was Oil-Made Overnight.

Dr. J. White of Wichita Falls, Texas, says that his town, which is known as the "City that Faith Built," will reach the 100,000 goal which has been set by the Chamber of Commerce for 1930.

"It is quite correctly put when they say that faith built it, for everybody pulls together to make the city—we are all optimists, and we have no knockers whatsoever," said Mr. White at the Hotel Astor. "We have grown from a village of 8,000 to a city of 40,000 in just a few years. The big oil strike in the Burkburnett field in 1918 advertised us throughout the world, and people flocked there so fast it was impossible to take care of them. It was a common thing for as many as 300 persons to sit up in the depot all night, and the hotel keepers rented chairs to as many as they could accommodate—and folks were mighty glad to get them when they couldn't get beds.

"We are now working on a big irrigation project, and the dam, when completed, will be the seventh largest in the United States. The water will cover 21,000 acres, and will irrigate a district of 100,000 acres along the Wichita River."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Otis Skinner returned from Europe Sunday on the Finland, and began rehearsals yesterday in "Mister Antonio."

Florence Reed will play the leading role in "East of Suez" when the Maugham play is produced at the Eltinge on Sept. 21.

"The Passing Show of 1922," which comes to the Winter Garden on Sept. 14, opened last night in Atlantic City. Willie Howard heads the cast.

"East Side, West Side," formerly "Manhattan," was transferred yesterday from the Playhouse to the Nora Bayes Theatre. It began its engagement with a matinee.

The cast of "La Tendresse," which comes to the Empire on Sept. 25 with Henry Miller and Ruth Chatterton as its stars, will include Frederick Burt, Sydney Riggs, A. G. Andrews, William Hanley, Jean de la Cruze, Grace Elliston, Florence Fair, Elfin Finn and William Pearce.

Louis Mann will be seen in New York next month in "The Dollar Daddy," a comedy adapted by Charlton Andrews from the Hungarian of Gabor Andor.

"Orange Blossoms," which comes to the Fulton on Sept. 19, opened last night in Philadelphia.

"The Greenwich Village Follies of 1922" had its initial performance in New Haven last night. It will come to the Shubert Theatre a week from tonight.

There will be a testimonial performance in honor of Edward E. Rice, the old-time manager, at the Apollo Theatre a week from Sunday night. It will be given under the auspices of a committee of theatrical managers.

The DICTIONARY Defines—

LOVE A strong complex emotion of feeling causing one to appreciate, delight in, and crave the presence or possession of the object; such feeling between husband and wife, or lover and sweetheart.

HATE n. Bitter dislike or aversion; antipathy; animosity; enmity; hate as applied to persons, is intense and continued aversion usually with disposition to injure; a feeling deep, lingering and rancorous.

REVENGE The act of returning injury for injury; the infliction of punishment in the spirit of retaliation; furious and unsparing vengeance, the ill desert of those upon whom it is inflicted; a solemn sense of exact justice; the visitation of the doom or righteous law.

The strong emotions, expressed with intense realism, constitute the framework of the most absorbing and thrilling romance ever known in the history of literature. The hatred of the Count of Monte Cristo for the enemies who unjustly condemned him to prison; and the triumphant way in which he achieves his magnificent revenge make of this brilliant screen offering a marvelous and fascinating motion picture of terrific power and interest.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York—JACOB F. BATTS, Plaintiff, against JACOB F. LUTZ and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 23rd day of August, 1922, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 27th day of September, 1922, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Henry Bradley, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

ALL that certain house and lot of ground, situate, lying and being in the City, County and State of New York, and known as Number 41 Cherry Street, in said City of New York and bounded and described as follows, viz:—BEGINNING at the northwest corner of Lot Number 40, as conveyed to Andrew Johnson by Silvanus Miller and children and running thence from the said corner southwesterly along Cherry Street sixteen feet, two inches; thence southeasterly along the line of same and lot Number 39, seventy-four feet to the rear thereof; thence northeasterly to the line of the said house and lot number forty-three, fifteen feet seven inches; thence northwesterly and in place of beginning about seventy-four feet, be the same more or less. And also all the right, title and interest of the defendants of, in and to the party wall described and being on the premises above described.

Dated, New York, September 5th, 1922.

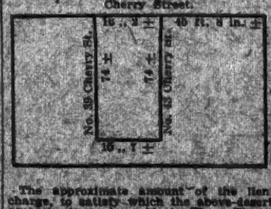
The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 41 Cherry Street, New York City:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is Three Thousand Two Hundred and Seventy-five and 13-100 Dollars with interest thereon from the 16th day of August, 1922, together with costs and allowance amounting to Two Hundred and Forty-two and 50-100 Dollars with interest from August 23, 1922, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates or which liens, which are to be paid by the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is Eighty-nine and 87-100 Dollars and interest.

Dated, New York, September 5th, 1922.

ACCOUNTANCY

LaSalle training in Accountancy is distinctive because it is based on accounting problems taken from business as practiced today. It covers a thorough knowledge of Auditing, Cost Accounting, Income Tax Procedure, Business Law, Organization, Management and Finance.

Special coaching (without additional cost) is given in Certified Public Accounting examinations and Income Tax work. Students also receive (without extra cost) additional and special Accounting training as applied to any important line of industry, such as Manufacturing, Public Service Corporations, Wholesale, Jobbing, and Retail Business, Insurance, Transportation, Construction Companies, Real Estate, Professional Activities, etc.

The instruction is under the supervision of one of the best organized corps of expert Accountants to be found in America. We enroll annually a greater number of students in Accountancy than does any other business training institution.

The Trend of Investment Prices

FOR many years prior to 1921 investment prices tended consistently downward. For instance, a monthly income of $100, which cost $24,000 in 1914, could be bought for $18,000 a year ago. While the present cost is somewhat higher, it is still far below the normal level.

We shall be glad to explain to investors the reasons for expecting that the trend during the coming few years will be upward; and shall be glad to submit recommendations to those interested in the purchase of sound investments for regular income.

BANKS' RESOURCES ARE $20,706,000,000

Crissinger Reports $529,000,000 Increase From May 5, 1922, to June 30.

LOANS TOTAL $11,248,000,000

This Is Rise of $64,000,000 Since May 5, but a Reduction of $756,000,000 Since June, 1921.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Resources of the national banks of the country amounting to $20,706,000,000 on June 30 showed an increase of $529,000,000 over the May 5 call and an advance of $188,000,000 over June 30, 1921, according to an analysis of returns for the last bank call issued tonight by Controller of the Currency Crissinger.

Between May 5 and June 30, he stated, resources of national banks in each Federal reserve district were increased with the exception of banks in the Atlanta district, which showed a reduction of $3,480,000, the amount of increase ranging from $828,000 in the Dallas district to $273,162,000 in the New York district.

Loans and discounts, including rediscounts, on June 30 amounted to $11,248,000,000, an increase since May 5 of $64,000,000, but a reduction since June, 1921, of $756,000,000. Holdings of United States Government securities amounting to $2,285,000,000 on June 30 increased by $266,000,000 during the year and by $161,000,000 since May 5, 1922. Other securities held aggregated $2,277,000,000 on June 30, an increase of $115,000,000 over May 5 and of $272,000,000 over a year ago.

A tendency to carry less cash in the vaults of the banks was reported, the amount of June 30 standing at $326,000,000, which as a decrease of $8,000,000 since May and a decline of $48,000,000 since June last year.

Balances due from banks and bankers, including lawful reserve, aggregated $4,256,000,000 on June 30, an increase of $74,000,000 since May and of $404,000,000 since June, 1921.

Capital stock of the banks on June 30, stood at $1,307,000,000 or $10,990,000 more than on May 5 and $33,000,000 more than in June, 1921. Surplus and undivided profits of $1,541,000,000 on June 30 were $19,000,000 greater than a year ago, but showed a reduction of $22,000,000 since May, attributed to payment of dividends at the close of the six months period.

National Bank circulation outstanding on June 30 amounting to $726,000,000 was reported as the greatest on record, an increase of $3,000,000 since May and an advance of $22,000,000 over June a year ago.

The total deposits of National banks on June 30 aggregated $13,366,000,000, an increase since May of $554,000,000 and since June a year ago of $1,178,000,000.

Liabilities to other banks and bankers on June 30 were $2,953,000,000, a reduction since May of $47,000,000, but an increase since June, 1921, of $460,000,000.

The amount of bills payable on June 30, was $228,000,000, while rediscounts amounted to $280,000,000, the combined reduction of bills payable and rediscounts since May being $26,000,000, and since June a year ago $963,000,000.

"The decided reduction," Mr. Crissinger said, "in the liability of national banks for bills payable, representing all obligations for borrowed money, which took place in the fifteen months preceding June 30, 1922, together with similar reduction on account of rediscounted paper, is evidence of the fact that our national banks are 'standing on their own stilts' so to speak; are in a position, and abundantly able, and are in fact in a better position, to take care of the requirements of commerce and industry made upon them, than they have been at any time since the signing of the armistice."

The number of reporting banks on June 30, he added, was 8,249, which was ninety-nine more than a year ago, while the percentage of loans and discounts to total deposits on June 30 was 68.92 compared with 70.93 on May 5, and with 73.47 per cent. on June 30, 1921.

NAVIGATION FEES PROPOSED

Legislation Is Sought Which May Net $1,500,000 a Year.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Congress will be asked for legislation to enable the Bureau of Navigation to charge fees for various services, it was announced today by Commissioner D. B. Carson.

A bill is being drafted, he stated, to permit a schedule of fees, ranging from 25 cents up, to be charged for various services rendered by the Bureau of Navigation, such as issuance of certificates of registry and renewals, recording of mortgages, shipping and paying off of seamen, and other miscellaneous fees, which should mean a revenue of between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 a year.

"Considering," he said, "that there are now 21,111 operators and 21,039 radio stations in this country and 28,012 documented vessels, canal boats and barges, as well as 1,597 documented yachts, the fees proposed will not be burdensome. Charges of this type are imposed in all foreign countries."

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4.—An announcement was made at the opening meeting of the council of the American Chemical Society here today that a prize of $25,000 would be given every year to the American who makes the most notable contribution to chemical science.

The award is to be made by a committee of seven, of which Dr. Edgar F. Smith, President of the American Chemical Society, is to be Chairman. The Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation of New York City, through William H. Nichols, offered the prize. The committee members are to have no connection with the corporation.

The council accepted the gift, which is to become operative next year.

BANKS' TERMS TO AUSTRIA.

Those Backing Bank of Issue Will Keep Capital in Switzerland.

VIENNA, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—The opening of the new Austrian bank of issue, which is considered the keynote of possible financial reforms, has been delayed, and the newspapers are asserting today that the great loaning banks whose headquarters are now in England and France have demanded that their entire capital, including the Government's 8,000,000 gold kronen, must be kept in Switzerland.

The Governmental Reichspost says that this is unpleasant, but since participation by these banks is necessary Austria must yield.

Why Southern Mortgage Bonds Pay 1% More

First mortgage bonds, secured by income-producing real estate in leading Southern cities, pay on an average 1% more than similar bonds issued against properties in Northern and Eastern cities. The same safeguards, the same kind of property (apartment structures, hotels, warehouses, etc.), the same careful methods apply to Southern bonds as to those issued elsewhere.

The premium of 1% on Southern first mortgage bonds measures the South's bid for capital to develop the vast resources of the region. Southern investments yield a higher return because the South can make profitable use of funds. Southern investments are fundamentally safe because increasing property values are constantly increasing the margin of security.

Miller First Mortgage Bonds, paying 7% or 7½%, conform to the rigid safety requirements of high-grade real estate bonds. They possess an unbroken safety record.

RAILROADS REDUCE PERILS OF TRAVEL

1907 the Peak Year for Fatal Accidents, When 11,839 Persons Were Killed.

The danger of traveling by steam railway will soon be reduced to the modicum of human fallibility, according to the prediction by local railway executives, who have been following the progress of the careful crossing educational campaign launched at the beginning of the Summer by the American Railway Association. Last year, it was pointed out, the railways of the United States made the best record for safety of operation that they have ever made in the thirty-four years since accident statistics have been compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Persistent educational work, coupled with increased use of automatic safety devices, will make for still better records, the officials state.

The commission's statistics of accidents show that the total number of persons of all classes—employes and non-employes—killed on the transportation systems in 1907 was 11,839. This was the peak year in fatal accidents. The number of fatal accidents has since then shown a gradually declining tendency. Last year the railroads handled about one-third more passenger business and about one-half more freight business than in 1907, but the number of employes and passengers killed was almost 66 per cent. less than in 1907.

Automobile accidents, the railway managers assert, have seriously interfered with efforts to reduce the number of persons killed on highway crossings. Yet in 1921 only about one-half the number were killed that were killed in 1907, and probably less than the number killed in any year since 1899.

"When it is considered that the total number of persons killed in 1921 was about the same as in 1899, and while since then the number of employes has increased about 140 per cent., the passenger traffic handled about 225 per cent., and the freight handled about 400 per cent., some idea of the increase in safety of operation which has occured, especially during the last fifteen years, can be formed," says the Association of Railway Executives.

"The following tables show the percentage of casualties, 1916 to 1921 inclusive, per 1,000 of train men in train and train service accidents for these last six years on Class I railroads:

Passenger baggagemen	64.26	46.76

"A large part of the safety of operation is due to improvement in railroad plant. It has been very much more largely due to the education of employes to the ideas of safety first."

Your Savings Can Earn High Wages

There is no satisfaction in life so deep as that enjoyed in building a competence. To begin is not difficult. You commit yourself to save a few dollars a week to pay gradually for a Columbia First Mortgage Bond. From the day it is saved each dollar begins to earn a high wage. The first Bond helps to pay for the second. Two Bonds will pay for the third, and so on until you face a future freed from the dread of dependence.

Columbia First Mortgage Bonds are considered by competent financial authorities to be one of the soundest and safest forms of investment for savings that has ever been developed.

The unique Columbia System provides automatically and absolutely for the payment both of interest and principal.

Each month the borrower must make a payment covering interest charges and also providing for the repayment of a substantial portion of the mortgage. A Columbia Mortgage is placed only on the finest and most profitable type of new apartment house or office building, situated in the fastest growing sections of New York City. No sounder security for a mortgage exists.

A Columbia First Mortgage Bond is simply a part of such a mortgage and enjoys all of its privileges and protections.

Columbia First Mortgage Bonds are obtainable for $1,000, $500, and $100, earning 6½ per cent interest. When you buy it you can arrange to have the Bond repaid in a certain year. Normal Federal Income Tax is paid by the borrower. A convenient method of paying for the Bond is provided.

Drop in and let us talk over this whole subject. Let us explain the many protections surrounding these absolutely safe Bonds. Or, if you prefer, telephone or write.

ATTACKS RULING ON GAS QUALITY

Community Councils Secretary Says People Will Demand Election of Public Service Board.

CRITICISES STANDARD USED

Declares Change From Candle Power to British Thermal Unit Defrauds Consumer.

The prediction that the people would demand the election of the Public Service Commission as the result of the commission's decision in the gas case was made yesterday by James E. Dunningham, Executive Secretary of the Community Councils, in a statement on the British thermal unit ruling, in which he says people are wondering if there is one law for the gas consumers and another for the gas corporations.

"The commission is certainly cognisant of the fact that the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., rates the equivalent of the 22-candle-power gas at 650 B.t.u.," says the statement. "Moreover, it is asserted by eminent gas experts that even had the Public Service Commission adopted the 650-B.t.u. standard it still would be unfair to consumers, for the reason that 22-candle-power gas not only carries a high illuminating power but also maintains a high heating power, whereas the British thermal unit merely carries a low illuminating power.

"Therefore to adopt the heat measure of 535 in preference to that of the light measure of 650 will unmistakably present the gas corporations operating in the city with the legal right to supply a low illuminating gas to upward of 500,000 consumers who use gas for both illuminating and heating purposes, and in consequence of the commission's order the majority of these consumers will now be compelled to install either gas mantles or electric light equipment, to the financial advantage of the electric light and gas companies, both of which are either owned or controlled by the Consolidated Gas Corporation.

"The Public Service Commission must also be cognisant of the fact that the City of Philadelphia allowed the gas companies to change from a 22-candle-power standard to that of a 585 B.t.u. system rather more than a year ago, which is also 50 more units than the commission has authorized established on Oct. 1 in the City of New York. The result of the year's experiment in Philadelphia has conclusively shown that the consumers of the Quaker City had actually paid in one year $5,000,000 more for gas under the 585 B.t.u. standardization than under that of the 22-candle-power standard of 650 B.t.u.

"Community Councils understood that one of the principal reasons given for the adoption of the British thermal unit was for the purpose of affording additional protection to consumers, and not for the purpose of fleecing them, but it has become a remarkable fact that wherever the heat unit has been adopted in lieu of the 22-candle-power standard the heating power of the gas has always been reduced under the substitution, and always without an equivalent reduction in price for a corresponding reduction in quality.

"It is considered that the adoption of the 535 B.t.u. standard will make the 10-cent fare absolutely insignificant in comparison, and in view of the commission's order the people are wondering whether there is one law for gas consumers and another for gas corporations; also whether the Legislature ever really intended that the Public Service Commission should actually protect the public from the ever-grasping clutches of gas corporations. In consequence of the disregard by the State Public Service Commission of the pathetic imploring appeals of the gas consumers for relief from the intolerable injustice of imposition it is the intention of the public, irrespective of party, to demand the repeal of the act of the Legislature under which William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the State Public Service Commission, was appointed for a ten-year term, at a salary of $15,000 a year, irremovable from office except by two-thirds of the vote of the elected members of both houses.

"The people will also demand that the Public Service Commission shall hereafter be elected by the people of the City of New York."

Federal Reserve Bulletin on Credit Insurance

A copy of a Federal Reserve Report, containing valuable information, will be sent free to any Manufacturer or Jobber upon application to The American Company.

This report is an intensely interesting and valuable Study of Credit Insurance, by the Federal Reserve Board. It appeared in a recent issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin and we have reprinted it.

Every feature of Credit Insurance is covered, notably:

2nd. Valuable as collateral with a bank.
3rd. The Normal Loss, and how it reduces the cash premium; also how this Normal Loss may be lowered by the "Merit Rates."
4th. The coverage of accounts, which assures protection on each and every customer with a designated rating.
5th. Forms of policies, Limited and Unlimited, and the contents thereof.
6th. The Collection Service, a potent and constructive factor in preventing losses.
7th. The simple and satisfactory method of adjustments.
8th. The lower percentage of losses sustained by merchants with Credit Insurance protection than by merchants without it.
9th. How the present day policy may readily be understood by merchants.

Don't fail to get your free copy of this valuable report. Write or phone for it now, while the matter is fresh in your mind.

Unlimited Policies. Limited Policies-at lower cost.

WAGES STABILIZING AT A HIGHER LEVEL

HIGHER SINCE THE WAR

Conference Board Finds 11 Per Cent. Average Rise at the End of 1921.

The National Industrial Conference Board has announced that its investigations indicate that wages in general throughout the country have reached the lowest point in the wage decline, and there now is discernible a slight upward tendency. The seventh bi-monthly summary of industrial economic conditions in the United States, issued by the board, shows that wages in American industry are being stabilized at a level considerably higher than before the war.

"Although wage reductions are reported in many parts of the country and some of them are very considerable," said a statement by the board, "nevertheless there are a sufficient number of wage increases to offset these decreases. The period of violent wage fluctuations which resulted from the era of tremendous business activity and prosperity and the succeeding period of depression seem to be at an end. Wage changes which have been made in the last few months are mainly readjustments with a view to leveling up or leveling down wages to a general standard in industry. In most lines of industry a relative age stabilization has apparently been reached. This is especially true of unskilled labor, in the fixing of whose wages the cost of living has played a considerable part. The cost of living during recent months shows little change."

A summary of wage changes prepared each month by the board, based on data in newspapers, trade journals and unofficial reports, shows the following condition since April 15:

Date.	Reductions.	Inc.	Total Ch'ges.
April 15 to May 15	54	9	63
May 15 to June 15	23	21	44
June 15 to July 15	28	21	49
July 15 to Aug. 15	7	8	15

More Increases in New York.

"Since July 15 a decided falling off in wage changes is noted, due probably to the inactivity of the midsummer period," the board's statement goes on. "Furthermore, the number of wage reductions is about balanced by the number of wage increases. The reduction most frequently noted is 10 per cent. The increases range from 6 per cent. to 20 per cent. The United States Department of Labor reports that occasional decreases in wage rates are, in most cases, offset by a greater amount of time work. In New York State, which may be taken as fairly typical of the manufacturing sections of the country, the New York State Department of Labor finds that 'in May, for the first time in many months, the number of wage increases reported was nearly equal to the number of reductions' and that 'earnings of factory workers in New York State appear to have reached a condition of relative stability, after declining steadily for more than a year.'

"Wage rates were increased in a number of iron and steel plants and in several automobile factories during the last two months. The most noteworthy was the advance in the iron industry from $30 to $6 fper ton for puddling. During the last two months there has been a tendency to raise wages of skilled workers in the building trades, an advance which is mainly of a seasonable character. The trend which was observed two months ago and previously toward lower wages of unskilled laborers seems to have changed, due to the inadequate supply of common labor.

Average Higher Now.

"The drift toward stabilization of wages seem to be nation-wide and fairly definite. The tendency is toward a relatively high average figure as compared with pre-war rates. A research study by the Conference Board of wage changes in tweny-six major industries shows the following results:

"Hourly Earnings: The average hourly earnings of all wage earners in July, 1914, were 24.3 cents. By September, 1920, when the peak in hourly earnings was reached, they had risen to 62.1 cents, or 156 per cent. above the July, 1914, figure. From then until January, 1922, they declined 13.9 cents or 22.4 per cent., thus leaving the average hourly earnings at 48.2 cents at the beginning of January, 1922, or 98 per cent. above the July, 1914, level. The average hourly earnings of all male skilled labor in July, 1914, were 29.0 cents; in September, 1920, 70.0 cents; and at the beginning of 1922, 55.5 cents. For all male common labor the figures for the same periods were respectively 20.7 cents, 56.6 cents and 39.8 cents. For women the figures were 15.6 cents, 41.7 cents, and 34.7 cents respectively.

"Weekly Earnings: The composite weekly earnings for all wage earners in July, 1914, were $12.36. By July, 1920, when the peak in average weekly earnings was reached, they had risen to $29.99, an increase of 140 per cent. From that time on, the average weekly earnings declined and at the beginning of January, 1922, were $22.27, or 80 per cent. above the July, 1914, level. The average weekly earnings of all male skilled labor were $14.19 in July, 1914; $33.74 in July and August, 1920 (the peak), and $25.68 in January, 1922. The average weekly earnings of male unskilled labor were $10.89 in July, 1914; $27.14 in August, 1920 (the peak), and $18.95 in January, 1922. For women the figures were $7.82 in July, 1914; $15.79 in June, 1920 (the peak), and $15.76 at the beginning of 1922.

"The conclusion reached by the board is that the economic status of wage earners in the principal manufacturing industries of America was 11 per cent. higher at the end of 1921 than before the war, in spite of wage reductions and part-time production."

HIGHER PRICES PREDICTED.

Labor Shortage Will Increase Production Costs, Says a Review.

A period of higher prices was predicted yesterday by the National Industrial Conference Board in its weekly radio review of industrial and business conditions.

"Settlement of the bituminous coal strike and imminent agreement in the anthracite industry will have removed a major factor in the present industrial unsettlement," said the review. "Except for removing the danger of enforced plant shutdown, the adjustment of the coal dispute has, however, had no immediate stimulating effect on business. The widespread shortage of labor which has been reflecting itself in wage increases in numerous instances is taken as forecasting a higher production cost and in turn a higher price level."

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Prices Firmer on London Exchange —Paris Trading Quiet.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Prices were firmer on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols, ⅛ higher at 57⅝; British 5 per cent. war loan, ⅛ higher at 100⅛; 4½ per cent. war loan, unchanged at 97¼.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 10 centimes, ½ per cent. war loan, 20 centimes higher at 76 francs 70 centimes. Exchange on London, 7 centimes lower at 87 francs 40 centimes. American dollars were quoted at 12 francs 94½ centimes, a decline of [illegible] centimes.

APPEALS TO LOYALTY OF FEDERAL WORKERS

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The "wise distinction between the rights of industrial operatives and the corresponding rights of Government servants" was emphasized here tonight by First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett in an address before the annual convention of the National Association of Post Office Laborers.

"Postal workers," he said, "may organize for the public good and for their mutual benefit, but no group of men and women anywhere at any time has a right to organize against the Government itself. I do not charge that any have, however, but I do believe that there are those who can see no difference between the Government as an employer and a corporation. To them I sound a warning that the people of the United States in the last analysis will be found intensely jealous of the rights and powers of their Government.

"Suppose all officeholders, including Congress, and all workers for the Federal Government organized and used their organization for increasing their own salaries and for personal gain. What would happen to the country? This is said merely to stress the distinction between public service and private employment.

"Being enlisted in the civil army of our great Government is an honor and a distinction linked with obligations which forbid our comparing our lot and gauging our conduct with those who labor for profit-making industries and corporations. There is a distinction between our relations and their relations as wide as the ocean.

"The people, through their chosen representatives, fix our pay by law and prescribe our place in the great governmental organization. We cannot agree to strike in order to break down the Government without being guilty of disloyalty and conspiracy.

"The Government's civil organization cannot be disrupted by failure or friction at any point. Whoever will not take his place and do his allotted task in the great ship of State must give way to loyal men who will. Let your influence and example be used not to agitate and alarm, but to foster co-operation, without which we fail."

TESTS SOLVE MYSTERY OF FIRE IN TREASURY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The mystery of the fire which, suddenly flaring up on the roof of the Treasury in the middle of the night of March 3, brought into action the entire Washington Fire Department and awoke with its glare the President and Mrs. Harding in the White House across the street, has been cleared up as a result of tests by the Bureau of Standards, it was announced tonight by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Clifford.

After a thorough inquiry, he declared, a special committee of Treasury officials came to the conclusion that the fire was started by the heaters in connection with tar pots being used in work on the roof, although this seemed improbable, because the heaters were separated from the temporary wood flooring by sheets of galvanized iron attached to the flooring, which was covered with four and one-half to six inches of sand, and on top of this was a sheeting of slate upon which the heaters rested.

The problem was referred to the Bureau of Standards, he continued, which reproduced at its plant the exact equipment on the Treasury roof and, after prolonged tests, during which the heaters were permitted to burn for the same time that they burned on the Treasury roof and then were extinguished, a small wisp of smoke was seen to issue from the sand-covered and metal-sheeting flooring. The bureau reported that the wisp of smoke was seen issuing from a crack under the floor at eight hours and ten minutes after the test was started.

POLAND NEEDS GOOD ROADS.

Country Has 52,000 Miles of Highways—Money Lacking.

Improvement of State and local roads throughout Poland is pointed out as one of the most urgent problems of that country as the result of a survey which showed that there were 52,000 miles of roads in the country, including 10,000 miles of state highways, 12,000 miles of provincial roads, and 20,000 miles of communal roads.

The difficulty in improvement is a financial one, money being needed for both improvement and upkeep. The Central Government already possesses all legal rights to improve roads, it is said. The plan most seriously advocated is, that, in the absence of funds to improve the entire system, the Government concentrate on the leading trade arteries and more especially the network of roads about the larger cities. A very expensive feature is the need for reconstruction of bridges, some of which were destroyed in the war, while others need general repairs.

WE EAT HALF AN EGG A DAY.

Agriculture Department Suggests That We Eat the Other Half.

Did you eat your half an egg this morning? According to the United States Department of Agriculture, the per capita consumption of eggs in the United States is one-half an egg a day.

The department suggests that every one not only get his full share, but double it by eating the whole egg. Eggs are comparatively cheap just now. More eggs have been laid this year than ever before. The total runs up to something like twenty-two billion, an increase of 10 per cent since the armistice.

Increased production is attributed by department marketing men to the fact that more hens are laying. There has been decreased consumption of poultry and farmers have been compelled to keep their hens on the farm. Hens must eat, and to pay their board they must produce eggs. Ergo, more eggs.

FRUITS THIS YEAR ARE RIPENING EARLY

PEACH CROP EXCEPTIONAL

"Make Jam for Several Seasons," is Counsel — Packing Begins Soon.

Fruit in New York State is ripening early this year, the New York State Department of Farms and Markets advises housewives in a statement sent out from Albany yesterday. There are big crops of peaches, pears, grapes and other fruits, and housewives are advised to have "their kettles ready a few days earlier than usual," for those "not prepared may miss the best season for canning and preserving," it is declared.

"Although there is a stretch of several months from the time when the first early peaches ripen in the lower Hudson Valley to the time when the last of the late varieties are moved out of cold storage, the best time to buy for canning and preserving will be when Elbertas are being picked, for about 90 per cent. of the State crop will be of that variety this year," said the statement from the State Markets Department.

"According to reports from seventy growers and shipping associations just tabulated at Albany by the crop-estimating branch of the State and Federal Governments, the picking of Elberta peaches in Western New York will become general about Sept. 10, and from then till the 25th they will be marketed at the rate of nearly 200 carloads per day. That period of two weeks is one that should be marked on the calendar as the time to make peach jam enough to last several seasons, for it will probably be some years before peaches will again be so reasonable in price. Peach trees are not often loaded as they are now, and of late the cost of marketing has been so heavy that in years of large crops growers have received but little for their fruit, with the result that the number of peach trees is steadily decreasing.

"The leading varieties of pears are Bartletts and Kiefers, these two varieties being about 90 per cent. of the total. About half of the rest are Seckels. Big crops of all three kinds are expected this year. The picking of Bartletts, the standard variety for table use, is now just starting in Western New York. Seckels, which are very small pears, but unsurpassed in quality either as a dessert fruit, for baking or for pickling, ripen a week or ten days later. Kiefers, which usually sell for a lower price and are quite extensively used for canning, will not be picked until Oct. 1. In the case of each variety, the picking season lasts about three weeks.

"Concord grapes, the leading variety for table use, for jelly and for grape juice, will be picked in quantity about Sept. 15 in both the Finger Lake and the Chautauqua County grape belts, the picking season extending until about Nov. 1.

"Each of these fruits ripen a week to ten days earlier in the Hudson Valley than they do in the large fruit section of Western New York, and people who depend on the Eastern counties for their supplies should allow for this difference in making their plans.

"Damson plums, the kind usually considered the best for jam, and quinces, which make delicious jelly, both have a long season, for there are several varieties that ripen in succession. The picking of Damsons has begun and will continue till October. Quinces will start in a couple of weeks and will not all be picked until Nov. 1. They are a good fruit for those who do not like to make jelly during hot weather.

"With a large supply of apples available, this will be a good year for many families to revert to the old-fashioned custom of putting a barrel of apples into the cellar in the Fall. Retailing costs are high these days and many kinds of produce are selling at low prices in the wholesale markets, so that there is more than the usual saving from buying in quantity. The leading varieties of apples for Winter use are Baldwins and Greenings. There are other varieties that are good and some that perhaps are better, but these two have been standard for 150 years and they are safe kinds to buy until one is familiar with other varieties. In Western New York Greenings will mostly be picked during the last half of September, and Baldwins during October."

INTERVENE IN SUIT FOR 'CONSUMING PUBLIC'

Four Ask the Supreme Court to Modify Decree in United Shoe Machinery Case.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A novel request has been submitted to the United States Supreme Court, asking for a modification of its decree in the United Shoe Machinery case, by four persons who described themselves as acting in behalf of the "consuming public" and "citizens of the United States." The petitions declared that 90 per cent. of the population would be adversely affected by the decree if its "literal interpretation" were not corrected.

Unless the court "makes clear its intention as to the scope of the decree . . . so that it cannot be construed . . . to approve an interpretation that abrogates rights which the court has already found to be inalienable," those filing the petition asserted they would bring additional litigation.

The court found certain forms of leases used by the United Shoe Machinery Corporation to be in violation of the Clayton Act after it had decided that the lease did not violate the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

The effect of the decree," the request set forth, "if construed to make impossible the continuance of the supervision of the United Shoe Machinery Company over the products creating the existing good-will of wearers toward the United Shoe Machinery Company, would be to deprive those consumers of their power to exercise their inalienable rights of choice."

The proceeding is based upon the ground that "the consuming public" was not heard or "authoritatively represented" in the trial of the case. The court is earnestly requested to inform "shoe wearers" that the decree "does not prohibit the United Shoe Machinery Company, if it desires, from supervising the manufacture of shoes in response to shoe wearers' demands and from giving notice to the public for its protection by appropriate marking on the shoes to indicate the shoes upon which such supervision is applied."

No action will be taken by the court upon the request until it reconvenes in October.

SUE TO BAR ASTORIA BUSES.

In an effort to stop the operation of buses in Grand Avenue from Second to Eighteenth Avenue in the Astoria section of Queens, Slaughter W. Huff and Robert C. Lee, receivers of the Steinway surface lines, will begin an injunction suit against the Manhattan Transit Company today.

The Manhattan Transit Company is operating under a franchise granted the General Carriage Company by the Legislature in 1898, and in the complaint of the receivers, which has been prepared by Alfred T. Davison, their counsel, an injunction is asked to restrain the Manhattan Transit Company from operating buses in any street in New York City.

The buses in Grand Avenue charge only a three-cent fare, and residents of that district are disturbed over the possibility of discontinuance of the line.

LACKAWANNA STEEL COMPANY
NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

To the Stockholders of Lackawanna Steel Company:

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of Lackawanna Steel Company will be held at the office of the Company in the City of Lackawanna, Erie County, State of New York, on the 18th day of September, 1922, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., Eastern Standard Time (10:30 A. M., Daylight Saving Time), for the purpose of voting upon the following propositions, to wit:

1. That the stockholders of Lackawanna Steel Company consent to the sale and conveyance of all its property, rights, privileges and franchises to a subsidiary company, organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, a New Jersey corporation, for the following consideration, to wit:

(a) The delivery and payment to the stockholders of the Company of $12,500,000, par value, of the Seven Per Cent. Non-Cumulative Preferred Stock and $23,608,500, par value, of the Class B Common Stock of said Bethlehem Steel Corporation (including scrip in lieu of fractional interests in shares), and $308,580 in cash; and

(b) The assumption by the purchaser of all indebtedness, liabilities and obligations of Lackawanna Steel Company.

2. That the stockholders of Lackawanna Steel Company consent that the stock of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the cash to be delivered and paid as part consideration for such sale and conveyance, be so distributed among the stockholders of the Company that each stockholder shall receive such part of each class of said stock of Bethlehem Steel Corporation (and/or scrip in such form as may be approved by the Board of Directors, in lieu of fractional interests in shares thereof) and such part of said cash as the number of shares of stock of Lackawanna Steel Company held by such stockholder bears to the total number of shares thereof outstanding.

3. That a committee be appointed to act for the stockholders of Lackawanna Steel Company in arranging for the receipt of said consideration and the distribution thereof among said stockholders.

4. That Lackawanna Steel Company be forthwith dissolved pursuant to the laws of the State of New York.

5. Such other matters as may properly come before the meeting.

The stock transfer books of the Company will be closed at the close of business on the 18th day of August, 1922, and unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors, will be re-opened at the opening of business on the 19th day of September, 1922.

Dated Lackawanna, New York, August 17th, 1922.

SEEK TO SPIN FIBRE OF BUOYANT KAPOC

TOO BRITTLE FOR THREAD

But a New Process Is Sought—Valuable Now for Life Preservers.

The possibility of using kapoc fibre in the textile industry is being considered by manufacturers who have been studying the unusual qualities of the material. Due to its lightness, nonabsorbent qualities, coolness and freedom from matting, it is now used principally in mattresses, pillows, cushions, life preservers and for upholstery material. The supply of this fibre comes from South America and Java.

A kapoc mattress weighing thirty pounds is about the size of a hair mattress weighing fifty and costs about half as much. Should a mattress become flat or matted through long usage, exposure to the sun soon will return its original resiliency.

Its floating power gives it a preferred place for life-saving devices. Three pounds, when compressed, will support the human body in the water. This same kapoc, after thirty days of immersion, is still capable of sustaining twenty-five times its own weight. Cork has but one-sixth to one-fifth the buoyancy of kapoc.

The Department of Commerce is authority for the information that of the kapoc consumed in 1917, 5,022,370 pounds was used to make 909,007 mattresses, 1,777,378 pounds for pillows, cushions and pads, 237,730 pounds for 206,900 life preservers, and 1,425,352 pounds for other purposes.

The following table in Grace Log, published by W. R. Grace & Co., gives an idea of how imports have been on the increase, until today it can be safely said that this country can readily absorb 15,000 tons of kapoc per year. The present world production is not in keeping with the continued increasing demand:

1915	5,360	5,621	26
1916	5,842	5,819	20
1917	6,961	6,868	79
1918	9,576	9,398	5
1919	10,972	9,384	36
1920	5,672	5,545	45
1921	3,465	7,001	75

As far as distinction goes between the product from Java and that of South America, it is almost impossible to tell the two apart. If South American growers gave the kapoc more attention and if it were grown, gathered and graded with the same meticulous care that is employed by the Java producers, their product, without doubt, would rank as high and command as good a price as the Java variety, it is said.

Lyster H. Dewey, fibre expert of the Department of Agriculture, reports that in a recent buoyancy test of four samples of kapoc, one that came from South America, after ten days of submersion still was floating, while the other three, among them one from Java, had absorbed sufficient water to cause them to sink.

"This light, silky material, with its varied and remarkable qualities is now in the limelight, due to its great manufacturing possibilities," writes A. Villagran in the Grace Log. "Aside from the many purposes for which it now is used, the possibility of spinning the fibre is being considered by manufacturers and laboratory wizards. From time to time reports come from Europe that a method has been devised to use kapoc for textiles.

"All previous attempts to spin kapoc into thread, however, have proved unsuccessful. So delicate is the fibre, which is short and brittle, that it is torn into tiny particles as light as dust. However, something already has been accomplished by the French, although the work done so far cannot be regarded as other than experimental.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

NOTICE OF SALE.

United States District Court: District of New Jersey; Big Bend Coal Mining Company, Complainant, against Empire Tire and Rubber Corporation, Defendant.

To Whom It May Concern, including creditors, claimants, stockholders, bidders and all other parties in interest:

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the terms of an order of sale made by the Honorable J. L. Bodine, United States District Judge, dated July 10th, 1922, hereby referred to and made a part hereof, the real and personal property of the Empire Tire & Rubber Corporation, defendant, will be offered for public sale by the undersigned Receivers at the main entrances to the factory of the defendant in the City of Trenton, Mercer County, New Jersey, on the 13th day of September, 1922, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of said day, subject to the confirmation of the Court and upon the terms and conditions contained in said order and upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated or which may be stated by the Receivers at the time of such sale.

The real property to be offered for sale is described as follows:

ALL THAT CERTAIN TRACT of land with the buildings, boilers, engines and machinery thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the City of Trenton, County of Mercer and State of New Jersey, bounded and described as follows, to wit:

BEGINNING at a stone for a corner (known in the old surveys as the Black Oak Sapling Corner) on the south side of the Head race bank; thence according to survey made by C. C. Haven, August 28, 1874, along land of Moore and Richey, north sixty-one degrees fifteen minutes west, seventy-six and five-tenths feet to a point in the middle of the Mulberry Lane as formerly laid out; thence along the middle of the same, south thirty-six degrees forty minutes west, four hundred fourteen and five-tenths feet to the middle of the Trenton and Allentown Turnpike; thence along the middle of the same, south seventy-four degrees forty minutes west, three hundred and three-tenths feet; thence south sixteen degrees ten minutes east, twenty-five feet, more or less, to a point in the south line of said Turnpike, being south line of Clinton Avenue; thence along the same, south seventy-three degrees thirty minutes west, three hundred thirty-nine and three-tenths feet, more or less; thence south twenty-seven degrees west, by land of East Trenton Land Association, south twenty-seven degrees west, eight hundred seventy-one and two-tenths feet to a stone; thence by land of said Association, south twenty-three degrees thirty minutes east, two hundred eighty-five and twelve one-hundredths feet to the middle of Assunpink Creek; thence up said creek, the several courses and distances thereof, to a point near the middle of said Turnpike; thence according to survey made by C. C. Haven August 28, 1874, south eighty-five degrees forty minutes east, one hundred fifty and five-tenths feet, more or less, to a point in the middle of said Turnpike in range with the west line of Edward Davies; thence along the same north two degrees ten minutes east, four hundred ninety-one and seven-tenths feet; thence along the same south eighty-five degrees ten minutes west, two hundred sixty-six feet to a point in Mill Pond; thence still along said Davies, south twenty-seven degrees twenty-five minutes west, thirty-three feet to a point in the edge of the Dam; thence still along the same south four degrees twenty-nine minutes east, one hundred thirty-two feet to the middle of Assunpink Creek; thence along line of said Moore and Richey, north seventy-six degrees forty minutes west, one hundred forty-five and two-tenths feet to the point or place of Beginning.

Being the same premises which were conveyed to the Empire Rubber and Tire Company by the Empire Rubber Manufacturing Company, by deed dated January 9, 1919, and recorded in Mercer County Clerk's office in Book 354 of Deeds, pages 325, etc.

Excepting thereout the following tract:

BEGINNING at a point on the face of the easterly abutment of the bridge over the Assunpink Creek on East Clinton Avenue, said point being on the established centre line of said East Clinton Avenue and running thence (1) along the said face of said abutment south eight degrees thirty minutes west, twenty-four and ninety-eight one hundredths feet to the southerly corner of same; thence (2) south fifteen degrees and thirty-two minutes east, thirty-four feet to a point; thence (3) south, sixty-one degrees fifty-three minutes east, eighty-three feet to a point; thence (4) south, thirty-five degrees thirty-nine minutes, east, forty-one feet to a point; thence (5) south, six degrees thirty-eight minutes west, two hundred and fifteen feet to a point; thence (6) south, thirty degrees twenty-six minutes west, one hundred and thirty-four feet, more or less, to a point in the middle of the creek; thence (7) along the middle of said creek, north six degrees fifteen minutes west, four hundred and seventy feet, more or less, to the middle of the aforesaid bridge; thence (8) along same on the established centre line of East Clinton Avenue, south eighty-one degrees thirty minutes east, forty-one feet to the place of Beginning.

Being the same premises conveyed to the De Laval Steam Turbine Company by the Empire Rubber and Tire Company, by a quit-claim deed dated December 20, 1916, and recorded in the Mercer County Clerk's office.

Also excepting the property located at the northeasterly corner of Olden Avenue and Lawrence Street fronting two hundred and two feet on North Olden Avenue and fronting five hundred fifteen and seven-tenths feet on Lawrence Street running back to the Assunpink Creek.

CONVEYS also its right, title and leasehold interest in the following described premises:

The property to be offered for sale as a going concern in its entirety will be the complete plant and equipment, including the real property, together with all personal property therein contained, including all merchandise, raw or in process and finished merchandise and all contracts, choses in action, moneys in hand or upon deposit, all accounts receivable, notes and bills receivable, the good will and right to use the corporate name or any part thereof of the defendant corporation and the good will of the business as conducted by the Receivers, all the books of account, lists of customers, records and all processes of the defendant corporation or in the hands of the Receivers, excepting only such books of account as the Receivers may be required to retain as a record of their proceedings as such Receivers, and all other personal property and assets, and all rights, privileges and franchises of whatsoever description of the defendant corporation or in the hands of the Receivers.

Bids may be made containing any terms not inconsistent with the order of sale which the bidder or bidders may wish to impose in relation to the payment of the purchase price. No bid will be considered for the real estate, appurtenances, equipment and plant nor of the property as a going concern in its entirety, unless the proposed bidder shall have deposited with the Receivers by twelve o'clock noon of the day preceding the sale a certified check for One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000), such certified check to be upon a bank or trust company approved by the Receivers and to be made to their order. And no bid will be considered for the personal property alone unless the proposed bidder shall similarly deposit a certified check for One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000), which deposit will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder upon the final rejection of his bid, and the deposit of the successful bidder to be applied on account of the purchase price or held as security for the performance by the bidder or bidders of the terms of the accepted bid, or subject to such other proper use as the Court may determine.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. Southern District of New York.—In the matter of FAMOUS OUTLET, INC., Alleged Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 32,957.

Upon the annexed petition of JESSE W. HELRICH, the receiver herein, verified the 26th day of August, 1922, praying for an order permitting him to sell at private sale the property of the alleged bankrupt, and the offer annexed thereto by Maurice Winter, offering to purchase all of the receiver's right, title and interest to the following assets of the estate for the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000) Dollars:

"The merchandise, fixtures, equipment and machinery at No. 14 East 17th Street, the claims against the United States Post Office Department and customers, and all outstanding accounts receivable, for goods and merchandise shipped and to be shipped until the acceptance of the offer and ratification thereof by this Court, the trade name and good-will of the alleged bankrupt, the list of present and prospective customers of Famous Outlet, Inc., including stencils and records"; and upon all the papers and proceedings herein, and on motion of COHEN & POLIER, Esqs., attorneys for the trustee, it is Ordered, that Ferdinand Reinheimer be and he hereby is appointed one of the appraisers to appraise the assets of the above named alleged bankrupt in the place and stead of Irwin A. Edelman, who is unable to act in conjunction with Leigh B. Maxwell and Arthur C. Levy, heretofore appointed by an order bearing date the 19th day of August 1922, and that said appraisers are to appraise the said property and assets and to file their appraisal with all convenient speed; and it is further

Ordered, that the creditors and all parties in interest show cause at a Stated Term of this Court, to be held at the Court House, Room, 235, in the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of September, 1922, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the said offer made by the said Maurice Winter, or such other or better offer as may be made upon the return day of the hearing, should not be accepted, and why the receiver should not have such other and further relief as to this Court may seem just and proper; and it is further

Ordered, that any offer shall be accompanied by a deposit either in cash or by certified check of ten per cent (10%) thereof; and it is further

Ordered, that the place of business, located at No. 14 East 17th street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, to be sold, shall be open for inspection from the date hereof to and including the 8th day of September, 1922, on all business days from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.; and it is further Ordered, that a copy of this order shall be published in the "Daily News Record" and the "New York Times" on August 30th and September 5th, 1922, and that a copy thereof shall be mailed to each creditor known to the receiver on or before August 30th, 1922, and that such publication and mailing shall be due and sufficient notice thereof.

Dated, New York, August 28th, 1922.

J. W. MACK, C. J.

Consented:
CHAS. MARCUS-HORACE G. MARKS, Attorneys for Bankrupt.
COHEN & POLIER, Attorneys for receiver, 2 Rector street, New York City.

EAGER FOR STATE TREES.

Institutions Accept Conservation Commission's Offer.

County tuberculosis sanitariums throughout New York State are responding very enthusiastically to the Conservation Commission's offer of trees to plant about their institutions. Among those whose officers have asked for trees is the Stonywold Sanatorium, at Lake Kushaqua, which plans to use 5,000 trees, including white pine, white cedar, Scotch pine and Norway pine.

The Buffalo City Hospital, the Summit View Sanatorium, the Onondaga County Sanatorium, and the Brookside Crest Sanatorium, Sherburne, all have ordered trees of various kinds.

The commission has detailed one of its foresters to assist in planning reforestation for the J. N. Adam Memorial Hospital, one of Buffalo's municipal institutions, which wants trees for a tract of 500 acres. The Homestead Sanatorium, at Middle Grove, in asking for trees, said that it had plenty of men who might assist in setting out the trees, and some patients who could help.

Reservation of trees at the various nurseries are being put in in the order in which applications are made. The trees are offered by the commission in order that the patients may enjoy the benefits of a forest environment as soon as the plantations reach maturity.

scription of the defendant corporation or in the hands of the Receivers, as a going concern.

The purchaser to assume the contracts of purchase for material, listed as aforesaid, and the operation of the plant by the Receivers shall continue in the ordinary course until confirmation of the sale and delivery of the property to the purchaser, the said operation for the account and risk of the said Receivership, but the said purchaser to agree to such purchase in the assets purchased by him as shall be incident to such operation.

Said properties will be offered for sale without right of redemption and free and clear of all encumbrances and liens.

The real estate and its appurtenances, equipment and fixtures will first be offered for sale separately, the remaining property, as listed and described in the schedule to be prepared by the Receivers, and as hereinbefore described, will then be offered for sale. All of said real property and said remaining property together with all other property of the defendant corporation and in the hands of the Receivers incident or pertinent to the operation of the business of the defendant corporation will be offered for sale as an entirety and as a going concern.

All bids received will be reported to the Court at the United States District Court Room in the City of Newark, New Jersey, on October 2nd, 1922, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at which time the Court will take such action in respect to such bids as it may deem just and proper, and all persons are ordered to show cause at such time and place why said bids should not be accepted in the discretion of the Court, and notice is hereby given that the Court will thereupon accept bids or reject the same or make such decree or orders as may seem proper and advisable.

BEGINNING at a point in the centre of Assapink Creek, corner to lands of the De Laval Steam Turbine Company and in line of lands of the Empire Rubber and Tire Company, said point being also a corner of lands of the City of Trenton and also corner made by the city line as of this date and running thence (1) northeasterly along the middle of said creek along the line of the De Laval Steam Turbine Company one hundred and fifteen feet, more or less, to a point which is distant seven and five-tenths feet southerly from the centre line of a trestle belonging to the Empire Rubber and Tire Company; thence (2) south, thirty-one degrees fifteen minutes west, one hundred and twenty-five feet to a point in the westerly line of land of the said De Laval Steam Turbine Company, said point being also distant seven and five-tenths feet southerly from the centre line of the above-mentioned trestle; thence (3) north, thirty and one-half degrees west, along the line of land of said De Laval Steam Turbine Company, forty and sixty-three hundredths feet to the place of Beginning, to be used for a railroad siding.

BEING the same premises which were leased by the De Laval Steam Turbine Company to Empire Rubber and Tire Company for a term of ninety-nine years by a certain indenture of lease dated December 20, 1916, and recorded in the Mercer County Clerk's office.

TOGETHER with all the appurtenances, equipment, fixtures, tools and appliances pertinent to said plant.

The personal property to be offered for sale and all contracts for the purchase of materials to be assumed by the purchaser will be listed and described in a schedule to be prepared by the Receivers and made accessible to all bidders at the time of such sale and a reasonable time prior thereto. Said personal property will consist, briefly, of all merchandise, raw or in process and finished product, together with all contracts, choses in action, moneys in hand or upon deposit, all accounts receivable, notes and bills receivable, the good will and right to use the corporate name or any part thereof of the defendant corporation and the good will of the business as conducted by the Receivers, all the books of account, lists of customers, records and all processes of the defendant corporation or in the hands of the Receivers, excepting only such books of account as the Receivers may be required to retain as a record of their proceedings as such Receivers, and all other personal property and assets, and all rights, privileges and franchises of whatsoever description of the defendant corporation or in the hands of the Receivers.

Bids may be made containing any terms not inconsistent with the order of sale which the bidder or bidders may wish to impose in relation to the payment of the purchase price. No bid will be considered for the real estate, appurtenances, equipment and plant nor of the property as a going concern in its entirety, unless the proposed bidder shall have deposited with the Receivers by twelve o'clock noon of the day preceding the sale a certified check for One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000), such certified check to be upon a bank or trust company approved by the Receivers and to be made to their order. And no bid will be considered for the personal property alone unless the proposed bidder shall similarly deposit a certified check for One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000), which deposit will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder upon the final rejection of his bid, and the deposit of the successful bidder to be applied on account of the purchase price or held as security for the performance by the bidder or bidders of the terms of the accepted bid, or subject to such other proper use as the Court may determine.

Copies of the order of sale, terms of sale, and other information, may be obtained at the offices of the Receivers.

A Building Appealing to Foresighted Merchants
THE Heckscher Building was planned for progressive wholesale and retail merchants—leaders in their fields—who cater to an exclusive clientele.
Every detail of its design, from the rich leather lined elevators, the magnificent Italian marble Arcade and entrance hall, to the imposing and artistic facade was planned to make it a fitting home for such merchants.
The ideal will be unwaveringly adhered to and only firms of the highest character are being considered or accepted.
The location, dominating the great 57th Street high class merchandising center, is important today and only foresighted merchants can conceive of its tremendous future.
Hence, for the character of merchants for whom the Heckscher Building was erected, its space is of inestimable value—for there is no other building of equal distinction, character or prominence of location with which it can be compared. If you are now considering a new home for your business next February or May, see the available space in other buildings first.
Then inspect the Heckscher Building—weigh its many advantages—
And you will appreciate fully why it is the best location for your permanent business home.

CITY REAL ESTATE.

Manhattan—For Sale or To Let.

A SPLENDID INVESTMENT—Greater the production, smaller the prices; smaller the production greater the prices; this is the law of supply and demand. The house shortage situation in respect to the masses in general has not been ameliorated because not a single new building has been erected in the thickly populated tenement district of the city. Tenements, renting at $5 a room, make therefore a safe and ideal investment and are bound to increase in value very rapidly. We offer a six-story fireproof tenement on plot 40x100; rents very low at $7,200 a year; estimated expenses about $3,600; cash required $10,000. E. V. PESCIA & CO., Times Bldg. Tel. 4000 Bryant.

FOUR-STORY and basement, altered into 5 apartments, each having 3 spacious rooms with its own shower bath and kitchenette, steam heat, parquet, electric lights, instantaneous hot water supply; will sacrifice to quick buyer at $25,000 with $5,000 cash; personal interview only. Coughlan & Company, Inc., 200 West 72d.

WEST 70S, four-story and basement, size 21x100; 17 large rooms, furnished in mahogany, 4 tiled baths, electric lights, parquet floors; owner leaving town; will sell house and entire furnishings for $6,000; balance easy terms for ten years; possession at once; personal interview only. THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Temperatures fluctuated above normal during Monday in all sections east of the Rocky Mountains, with readings considerably above normal throughout the great central regions, the Gulf States, the Middle States and the region of the Great Lakes. Cooler weather has overspread the Pacific States and the northern plateau region.

Thunderstorms have been local showers and thunderstorms within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic and Gulf States, Tennessee, Kentucky and the far Northwest. In other parts of the country the weather remained generally fair.

There was relatively high Monday night along the South Atlantic and North Pacific Coasts and low in all interior districts with the centre of minimum pressure over Alberta, Canada.

The outlook is for scattered thunder showers in the South Atlantic States and generally fair in the Middle Atlantic and New England States, the lower Lake region, Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf States during Tuesday and Wednesday. The temperature will remain somewhat above normal over the eastern half of the country during the next forty-eight hours.

IN THE NEGRO CABARETS.

Nightly Attractions in Harlem's "Little Africa."

The sight was somewhat unusual. It was in a long, low-ceilinged room in the basement of a former saloon in the heart of Harlem's "Little Africa." The room was crowded with negroes—men and women seated at little tables. Busy waiters ran hither and thither bearing trays laden with food and soft drinks. The place reeked heavy of stale tobacco smoke. Against the wall near the middle of the room a piano player drummed out popular jazz with tireless energy. The negroes paid little attention to him but kept up a noisy chatter. Now and then merry peals of rich negro laughter rose above the din of the piano. The place was one of the district's negro cabarets.

The sound of the piano at last died out altogether, and the player, rising, bowed perfunctorily to the feeble applause which followed. The chatter and merriment now swelled in volume; men and women shouted noisy words of greeting and banter to one another across the tables, and the busy waiters became still busier.

"Four porks on wheat!" bellowed a waiter kitchenward, using his hands as a megaphone, and the order was repeated from a wailed interior.

The proprietor of the cabaret, a sleek looking fellow in a faultlessly fitting suit of mohair, explained to the visitor that four porks on wheat was kitchen language for pork sandwiches. "My clientele," he said, "are mostly laboring folks. See those big brawny giants over there? They are longshoremen, and they like to drop in here occasionally to listen to the music and watch the dancing. It is to begin in a few minutes."

The piano-player took his place at the keys, this time accompanied by two violinists. The floor manager announced that "Miss Lizzie from Dixieland" would give an exhibition of buck and wing dancing. The music started and Miss Lizzie began her dance. It was soon apparent to everybody that Miss Lizzie was some dancer, for she had a most nimble and willing pair of feet. She put so much energy and effort into her dance that it appeared she would drop from exhaustion. She danced a long time, and the longer she danced the better she became. The musicians had to play their hardest to keep up with her. But despite their frantic efforts, Miss Lizzie was a little ahead of them all of the time.

As they swayed with the music beads of perspiration rolled from their foreheads. Now and they they cast furtive and appealing glances at the dancer, who only laughed at their discomfiture. She at last took pity on them, and brought her dance to an end in a great burst of applause. Both Miss Lizzie and the orchestra were too exhausted to respond to an encore. Other dancers followed, giving exhibitions of popular negro dancing.

There are other cabarets. One of these caters to a select patronage. Nightly automobiles drive up to its entrance to unload handsomely gowned women with prosperous looking escorts. In some of the cabarets performers both sing and dance, warbling old plantation melodies. Waiters pass among the well dressed guests taking and filling their orders. One cabaret boasts a good-sized orchestra and when it plays everybody dances.

SAFETY FOR BATHERS.

Red Cross and Other Organizations Plan Boston Campaign.

To consider means of decreasing deaths by drowning in Massachusetts a preliminary conference was recently held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Safety Council, with representatives of the American Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts and other organizations in attendance. The Red Cross was represented by Arthur G. Rotch, Division Manager, and William M. Harris, Director of Life Saving Service of the New England Division headquarters staff. After discussion of various phases of the problem, the following outline for a plan of action was agreed upon:

The committee should be enlarged to include the Massachusetts Humane Society, the Girl Scouts, the normal and public school gymnasium instructors and others, and a thorough study made of the problem to anticipate the drownings of another year and give instruction through the schools prior to vacation periods in the Winter and Summer.

The Massachusetts Safety Council should issue at once, from the information it may have in hand, a newspaper warning to the public, and should urge its local Safety Committee to co-operate with the American Red Cross and the Boy Scouts in their activities along this line.

There is not sufficient knowledge among police officials and medical examiners as to what the Schaefer method of resuscitation is, and an effort should be made to have this matter presented by a qualified speaker at a meeting of the Police Chiefs' Association.

The Red Cross will send to the Massachusetts Safety Council 100 posters with instructions as to how to prevent drownings.

Take up with Colonel Foote (Massachusetts State Commissioner of Public Safety) and Captain Parker the matter of demonstrating the Schaefer method before the State Patrol.

At the proper time provide all insurance papers with a story on causes of drownings.

AMMONIA GAS ROUTS 15 HARLEM FAMILIES

Owner of Confectionery Store Has Hand Frozen Trying to Stop the Leak.

FIRE LINES PROTECT CROWD

Fifteen families were driven from their apartments, and a man's hand was frozen last night, when a leak developed in an ammonia tank in the basement of a confectionery store at 505 Lenox Avenue. For an hour the fumes were so heavy that police reserves were compelled to establish fire lines about the building to protect the crowds from the results of their curiosity.

Shortly before 9 o'clock Gus Spreen, who, with William Prouss, owns the store, detected the odor of ammonia and hurried to the basement to investigate. Last Winter the firm had installed a four-ton tank for use in making ice-cream.

With a towel wrapped about his mouth and nose, Spreen made vain efforts to tighten the valve from which the gas was escaping. He did not give up until his left hand was frozen by the action of the ammonia. Then he hurried to the street and called for help.

Police Sergeant John Horan and Patrolman Henry Kelly of the West 135th Street Station, who were passing, heard Spreen's cries and ran toward the store. By this time the gas had spread into the street, and passers-by were gasping and coughing. While Sergeant Horan telephoned for the Rescue Squad of the Fire Department, Patrolman Kelly made his way into the gas-filled house, knocking on the door of each apartment and warning the occupants to flee. Most of the tenants followed the patrolman to the top floor and climbed over the roof of the building at 509 Lenox Avenue, and thence to the street.

Meantime the Rescue Squad had started its whirlwind passage from downtown. Fourteen minutes after they left their headquarters in Great Jones Street, the members of the squad were putting on their masks and starting into the gas-filled building. The average running time of New Haven and New York Central trains from Grand Central Terminal to 125th Street is seven minutes.

Under the direction of Lieutenant Rotter, the Rescue Squad opened all the valves of the ammonia tank, allowing all the gas to escape. It was an hour before the building was sufficiently ventilated for the tenants to return. Spreen was hurried to Harlem Hospital, where his hand was treated. He was allowed to return home and it was said that he would not lose the hand.

PLANS FOR SILK SHOW.

To Discuss Coming International Exposition at a Luncheon.

Howard Greenley, architect and art director of the Second International Silk Exposition, will explain his plans for the decoration of the Grand Central Palace next February at a luncheon to be held in the West Ballroom of the Hotel Commodore on Thursday at 12:30 P. M. The luncheon will be attended by the committees in charge of the exposition and about 150 silk manufacturers who will be exhibitors.

Colored lantern slides of his designs will be shown by Mr. Greenley, who recently returned from an extended European tour. While abroad he visited all of the principal art centres, collecting historical data for his work, and exchanging ideas on current art modes with designers, architects and painters. His new work will reflect the inspiration of his experiences.

The distinctive note in the new designs is the use of draperies of metallic fabrics, on which lights will be projected with dazzling effect. "I hope to achieve something new in exposition hall decoration," said Mr. Greenley, speaking of his designs. "By the use of metal cloth and light I shall attempt to transform Grand Central Palace by a background that will suggest something of the mystery and magic that is an essential element in the beauty of silk."

Brief addresses will be made at the luncheon by James A. Goldsmith, President of the Silk Association of America; Ernest R. Augustin, President of the Silk Travelers' Association, and Charles H. Green, managing director of the exposition. Reports will also be received from committees.

SHIP SUBSIDY IN NORWAY.

The Norwegian budget for the year ended June 30 last, appropriated 25,000,000 crowns for Government assistance to shipping, equivalent at normal exchange to $6,500,000 and at current exchange (16 cents equal one crown) to about $4,000,000, according to Eugene T. Chamberlain of the Transportation Division of the United States Bureau of Commerce.

"The appropriation is administered by the Department of Commerce (Handels Departementet), which has discretionary power over the allotment of 4,754,000 crowns to meet special services and emergencies and is allowed 56,300 crowns for the expense of administration of the fund," says Mr. Chamberlain, in a bulletin of the department. "The Department of Commerce has general charge of the administration of Norwegian shipping laws and Government aid is paid only to steamers which conform to the Government's requirements as to hulls, machinery, and seaworthiness generally, and as to officers and crews. Companies receiving assistance must continue to perform services required by the department for three months after the end of the fiscal year, on the same terms as during the year.

"Government assistance is granted only after a complete financial statement is submitted to the department by each company asking aid, showing all the items of its operating expenses and receipts for the previous year and the particulars of its capital account. These statements are printed in full to accompany budget estimates for the next year. Companies are forbidden to apply reserve funds for depreciation, &c., to current expenses, and when a company retires from the services the King is authorized, in his discretion, to require reserve funds to be turned into the national treasury.

"Steamers receiving Government aid are required to carry members of the Norwegian Congress free of charge, and they are also required to carry mails free. In fact, the steamers and lines receiving Government assistance resemble in several respects coastal routes and rural free delivery routes in the United States, as on account of the configuration of Norway many points are accessible only by water. Of the 25,000,000 crowns, only 710,000 crowns are for Norwegian steamers in foreign trade.

"While the purposes for which aid is granted remain very much as they were before the war, their urgency was increased by the war when the Government encountered difficulty in maintaining the food supply of its people, especially in remote hamlets—for it will be recalled that less than 5 per cent. of Norwegian territory is under cultivation. The Food Administrator of Norway during the war was the head of the shipping branch of the Department of Commerce. The amount of Government aid required, especially by reason of the high cost of bunker coal, has been very much greater than in prewar years, when it seldom exceeded 2,000,000 crowns. The principal item is for the main coast routes covering the steamship lines to Northern Norway. The second largest item was the allowance of 4,754,000 crowns, to be employed by the Department of Commerce to meet emergencies and special conditions."
